today, the sky rains promise
the wind gathers at my back

today, I rise

Today I have earned.
Before my family and friends, professors and peers,
I will accept this acknowledgement of my labors,
this reward for my dedication.
And though I savor this accomplishment,
I will not spend this day in reflection,
for I only see unlimited tomorrows:
the shapes of my dreams growing in scale,
sharpening in definition.

Today, the sky rains promise,
the wind gathers at my back.

Today, I rise.

TO SEATTLE UNIVERSITY
GRADUATES OF 2001

Congratulations to each one of you as you receive your undergraduate or graduate degree from Seattle University today. It is a busy day for you. I look forward to shaking your hand, giving you your diploma, and meeting your family and friends.

If we had more time, I wish I could ask each of you today what has been most important to you in your Seattle University education. I'd value what you would tell me. And I'm sure you could also tell me how we might improve our education. There is much that Seattle University could learn from you today. One might even say that today is the turning point when you become the teachers of Seattle University and Seattle University becomes the student.

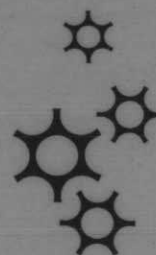

More important for me would be to ask you these questions in five or ten years. I'm fond of saying, "Only the graduates of Seattle University can tell us whether or not we are fulfilling our mission." Only you will know that because the success of our educational mission will be tested and proven in your lives and commitments.

You have heard us talk often about our Jesuit mission, our educational values, our societal commitments. I invite you to reflect on these as you move ahead in your lives. And I invite you to come back over the years and tell us whether, from your experience, your education has proven effective in making this mission, these values, and these commitments real in your lives. Only time and only your lives will show whether what Seattle University proclaims itself to be is true. The test is in your lives.

Again, my congratulations to you and my prayers for you. We are grateful that you have been our students; we are proud that you are now our alumni.

Stephen V. Sundborg, S.J., President

About Seattle University

From humble beginnings 109 years ago, Seattle University has nearly 6,000 students enrolled in 45 undergraduate and 23 graduate programs.

The 46-acre campus on Seattle's First Hill has the atmosphere of a small college. Teaching is the faculty's priority at Seattle University. Low student-to-faculty ratios and caring attitudes ensure that faculty members are readily available to students. As an institution of higher learning, Seattle University's objective and purpose include the discussion, interpretation, transmission and development of knowledge, ideas, and values.

Under the auspices of the Society of Jesus, Seattle University supports Christian ideals and values. It affirms the belief in the unity and totality of all human knowledge, whether experiential, speculative, or divinely revealed. As a community inspired with the Spirit of Christ, the campus atmosphere encourages the development of unbiased, liberated, and enlightened intelligence in its faculty and student body.

One of 28 Jesuit colleges in the United States, Seattle University offers a broadly based academic program, including a strong liberal arts core curriculum that prepares students to serve their communities, lead fulfilling lives, and succeed in their chosen professions.

Seattle University has many marks of distinction, offering the first addiction studies program, the first accredited ultrasound education program and first master's degree in software engineering in the nation. The Matteo Ricci College is the only college in the country combining high school and university curriculum. The university offers the region's only bachelor's degree programs in international studies, biochemistry and environmental engineering. The Albers School of Business and Economics operates one of the largest master of business administration programs in the region. The university offers the nation's first graduate program in non-profit leadership and offers unique graduate programs in theology and ministry that include both Catholic and ecumenical theological studies.

The true measure of the university's excellence is the success of our graduates. Seattle University's alumni include distinguished individuals in business, public affairs, education, the performing arts, athletics, law, nursing, and countless other fields.

The History of the Graduation Cap and Gown

American academic costume (also referred to as academic "dress" or "regalia") had its origins in the ancient European universities. Apparently, it was devised to distinguish academic persons, such as doctors, licentiates, masters, and bachelors from other parts of the population. Gowns probably were a necessity because of unheated buildings, and hoods were needed to cover the heads of medieval scholars. Most universities issued strict regulations concerning the design and use of academic dress.

As they were founded, American colleges and universities inevitably adopted the gown, hood, and cap from their European antecedents. Although some common standards and practices were observed, no uniform code or system existed until late in the 19th century.

The principal features of academic dress are three: the gown, the cap, and the hood. The flowing gown comes from the 12th century. It has become symbolic of the democracy of scholarship, for it completely covers any dress of rank or social standing underneath. It is most often black, with pointed sleeves for the bachelor's degree, long, closed sleeves for the master's degree, and round, open sleeves for the doctoral degree. The gown worn for the bachelor's or master's degree has no trimmings. The gown for the doctoral degree is faced down the front with velvet and has three bars of velvet across the sleeves in the color distinctive of the faculty or discipline to which the degree pertains.

The wearing of the cap was a privilege won by freed slaves in ancient Rome, and so the academic cap is a sign of the freedom of scholarship and the responsibility and dignity with which scholarship endows the wearer. Old poetry records the cap of scholarship as square to symbolize the book, although some authorities claim that the mortar board or cap is a symbol of the masons, a privileged guild. The color of the tassel on the cap denotes the discipline.

Heraldically, the hood is an inverted shield with one or more chevrons of a secondary color on the ground of the primary color of the college. The color of the facing of the hood denotes the discipline represented by the degree; the color of the lining of the hood designates the university from which the degree was granted. The length of the hood varies by academic degree. The hood for the doctoral degree is the only one with panels at the sides.

Patricia Millines Dziko

Patricia Millines Dziko, we recognize you today for your contributions to our community and especially your contributions to those most vulnerable. You are truly a gift to us. Almost five years ago, you left your position in the lucrative world of high technology to become co-founder of the Technology Access Foundation. This non-profit organization, which has since established deep community and corporate ties, is devoted to creating training programs, internships and other avenues for ensuring greater access to technology for those without such resources, particularly in communities of color.

You credit your charitable spirit and your commitment to doing good works to the lessons and examples provided by your mother and influential teachers. Now you stand as a role model for others. In profile after profile, you have consistently shared the belief that the good life is not defined by a big house or an extravagant lifestyle, but through happiness in your work and the knowledge that you are helping others. You are the embodiment of Christ's words that a life well-lived is one that extends itself for others so that others may have life and have it more abundantly.

In addition to your efforts through the Technology Access Foundation, you are a tireless champion of diversity and an active force in building strong communities and strong children throughout our region. You are a volunteer and a resource for such organizations as the Odessa Brown Children's Clinic, the YWCA, and a host of local middle schools and high schools. In these roles, you are part-time career counselor and full-time inspiration to everyone with whom you interact.

In your work to close the so-called Digital Divide, you are building collaborative networks dedicated to helping children learn not only how to use technology but how to create it. We honor you today for your efforts to improve our educational systems and, ultimately, our corporate cultures and our greater community. For all of these good works, and for those yet to come, Seattle University proudly confers to you the degree of doctor of humane letters, honoris causa.

Father John W. O'Malley, S.J.

Father John W. O'Malley of the Society of Jesus, you have lived a life of eminently distinguished scholarship and teaching. You have written or edited fourteen volumes of work on subjects ranging from early Jesuit history to Renaissance humanism to the unfinished agenda of the Second Vatican Council. The book that stands as your masterpiece, The First Jesuits, has been translated into French, German, Italian, Spanish, Polish, Japanese, and Braille, and has been hailed everywhere as the finest book of its kind ever written. In your position as Professor of Church History at the Weston Jesuit School of Theology in Cambridge, you have been a wise and gentle teacher and mentor to countless young Jesuits and others. Historians young and old, of many nations, value your friendship and turn to you for counsel. Your kindness and generosity are legion.

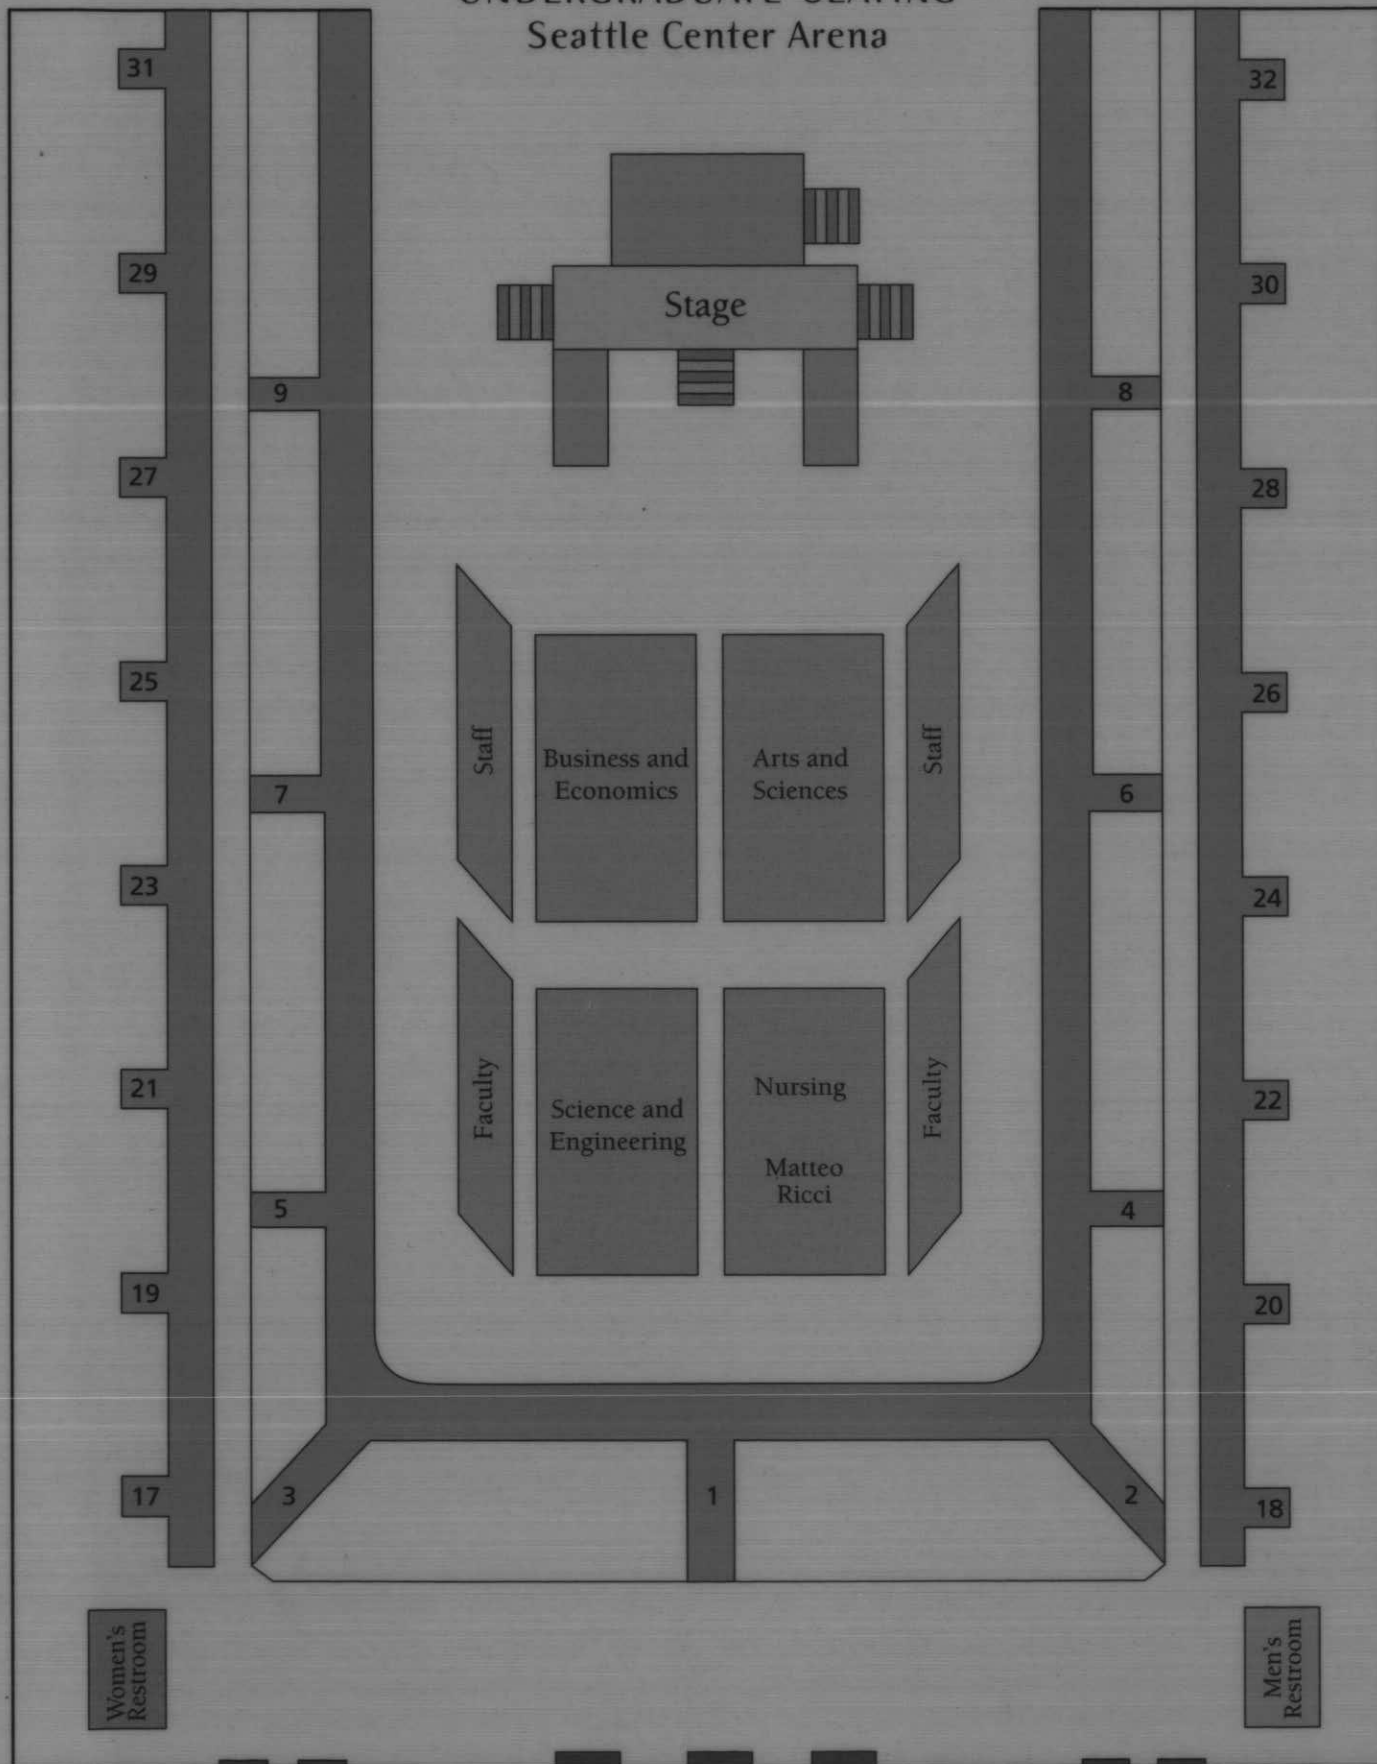

You have played a major role in the Jesuit life of your times. You have helped to shape our direction by serving as a delegate to the historic 32nd and 33rd General Congregations of the Society of Jesus. In decades when all religious orders have been called to seek strength and guidance in the charism of their founders, you have helped your fellow Jesuits and our friends everywhere to understand better our past. Many able scholars have studied and written on the life of Saint Ignatius, but you have gone further to show us Ignatius and his companions laboring as a community in a fundamentally social mission for the common good of everyone, and particularly for the good of the least fortunate. You have shown us the first Jesuits as peacemakers, as caring for victimized women and homeless children, as leaders in teaching the ways of caring for the sick and the dying, and as organizers of sodalities, groups of laypersons committed to the mission of raising and giving resources, as well as their own personal service, to aid the poor. These lessons are vivid. They inspire and sustain us in our mission today. You have won many honors, including the American Council of Learned Societies, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Guggenheim Foundation, the American Academy in Rome, and the Harvard Center for Italian Renaissance Studies at Villa I Tatti in Florence. You have served as president of the American Catholic Historical Association and of the Renaissance Society of America. Most recently you have been awarded the Johannes Quasten Medal for Excellence and Leadership in Religious Studies by the Catholic University of America. Truly you may be called a "Jesuit Laureate".

Just as your writings have made the early Jesuit community and its mission now more accessible to many people, so similarly your four most recent books have widened the lens by which we understand religion itself in Ignatius' time, and thereby also our understanding of the roots of modern Catholicism. For most of a lifetime you have taken it upon yourself to pore diligently over immense volumes of material, synthesizing a clear vision, helping to make the isolated contributions of hundreds of scholars converge meaningfully, available to anyone. And as an editor with a keen interest in Jesuit culture, science, and the arts, you have helped dozens of younger researchers to bring their own contributions into the light.

Father John O'Malley, you are, in your career and in your person, a perfect answer to the question that plays in the mind of every professor, namely, "Who is to write the books from which I am to teach?" Therefore in recognition of your service to teachers and learners, which we are all, and to the Society of Jesus and to all those who share in its works and hopes, upon you, Father John O'Malley, Seattle University proudly confers the degree of doctor of humane letters, honoris causa.

MATTEO RICCI COLLEGE AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE

Maria Elena Rafael
Dominika Joanna Wrozynski

Awarded to the student or students who most closely realize the Matteo Ricci College ideal; one who marvels at the wealth of human experience, yet wonders at its meaning; is open to diverse explanations, yet demands critical reflection; acknowledges any truth, yet questions its value and relevance; serves the human community, yet asks whether its values accord with the continuing revelation of the divine to humanity.

PRESIDENT'S AWARD

Awarded to the graduating senior who has maintained the highest scholarship throughout four years. A symbol of outstanding achievement.

Ibaadat Dhaliwal

Bachelor of Arts in Business Administration
*with majors in Accounting
E-Commerce and Finance*

ARCHBISHOP RAYMOND G. HUNTHAUSEN

OUTSTANDING SERVICE AWARD

Given to the students who have offered significant service to both the University community and the community at-large, and in so doing, have exemplified the values of collaborative leadership in service to others.

Daniel Jacob Fischer

Bachelor of Arts with majors in English and Sociology

His nominators describe both his long list of service activities and "spirit and integrity with which he has served" that make him an ideal winner of this award. Dan has been involved near campus with the Family Kitchen and Prison Ministry, and has participated in international service in both Belize and Mexico. On campus, he has led almost every retreat that Campus Ministry offers, in addition to serving as an Orientation Advisor and Orientation Coordinator. Dan "is a person for others" and bring "energy, reflection and authenticity to all that he does."

HONORS PROGRAM

GRADUATES 2001

The Seattle University Humanities Honors Program was founded in 1958. The two-year program is an historically ordered, integrated study of the great thinkers of the Western world, designed to create and stimulate a broad appreciation and a critical awareness of human thought and achievement in the sociocultural context. After completing the Honors Program, students pursue degree requirements in a specific major. The 2001 degree candidates who completed the Honors Program are:

Shawna Joy Behling English	Brandy Lyn Gevers Finance	James Francis Nau History/English

OUTSTANDING SERVICE AWARD

Given to the students who have offered significant service to both the University community and the community at-large, and in so doing, have exemplified the values of collaborative leadership in service to others.

Catherine Ann Collins
Master of Business Administration

Catherine has been a role model throughout her MBA studies at Seattle University, uniquely advocating for the social justice model of doing business — by going for the double bottom line of making profit and solving social problems at the same time. While in the MBA program, Catherine has worked with an international organization specializing in providing loans and training for micro-enterprise operations. Catherine has also developed partnerships with Kimball Elementary School to found a model technology summer camp to help bridge the “digital divide.”

A Commencement Reception for graduates, families and friends will be held in the Northwest Rooms, approximately two city blocks from the Arena. Hosted by the dean, faculty and staff of each school/college, this reception will provide an opportunity for graduates to introduce family and friends to faculty, staff and fellow graduates. Fr. Sundborg, S.J., president of Seattle University and other members of the administration will be there to greet you as well.
