TO SEATTLE UNIVERSITY
GRADUATES
OF 2004

Today as you participate in this Seattle University Commencement, if you have a moment to yourself during the ceremony, I'd ask you to reflect on the following question: "What will be the value of my Seattle University degree?"

We already have a fairly predictable answer to that question from a financial point of view. We know that fulltime workers between the ages of 25 and 64 who have a bachelor's degree, earn on average $52,200 a year compared to $30,400 for those with a high school diploma. The average for people with a master's degree rises to $62,300. If you extend that out over a career, it becomes evident that the degree you are receiving is likely to be very valuable to you financially.

That is one way to look at it, an important way. However, I doubt, as you graduate from Seattle University today, that it is the only or even the most important way in which you ask the question: "What will be the value of my Seattle University degree?" Let's try some other ways.

What will be its value for the quality of your life and the kind of person you will be? Your education has shaped how you think and even how you feel. It has changed what matters to you and what you care about. Perhaps it has informed your faith and channeled your commitments. What you read, what work you choose, how you engage in service, who your friends are, how you spend your time, and what you treasure are all affected in some way by your Seattle University education. These are all a different measure of the value of your degree, more important, I'd suggest than the financial.

Try another angle: what will be the value of your degree in terms of how big your world will be and how much it will correspond to the world as it really is? Your diploma is a ticket, maybe not for unlimited travel miles, but a ticket to knowing and encountering the world and your sisters and brothers as it and they are. Ultimately each of us chooses how big and how true our world is; it is not just given. Your education gives you the possibility of choosing a very big world and the challenge of caring about that world's people as they really are. This is a big value of your degree.

Finally, what will the value of your diploma be in terms of what it will stand for? A Seattle University degree already has a very high reputation that will only increase with time. Seattle University will continue to work hard to make its value in the eyes of others ever greater. It will stand for a great education, the best there is. By how you live, you can make the S. U. degree stand for justice, compassion, competence, integrity, leadership, even love and holiness of life. Its value has not already all been given. You can add to that value.

I want you to know my congratulations on this day of commencement and my confidence in the value you will find in and give to your Seattle U. degree.

Stephen V. Sundborg, S.J.
President

About Seattle University

Founded in 1891 as a Jesuit Catholic men's college, Seattle University has grown in size and stature to become the largest and most diverse independent university in the Pacific Northwest, with a student population of 6,600. Seattle University's 48 acre campus houses eight schools and colleges: Arts and Sciences, Science and Engineering, Nursing, Education, Theology and Ministry, Law, Business and Economics, and the Matteo Ricci College. The 2004 U.S. News and World Report ranks Seattle University among the top 10 schools in the west that offer a full range of masters and undergraduate programs, and Seattle University is among the Princeton Review's list of the top colleges in the United States.

In its 113 year history, Seattle University has been consistent in its commitment to academic excellence. Teaching, strengthened by active scholarship, is the faculty priority. Small class sizes, and the personal attention given by Seattle University professors and administrators, help students meet the rigorous demands of the curriculum.

The History of the Graduation Cap and Gown

American academic costume (also referred to as academic "dress" or "regalia") had its origins in the ancient European universities. Apparently, it was devised to distinguish academic persons, such as doctors, licentiates, masters, and bachelors from other parts of the population. Gowns probably were a necessity because of unheated buildings, and hoods were needed to cover the heads of medieval scholars. Most universities issued strict regulations concerning the design and use of academic dress.

As they were founded, American colleges and universities inevitably adopted the gown, hood, and cap from their European antecedents. Although some common standards and practices were observed, no uniform code or system existed until late in the 19th century.

The principal features of academic dress are three: the gown, the cap, and the hood. The flowing gown comes from the 12th century. It has become symbolic of the democracy of scholarship, for it completely covers any dress of rank or social standing underneath. It is most often black, with pointed sleeves for the bachelor's degree, long, closed sleeves for the master's degree, and

One of 28 Jesuit Catholic universities in the United States, Seattle University draws upon the Jesuit educational philosophy to develop critical thinkers and compassionate leaders able to promote a more just and humane world.

Seattle University's location in the heart of a great city and dynamic region provides learning, service, cultural and career opportunities for students. With the university's emphasis on experiential learning, students enhance their classroom experience by working on projects with local companies, interning in local schools or hospitals, participating in study-abroad programs, and other learning opportunities.

The true measure of the university's excellence is the success of its graduates. Seattle University's 43,000 alumni include distinguished individuals in business, public affairs, education, the performing arts, athletics, science and technology, and other fields.

round, open sleeves for the doctoral degree. The gown worn for the bachelor's or master's degree has no trimmings. The gown for the doctoral degree is faced down the front with velvet and has three bars of velvet across the sleeves in the color distinctive of the faculty or discipline to which the degree pertains.

The wearing of the cap was a privilege won by freed slaves in ancient Rome, and so the academic cap is a sign of the freedom of scholarship and the responsibility and dignity with which scholarship endows the wearer. Old poetry records the cap of scholarship as square to symbolize the book, although some authorities claim that the mortar board or cap is a symbol of the masons, a privileged guild. The color of the tassel on the cap denotes the discipline.

Heraldically, the hood is an inverted shield with one or more chevrons of a secondary color on the ground of the primary color of the university. The color of the facing of the hood denotes the discipline represented by the degree; the color of the lining of the hood designates the university from which the degree was granted. The length of the hood varies by academic degree. The hood for the doctoral degree is the only one with panels at the sides.

HONORARY DEGREES

Father William F. LeRoux, S.J.

Honorary Degree Recipient Undergraduate Ceremony

For nearly half a century, Father William F. LeRoux, S.J., has carried out his Jesuit commitment to God through his service to Seattle University. Whether in the role of priest, educator, administrator, or ambassador, Fr. LeRoux has been an unforgettable and beloved presence on campus and in the community.

Father LeRoux entered the Society of Jesus in 1940 at the age of 18. In 1958, he came to Seattle U. as an assistant professor of theology, becoming chair of the department in 1969. In 1978 he was appointed dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. In the mid-70s, he led the planning and formation of Matteo Ricci College—SU's innovative program that, through partnership with local Catholic high schools, provides accelerated learning for high-performing students.

In 1982, Fr. LeRoux left his academic role to join the development team in University Advancement, and since has generated significant financial support for Seattle University and its students.

"In his 46 years at Seattle University, Fr. LeRoux has built important relationships with thousands of people and brought the essence of our Jesuit educational mission beyond the confines of campus and into the community," said President Stephen Sundborg, S.J.

After 45 years of living and working at Seattle University, Father LeRoux moved last year to the Jesuit retirement residence at Gonzaga University. He remains in touch with many Seattle U. alumni, friends, and campus colleagues.

David Horsey

Graduate Ceremony*

David Horsey is one of this country's leading political cartoonists. A staff editorial cartoonist and columnist for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer since 1979, Horsey has gained a national reputation for his clever, visual interpretations of political and cultural events and the foibles of our leaders. He has twice, in 1999 and 2003, been awarded the Pulitzer Prize. His work is syndicated in more than 225 national and international newspapers, including the Washington Post, New York Times, Chicago Tribune and the Los Angeles Times, and five collections of his work have been published.

Horsey has earned numerous national and regional awards over his 25-year career, including the National Press Foundation's 1998 Berryman Award for Cartoonist of the Year, the 1999 Susan Hutchison Bosch Award for outstanding achievement in journalism, and first place in the 1994 Best of the West journalism competition.

In addition to his many journalism awards, Horsey was also the recipient of the Fulcrum Foundation's Champion of Catholic Education in 2003.

Horsey earned his B.A. in journalism at the University of Washington where he was editor of the student newspaper, The Daily.

A fourth-generation Washingtonian, David and his wife Nole Ann live in Seattle's Wallingford neighborhood. Their daughter, Darielle, attends the University of Washington and son, Daniel, began his studies at Seattle University this spring.
