Good Time Promised All at Homecoming

Father Corkery To Be Speaker At Banquet

The Very Rev. Francis E. Corkery, S.J., president of Seattle college, will deliver the main address to alumni and students of the College at the annual Homecoming banquet, Sunday evening, February 6, at 6:30 p.m. in the main dining room of the Washington Athletic club. The title of Father Corkery's talk will be "The Need of Catholic College Education in Seattle and the Hopes of the Jesuit Fathers to Fulfill It."

Several Speakers

The assembly will next hear from the Rev. Jas. B. McGoldrich, dean. Representing the alumni, Archie J. Richardson, president of that group, will speak a few words. His talk will be followed by a short message from the student association president, Edwin J. McCullough, and Helen McDonald, alumna of the class of '37, speaking in behalf of the alumnae, will complete the list of speakers.

Another important feature of the evening will be the presentation of the Italian club trophy to the winner of the basketball series between St. Martin's college and Seattle college. Robert Masenga will do the honors at the presentation and a representative of St. Martin's college will give a response.

Musical entertainment will be furnished by a quartet composed of Robert Richards, James Rothstein, Frank Taylor, and William Cannon. Richards is a senior at the College, Rothstein and Taylor are graduates of last year's class, and Cannon a former student.

Sylvester Is Toastmaster

A. E. Prickett, as a member of the old graduates, will be called upon during the evening to be introduced to the assembly. Howard Sylvester, prominent alumnus, will act as toastmaster for the occasion. Mr. Sylvester has been an active member of the Alumni association since his graduation from the College.

Another new feature of the homecoming celebration will be a live-wire introduction committee composed entirely of former presidents of the Alumni association. These members will move about among the crowds at the various activities, renewing old acquaintances among graduates and former students and making new acquaintances between old timers and the present-day students. Anthony Klotz will head this group, assisted by George Stuntz, Howard Sylvester, Stephen Cain, Henry Ivers, Howard LeClair, Bert Prickett, Thomas Duffy, Robert McClaire and Archie Richardson.

College Glee Club Entertain at Meet; Will Sing Tonight

Preceding the series of concerts to be given this quarter the Seattle College Glee club presented three selections at the recent student association meeting.

The mixed chorus of men and women sang "Land Sighting" by Grieg, the men's chorus presented the "Seattle College Marching Song," and the women's chorus sang "I Passed by Your Window" by Brahe-Lucas.

The Glee club will be supplemented by the boys' quartet, the girls' trio, and the children of the various parochial schools.

Tonight the group will make its first public appearance, in concert at the Blessed Sacrament hall. Many new pieces have been prepared for this occasion.

Receipts from the concert will be turned over to the Dominican sisters of Blessed Sacrament parish.

Very Rev. Francis Corkery, S.J.

Toloites Enter Atmosphere of Old Tahiti

To the entrancing chant of the snake-charmer tune, the girls' Tolo will enter into the Tahitian spirit at the Seattle Golf and Country club, February 25. Mavis McCreery will head the hula committee while her assistant dancers will be Agnes Valquette, Betty Colburn, Maxine Heldman, Jean Ryan, Nancy Stewart, Nora Brown, Mary Buchanan, Ellen McHugh, Roseanne Flynn, Nina Moran, Elleen McBride, and Jean Collman.

Only girls with grass skirts will be allowed on the floor, and their mates must dress according to the native Hawaiian costumes. The girls promise that this year's Tolo will surpass any former ones for originality, and, of course, the boys are all itching for dates.

Palm trees will grace the dance hall, and here and there will be pools of sparkling water touched by shores of gleaming white sand. The weather bureau has guaranteed an inspiring moon to cast its golden light on the appropriate scene of the festival.

(Editor's Note: Perhaps the reporter's imagination has worked too freely, but anyway the dance will be a great affair.)

College to Go on Air, Scanlon Talks, KOL

Seattle college will be on the air this morning at 11:15. The program is to be broadcast over station KOL as part of the Lora Lane daily feature.

James Scanlon, chairman of the Homecoming, will extend to all students, alumni, and friends of the College, a cordial welcome to join in this second annual reunion.

Further publicity flashes concerning the St. Martin-S. C. game, the Informal, and the Banquet will be offered at intermittent intervals over this same station.

According to the Homecoming Committee much thanks is due to the studio officials of KOL for their cooperating in this matter.

Bras to Pick Cast For "Smilin' Through"

The cast of the spring production, "Smilin' Through," will be named in the near future by Charles Bras, director of dramatics, and rehearsals will get under way.

Queen Jean To Get Scepter At Gala Dance

Queen Jean Collman, popular and attractive senior at Seattle college, will be enthroned amid the cheers of students and alumni at the annual Homecoming dance Saturday night, February 5, in the Spanish ballroom of the Olympic hotel. The queen will be attended by a court composed of Betty Williams of the senior class, Janet Granger, Betty Colburn, and Nina Moran of the junior, sophomore, and freshman classes respectively.

The St. Martin's and Seattle college basketball teams which will take part in the Homecoming game earlier in the evening will form a guard of honor for the royal court.

It has not yet been divulged who will crown the first Seattle college queen immediately preceding the intermission of the dance at the Olympic hotel. Ted Sternoff's popular dance band will render music beginning at 9:30 and ending at 12:30.

An unusual turnout of alumni and alumnae is expected at this social function, according to William Carr and Lucile Regimbal, co-chairmen. All arrangements have been completed and it is the purpose of the committee to have the graduates and former students meet the present-day students of Seattle college. The idea of a Homecoming queen, something new in activities at the College, has been received with favor and promises to add a new touch to the annual event.

President Takes Vows At Saint Joseph's Wednesday Morning

Gaining the goal for which he had set out over seventeen years ago, the Rev. Francis Corkery, S.J., president of Seattle college, made his solemn vows of profession in the Society of Jesus last Wednesday morning, February 2, in St. Joseph's church.

Entering the Jesuit novitiate at Los Gatos, September 7, 1920, Father Corkery continued his training with three years of Philosophy at Mt. St. Michaels, Spokane. For the next four years he was engaged in teaching English at Gonzaga university, following which he completed a four year course in Theology at the University of St. Louis. He was ordained a priest June, 1934.

As soon as he had finished his tertianship at Port Townsend in the summer of 1936, Father Corkery was appointed president of Seattle

Bucsko and Peter Are in Speech Contest

Robert Bucsko and John Peter represent the College at the after-dinner speech contest to be held Saturday night, February 5, at 6 o'clock, by Seattle Pacific college. Ralph Bell was chosen as the alternate.

The topic for discussion will be, "Emancipation of men from all-mony." The talks are to be of a humorous nature and they will be judged accordingly.

Schools that are entered besides Seattle college and the host, Seattle Pacific college, are the College of Puget Sound, University of Washington, Pacific Lutheran, and possibly St. Martin's.

Debaters Enter Coast Meet, Local Contests

Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, British Columbia, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, and Nevada will be represented in the debate tournament to be held by Linfield college February 17, 18, and 19, at McMinnville, Oregon, in which Seattle college will compete. Over one hundred teams will enter into debate, extemporaneous speaking, oratory, and after-dinner speaking.

The two teams sent by the College will be composed of Angelo Magnano and John Peter, and Roseanne Flynn and Helen Carey. Magnano will also enter the oratory, and Peter will enter extemporaneous speaking.

Topic for debate will be, "Resolved: That the national labor relations board should be empowered to enforce compulsory arbitration of all labor disputes."

The subject for extemporaneous speaking will be, "Democracy or What?" and that of the after-dinner speech will be "America Habits."

Prizes will be given the first and second winners in each event. A sweepstake cup will go to the victorious school for a year's possession. The school first winning the meet for three successive years wins the cup permanently.

The College will debate Pacific Lutheran, February 22, at home. They will travel to Mt. Vernon, February 25, and will have a return debate with that school later. They will entertain Seattle Pacific college and the College of Puget Sound, today, February 4, at 3:00 p.m.

Blessed Sacrament Kept in Spanish Homes—Provincial

Spanish Catholics are now allowed the extraordinary privilege of keeping the Holy Eucharist in their homes and receiving it by themselves at any time of day if in danger, according to the Rev. Francis Fitzgerald, S.J., Jesuit provincial of the Northwest, when he spoke to the student association on the occasion of his annual visit to this school, Tuesday, February 1.

Such a privilege was given, Father Fitzgerald said, because of the danger of worship which exists in Communist-held territory in war-torn Spain. He told the story of a young Spanish Catholic he had met from Barcelona who after availing himself of the privilege of receiving Communion during the afternoon in his own home, had barely enough time to send his family to safety in an airplane before he saw his home surrounded by soldiers and burned to the ground.

This example serves to emphasize Father Fitzgerald's point that conditions similar to this might easily occur in America if every Catholic does not become alive to the fact that insidious forces of Atheism and Communism are now active in this country.

In a word of fatherly advice he reminded this year's graduating class of its duty to their God and their country to do all in their power, as educated Catholic men, to counteract these forces threatening not only religion but civilization itself.

Memories of Father Sullivan Inspire Team

By Ed Schweitzer

Theirs is not to make reply, theirs is not to reason why, theirs is but to do or die!

When Seattle college meets St. Martin's college in the annual Homecoming game the Chieftains of Seattle college will go out on the floor with the immortal words of Tennyson ringing in their ears for they will not want to let the late Rev. Dennis Sullivan, S.J., down without a brilliantly executed victory for him, in this, their most important game.

The late priest, Father Sullivan, guided Seattle college athletics until his death over a year ago, but his spirit still hovers over the team and is in the hearts of the men who knew him and fought for him. Father Sullivan left something behind with Seattle college athletics, an indefinable something which has inspired Chieftain athletics to their greatest heights.

At Garrigan gymnasium, down in the dark, stained locker room, a light overhead will cast white shadowy reflections into the dark corners and directly under the light the men of Bill Murphy, with a thought of Father Sullivan, will map out their strategy and in the midst of the group will be Coach Bill Murphy, a canny basketball strategist who will be cool and calm and who will issue last minute instructions and send his men out on the floor with a "slap on the back" and an eloquent plea for victory over the Rangers from St. Martin's.

A large crowd is anticipated, and to accommodate the fans bleacher seats have been erected under both hoops at the west and east ends of the gymnasium.

Homecoming Queen Jean Collman, vivacious and charming, will sit on a specially erected throne surrounded by a bevy of beautiful princesses at the game. Jean will have as her court, Betty Williams, Janet Granger, Betty Colburn, and Nina Moran.

The lilting strains of Ted Sternoff's band will lend a cosmopolitan atmosphere to the basketball festivities.

Last year St. Martin's court five defeated Seattle college's twine ticklers, 35-28, in the first Homecoming game held at Garrigan gymnasium. Both teams scored the same number of field goals, thirteen, but the Chieftain warriors lost from the gift line.

Both teams are closely matched this year as St. Martin's lost to Mt. Angel by one point in overtime (Continued on Page 3)

Oldest Alumnus Quest Ended

"I remember when McDonough and Prickett came into the baby class."

By Tony Daigle

Pausing over his microscope in the Pine Laboratories in the Schaffer building, and casting a glance over some early records of Seattle college, Dr. J. P. Gilmour, S.P., waited while the Spectator cameraman clicked the shutter and then submitted to a grilling by the reporter. The fair complexioned, jovial doctor put an end to the long standing feud between Mike McDonough and Bert Prickett over the title of "oldest alumnus," when he modestly admitted that "he remembered when McDonough and Prickett came to enroll in the baby class."

Dr. Gilmour was unable to say offhand whether he entered the college in '95 or '96 and added that the records of those dates perished in the fire which carried away the upper story of the school building in 1905.

The new "oldest alumnus" harbors vivid recollections of the good old days when the only half of the present building was used for academic activities, the other half being the Immaculate Conception church. The late Father Mahoney, and Father Brusten, now stationed at Yakima, did most of the teaching at that time.

Queried about the type of sports in which the students engaged, he replied: "The major sport in those days was playing shinny with tin cans."

After leaving the college he worked for several years before enrolling in the Seattle Drugless college from which he was graduated in 1925. Dr. Gilmour, who lives at (Continued on Page 4)

Second Spectator Mixer Announced For February 18

Friday night, February 18, the Spectator will sponsor the second of a series of novel mixers at the K. of C. hall, Harvard avenue and Union street. Details of the dance have not yet been completed, but students and friends of the College who attend are promised some new and different entertainment, according to the policy of this series of mixers.

Being almost entirely non-profit affairs, these dances are given for the entertainment of the College and its friends, and to afford students an opportunity to get together in an informal manner.

A committee under Raphael Daigle, activity manager of the Spectator, is arranging a lively program for the coming mixer and advises all who like to enjoy an inexpensive social evening to attend.

Economic Suppression Seen As Forerunner Of Dictator's Rise

By Thomas Delaney

There was a time within the memory of most people when it was the common ambition of every wage-earner to acquire property sufficient to make him independent for a part of his life at least from the arbitrary dictates of often unkind economic masters.

Depend on Wages But with the piling up of corporations into monopolies, the wage-earners lost, as a class, what chances they ever had of becoming owners of property. As property has increasingly become the instrument of corporations, greater numbers of persons have come to depend upon wages as a source of income.

With the growth of corporations has come an increasing disparity of interest between worker and employer. The workers have been confirmed in their extremely insecure position, being economically at the mercy of the owners, and by law politically free agents, in most cases free to accept or starve.

The workers are confirmed, in their insecurity because the employers have only an indirect incentive to keep them alive, and that is to keep a large, free standing army of laborers to insure work being done at "reasonable" wage cost.

Wants Security

As a result the proletariat has lost its desire to own. It no longer identifies itself with any other class interest. It has become what it has been made. All it wants now is security, and it is willing to vote for those who promise the biggest security.

It has always, throughout history, been upon just such a vast throng of propertyless people, who have no other interest than the immediate problems of food and shelter, that dictators have ridden to power. In Italy, in Germany, in ancient Rome of Sulla and the Gracchi, and indeed, down that long road which the conquerors of all times have taken, Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, the story has been the same.

The long road is lined with the bodies of those who followed, only to find at the end, defeat, desolation, and finally death.

Grad-to-Be Glad to Be Official Greeter

By Betty Curren

Hear ye, hear ye—all ye old grads, young grads, fellow-classmen, and, well—freshmen. I am here with the express intention of impressing upon you the fact that you are very fortunate people.

Fortunate because in a short while you will be participating in the most extravagant, stupendous, colossal Homecoming that has ever dazzled the eyes of bewildered under-graduates!

For the sports fan there will be a brilliantly-played basketball game at Garrigan gym; for the aesthetic who delights in the contemplation of beauty, there will be the crowning of the Homecoming queen; there will be dancing in the Spanish ballroom of the Olympic hotel for those who have educated feet; and for the epicure there will be a banquet at the Washington Athletic club. I ask you, could there be any prospect more pleasing?

Old grads—coming back to us after having come to grips with the world—be assured of a sincere and special welcome. Times and people have changed, but old S. C. goes on forever.

Come back and wander up and down the halls where you threw spit-wads in the old days; pause for a moment in the seclusion of the library and remember how earnestly you studied there once on a time.

But whatever you do, don't be caught in the hall at five minutes to twelve on a school-day (unless you are armor-plated), because after you have fought your way clear of an S. C. traffic jam, you will most probably have a fractured collarbone, a dislocated arm or two; and a pen-point sticking in your ribs. Listen to old S. C.! She is calling you!

Homecoming Schedule

Saturday—Basketball game with St. Martin's starts at 7:45 in Garrigan gym, followed by the Homecoming Informal in the Spanish ballroom of the Olympic hotel.

Sunday—Homecoming banquet at Washington Athletic club, speakers, entertainment, a good time for all.

Little Reviews in The Book Parade

By Lisle Macdonald

"And So, Victoria"—Vaughan Wilkins—1937. A boy with a heritage of pomp, blood, and shame; a girl from the gutters of England; a woman who lived for hate; these are prominent characters in this epitome of historical novels. Through the pages march the glory and the shame of the House of Hanover.

The story takes place during the reign of William and during the time of the hideous plotting against the girl, Victoria.

Because a prince of the realm was annoyed by the dunning of his French emigre creditors, because one man was guillotined in France, numberless frightful things come to pass: One small boy's life is an endless trek of haunting fear of the secret hanging over him. Men are murdered and women betrayed.

The story is extremely well told, even the most jaded and know-it-all reader will find a surprise on every page. The entire theme is based on the intrigue and secret scandals of the Hanoverian line.

A novel well worth reading, but not recommended for those possessing weak stomachs.

Foot Lites and Hi Lites

Drama Commentator Tells Of Local Plays, Hollywood Waste, S. C. Producers

Theatrical Week in Review

At the Repertory Playhouse we find "Excursion," novel semi-drama, in its third week. The Studio theatre, U. of W. showhouse, packs them in with "The Bourgeois Gentleman," classic French satire on the new rich. Also managed by the U. of W., The Penthouse theatre opens its second week with the ultra-modern, super-sophisticated, "The Bride the Sun Shines On."

Hugh (Penny) Purcell does a nice job in this show. This fellow is proving to be a good actor and many habitués of this novel theatre would like to see him cast more often.

As far as the down town legit houses are concerned, there is nothing scheduled on the horizon unless one would consider the "Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo." I wonder if Marcel Le Plat, Seattle boy who has been with them several seasons, will be carrying a featured dance part when the show comes to his home town.

Merely Mental Meanderings

It is my opinion (but who cares), that there is a good position for some bright young person who could go down south and show the studios where they could save money on their sets. Even a casual tour through any of the studios reveals what seems to be an awful waste of material in sets. One studio in particular has three-quarters of its "ranch" filled with discarded sets which have accumulated over a period of years. Surely there must be some use for those ex-palaces and mountains. Even the salvage on the lumber would mount to a goodly sum.

Seattle's pride of the silver screen, Francis Farmer, ought to be turned over some one's knee and spanked. The way she behaved down there is a joke. Perhaps she realizes it now, as the studio is letting her cool her heels while she takes stock of herself and comes, we hope, to her senses.

For the girls: William Powell has the prettiest baby blue eyes you ever saw.

For the boys: Dorothy Lamour is cuter than a bug's ear and a voice like a tinkling bell.

Begged, Borrowed or Stolen

A Little Bit of Life As Lived Here And On Other Campi

Frankish fraternities of the University of Michigan registered a fictitious name with the registrar. For the next four years they sent their pledges to attend classes in which the name was registered. At the end of four years the name graduated with honors.

Our idea of one coed who always has her own way is one who writes her diary a week ahead of time.

Even his best friend wouldn't tell him—and so he flunked.

As we are slowly running out of wit, maybe this emaciated bit of jocosity will elevate the micropheletic aments (readers of this column) to a higher level of intelligence. In short, we present a joke:

First Stoogent—Did your watch ever stop when you dropped it on the floor?

Second Stoogent—Well, it certainly didn't go through it.

A Man's a Man For A' That

Perhaps you have heard Edwin J. McCullough, or others, whisper to someone in the halls, sotto voice, "Tonight's tasty night." This cryptic remark intrigued us "no end" (credit to Joe Dabler) and, since we have found the solution to the puzzle, we hasten to expose the whole affair. Lest you get the wrong idea, however, we hasten to explain that the entire business is delightfully innocuous.

Mr. M.'s remark referred to the weekly activities of the "St. Teresa's Tasty Tenderites." This esoteric group of lobbyists meets every Tuesday night for the express purpose of gaining the favor of the winsome residents therein.

With sweets and goodies purchased for the occasion, they ply the fair lasses, with song and merry jest they creep into their respective hearts. Pure lobbyism is what it is, but you don't hear the girls complain. No, indeedy.

Our duty done, we list the active membership: Edwin J., (of course) James Hurson, Addison Smith, Louis Sauvain, Nina Moran, Nora Brown, Jeanne Ryan, and Nancy Stewart. These are the "St. Teresa's Tasty Tenderites."

Another minor mystery of life. This time it's gloves, of which a pair worn by Miss Eileen McBride is a very fair example, a very fair example. You've probably seen the kind; you know, the kind that has every finger a different color, with the body of the glove a screaming mass of multicolored rings.

What mystifies us is not why she wears them (although there's room for discussion there), but who was the rascal that thought of such a thing.

What mad weaver's distorted genius produced this blatant surrealist nightmare? If the pattern were confined to one or two pair of hand-knitted gloves, it wouldn't be so bad, but think of long rows of inhuman knitting machines turning out dozens and dozens of the things.

But maybe you had best not think of it at all, it might get you like it has us. And look at us.

Prize for 'Mural Champs'

At last the boys in the lunch-pail league are going to have something to work for. After meeting deaf ears in several other quarters, I finally persuaded our tight-fisted editor to break down and offer a prize on behalf of the Spectator.

The award will go to the winner of the play-offs March 5. On that date the champions of the first and second rounds will lock horns in mortal combat.

Just what the gift will be is still a question. I'll leave it up to the Captain of the winning team. Suggestions so far are a box of cigars, a keg of beer, or a box of chips (for the boys at Pat's).

At first I thought of getting a cup. But you can't split a cup into five parts. And besides a cup costs too much kail for our impoverished

Spring in the Air

I see by the SFU Foghorn that the diamond and net teams of that institution are already taking the field in preparation for spring activities. Judging that we have the same climate as northern California (or better), and guided by the fact that Father McGoldrick has already announced the summer schedule, I think it proper to bring up the subject of our own spring athletic program.

In 1937, tennis was the only sport enjoyed. In their first try at inter-collegiate competition our varsity racketeers challenged such mighty powers as Ellensburg and St. Martin's. Naturally enough, their premier efforts did not meet with immediate success.

This year, however, veterans Bill Marx, Louie Souvain, and Joe Phillips return to form the nucleus of a fine quintet. Other good prospects are abundant.

Swimming for Boys

An additional feature for the boys, I hope, will be the introduction of intramural swimming teams.

The girls have always enjoyed this privilege. Classes are held at the Moore hotel pool with Frank Walterskirchen as instructor. A credit in physical education is given for participation.

Now, if enough male swimmers were interested I don't see why they couldn't be given the same opportunity. Providing sufficient talent is displayed the College could even enter into outside competition.

Smoke Signals

One of the most delightful bits of pantomime I have ever seen took place at the Mt. Angel game. After Loren Schoel had called a close one, Coach Coghlan of the Angels stood up, put his hands on his hips, cocked his head, and just stared at the referee with unbelieving eyes.

The boys from St. Benedict seemed afraid to shoot. They tried too hard to work their set plays, with the result that they neglected many fine opportunities back of the foul line. . . . Freddie Conyne displayed some high class checking in holding the Angels high scoring forward, Christiansen, to a total of zero for the evening. . . . A tip to the S.C. Hoopmen. Did you notice the medals that were worn by every player on the Mt. Angel squad? A medal is a fine sign of your religion, the cost is slight—and, fellows, some of those games are awfully close! . . . Very few members of the student body know it, but the Chiefs played the U. of W. supervarsity last Tuesday and lost 33 to 44. The supervarsity at the U. is composed of men who are good enough to make the varsity squad, but are ineligible for various reasons. . . . Johnny Downes is one of the tightest critters on the College squad, but he would be a more valuable asset if he could only learn to tip a few in off the backboard.

Another minor peeve: Too bad Bill Murphy can't take a couple of minutes off some day and come up to one of the student body meetings. Nothing would inspire a greater attendance at the games than a few words from our coach.

Dehorns Eke out 1-Point Victory Over Wildmen

Coming from behind in a sensational last minute spurt, the Dehorns knotted it up at the end of the regular playing period, and went on to win in the overtime 47 to 46. Bucsko and Descamps led their respective teams with 16 points each.

The third feature tussle of the week was the victory of the vastly under-rated Oglers over the Hams to the tune of 51 to 33. Mrs. Ogle's boarders jumped into an early lead and were never threatened at any stage of the contest. In other words, the Hams were just what their name implies.

Many other games have been played, but there is no room to tell about them here. It is sufficient to say that the Lemons and the Oglers are now tied for the top with one game each to go.

The Oglers must face the Dehorns who are still very much in the race. The Wildmen still have a slight chance of tying for the lead, but the Bombers and the Hams are completely out of the picture. First round play ends next Tuesday, February 8.

Ski Club Plans Weekend Excursion To Snoqualmie Bowl

Back from a successful trip to Mt. Rainier last Sunday, the Ski club has begun to lay plans for an adventure of a more ambitious nature. The members will meet on February 17 to wind up detail for a three-day excursion to the Snoqualmie Bowl.

According to Bob Hiltenbrand, club prexy, this trip is a final attempt to arouse school-wide interest. "We can have a coach, a permanent cabin and all the fun of intercollegiate competition, if only enough earnest skiers will turn out," says Bob.

"The University of Washington and C.P.S. have already approached the college for meets. Instructors at Paradise have urged us to enter our novices in the races held there every Sunday. We have lots of opportunity, all we need is support.

"Everyone is invited to come on this trip. We shall have a large cabin at Snoqualmie, and a full program of activities for the three days, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. The club and its guests will leave Friday, February 24, right after school."

Fred Sexton, club treasurer, reports that four new books on how to ski are now available in the library. They may be had on request to the librarian.

play, while Seattle college eked out a bitterly fought battle over Mt. Angel by one point last Saturday in Seattle.

Coach Bill Murphy will use the proven percentage system of basketball, that is, block plays that will clear the way for a perfect set-up shot. No chances are taken in losing the ball, because there is less wasted effort than in the rushing attack used by many coaches.

Joe Paglia will employ a fast passing attack that will stress blinding speed with a steady surge up and down the floor and plenty of shooting.

Both teams are in excellent physical condition and are eagerly awaiting the opening of the fray.

Seattle college will have the tradition behind them and also the fact that the men will be out to take this game for Father Sullivan in his memory and that will be a tough thing for St. Martin's college to buck up against, and for that reason Seattle college appears to have at least a four-point edge over St. Martin's, but it might not mean much because St. Martin's is a jinx to the Chiefs.

Local Quintet Whips Angels

Last Saturday, January 29, the Seattle college Chieftains made local history in downing the fighting Angels from St. Benedict, Oregon, 24 to 23. It was the first triumph for the home five in all the years of competition with their Oregon rivals.

Victory was especially sweet for the College this time as Mt. Angel had previously defeated Gonzaga, St. Martin's, and Portland. It must be mentioned, however, that the Chieftains caught the Angels on the third leg of their invasion of the Northwest.

Five minutes of play went by before a point was scored. Then "Medicine Man" Joe Merrick potted one from the corner, and Haener, playing center for the Angels, retaliated with a pivot tally from the center slot.

The slow see-saw battle raged back and forth across the hardwood until the Chieftains led at halftime, 9 to 7.

Starting the second period, lanky Don Sheehan, in for Philips who was riding the bench with three fouls, led the attack. The College forged ahead into a six-point lead and the Angels called time to figure things out.

The Chieftains answered the challenge with a burst of their own to hold a five-point margin with two minutes to go.

Here, however, the Angels woke up, and fairly burned up the maple as they finished in a whirlwind of passes and shots. And the home crowd drew a deep sigh of relief when the horn ended the contest with the college holding a one-point lead.

Col. Hoopmen Schedule Four Games on Trip

February 8, the Chieftains embark on a six-day invasion of Oregon. During the trip the Chiefs will encounter four teams: Mt. Angel, Willamette, North Pacific college, and either the Union Oil team of Portland or some other college quintet.

Mt. Angel is gunning for the braves, being highly indignant over losing such a close one to the home team. Messrs. Marx, Haener, Christiansen, and Nolan, are tough customers to beat anywhere, as Gonzaga and Portland will witness, but they are almost invincible at home.

In meeting Willamette, Seattle college comes up against its toughest opposition of the year. The Bearcats are red hot. The only blotch on their record is an early season defeat by the league leading Oregon quintet, and they only lost that game by a very few points.

North Pacific college will also be out for revenge. Greatly strengthened by the return of Hal Rosenberg, former U. of W. player, who was out with injuries in their game up here, they present formidable opposition.

- February 8—Leave for Oregon.
- February 8—Play Mt. Angel.
- February 8 and 9—Stay at Mt. Angel Hotel, St. Benedict's.
- February 10—Play Willamette.
- February 10—Stay at Marion Hotel, Salem, Oregon.
- February 11—(Game potential.)
- February 11—Stay at Governor Hotel, Portland, Oregon.
- February 12—Play North Pacific.
- February 12—Stay Governor Hotel.

HE SELLS TOBACCO TO THEM ALL

But Branch Bobbitt, like so many other independent experts, prefers Luckies...

"AT AUCTIONS in my warehouse in Farmville, North Carolina," says Mr. Branch Bobbitt, "Lucky Strike buyers know what tobacco they want and they'll keep bidding right up until they get it.

"Well—in a cigarette—it's the tobacco that counts. I know tobacco and I know what tobacco is in what cigarettes. So that's one reason I've smoked Luckies for over five years now."

Many other experts agree with Mr. Bobbitt. Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

HAVE YOU HEARD "THE CHANT OF THE TOBACCO AUCTIONEER" ON THE RADIO? When you do, remember that Luckies use the finest tobacco. And also that the "Toasting" Process removes certain harsh irritants found in all tobacco. So Luckies are kind to your throat.

Gavel Club Debate to Be Gory Affair

Rat-tat-tat spat the machine-gun. An innocent bystander doubled up in pain and lurched to the gutter. Blood gushed from his wounds and trickled down the street. Children scurried for their homes. Women screamed and fainted. A man rushed to telephone the police. Sirens screeched to the scene.

The body was quickly whisked away to the morgue and then a death-like silence enveloped the stage of the drama. But the criminal has escaped. The bank has been robbed. The G-men are soon put to work. They surround "Babyface" Jones in an old farmhouse. Tear gas bombs drive him from his lair. Automatics riddle him and another public enemy has paid his debt to society.

Larry Hoeschen and Hugh Carney of the College think that such an episode is entirely too gory and that women and children should be spared the view of such horrors. Next Wednesday these two men will defend the question, "Resolved: That 'Gangbusters' be barred from the air," at the Gavel club meeting.

But let's hear what the women have to say. They are completely for it according to Dorothy Bayley and Mary Martha O'Brien who are the negative debaters. Maybe they've never seen a real murder. At any rate the attraction to the women is probably that sweet, soothing voice of the "Gangbuster" host, Philip Lord.

Dramatists Consider Offers to Re-stage Play

Among topics discussed at the regular meeting of the Drama guild last night in Providence auditorium were tentative engagements for the re-enactment of "Her Husband's Wife." The Guild has two offers to give out-of-town performances of the play which was produced locally during January.

Quest for Oldest Alumnus Ended

If possible, Doctor Gilmour will be on hand at the Homecoming banquet to defend the crown of the oldest alumnus against anyone who cares to contest it, and believes that it will take someone other than the present set of candidates to remove it from his head.

News Briefs

The Seattle College Philippino club is donating the Philippino Forum, a monthly magazine published in the Philippines. It is edited by the Hon. Camilo Osirs, former president of the Philippine National university, and Philippine Commissioner to the U. S., now a prominent member of the Unicameral Legislature of the Philippine Commonwealth. The first copy will be accessible next month in the college library.

It will be the first of a series of donations to Seattle college by the group.

Plans have been formulated and active organization is under way for a Seattle College Alumnae Association, it was announced recently by Angela Young, co-organizer with Vivian Crenna, both of whom are graduates of last year.

This group is to be composed exclusively of women graduates and will be active in social and religious activities.

Bernadine Casey, former Seattle College coed, will take her vows as a novice in the order of the sisters of the Holy Names, on February 5. Miss Casey, now a postulate, entered the convent at Marylhurst, Oregon, last August.

TRIO SINGS TONIGHT

Italian Dinner Is a Success

Surpassing the goal of 1000 attendants, the Italian Dinner was held Sunday, January 23 at the Casa Italiana. This annual dinner festival for the benefit of the Seattle College and the Seattle Preparatory School was sponsored by the Mothers' Club of the two schools.

The Rev. Natalis Maruca, S.J., and Frank Perri headed the committee in charge which consisted of Wm. J. Smith, J. L. Carroll, A. A. Richards, Dr. X. P. DeDonato, Leo Sharkey, Wallace Mackay, Folger Peabody, Frank Perri, Don Kinney, Charles B. King, H. P. Ford, C. J. McGrath, Frank M. Petschl and James Cannon.

Out of Town Caravans Among aggregations from out of town, the Honorable Nelson B. Neff, director of old age pensions at Olympia, will lead a caravan of St. Martin's college alumni to Seattle for the festivities. Robert Tobin and Joseph Ditter of the class of '37 will round up a group for a trip across the mountains from Eastern Washington.

Seattle College Plans to Enter Spokane Meet

Representing Seattle college in the coming Student Spiritual Leadership convention to be held in Spokane, February 26 and 27, will be Don Boettner, Molly McBride, and possibly a few others if the necessary arrangements can be made, according to the Rev. Howard Peroneta, S.J., Sodality moderator.

Sponsored by the Spokane Sodality union the convention will hold its business meetings at Gonzaga. Two prominent sodality and Catholic Action leaders, the Rev. Daniel Lord, S.J., editor of the Queen's Work, and his companion, the Rev. Daniel Lyon, S.J., will come from St. Louis, Mo., to conduct the convention.

Metzgar to Address Sodalists Monday

Edgar Metzgar will speak about the value of labor unions and the danger of enemies from within its organization, at the Sodality meeting next Monday evening, February 7, at Providence auditorium.

Also scheduled for this meeting is a continuation of a series of discussions on impediments to marriage

...my good reason for smoking Chesterfields

I find they give me more pleasure than any cigarette I ever smoked. And if a man isn't getting pleasure from his cigarette he might as well quit smoking.

Chesterfields are milder . . . they've got a taste that smokers like . . . they have everything to give a man MORE PLEASURE.
