As you graduate today from Seattle University, enjoy this moment of accomplishment with your family, friends, and classmates. Also please take a moment to ask yourself how you will use the Seattle University education that your diploma represents.

Shel Silverstein's poem, "The Magic Carpet," might help you.

*You have a magic carpet
That will whiz you through the air,
To Spain or Maine or Africa
If you just tell it where.
So will you let it take you
Where you've never been before,
Or will you buy some drapes to match
And use it on your floor?*

I hope you will frame your diploma and hang it on the wall with pride. But I also hope you will use the education it represents as a magic carpet and will take a ride on it.

Here are ten ways you might use your Seattle University education.

1. Find a job in an occupation that really invigorates you, challenges you, and allows you to strive toward your fullest potential.
2. Don't stop learning just because you have earned your degree. Your diploma is only a foundation; continue reading, thinking, and learning throughout your life.
3. Develop colleagues, associates, friends, and life-partners who share your interests and commitments.
4. Apply what you've learned to create a family (your own or others) that is nurturing and supportive.
5. Serve the 98 out of 100 people in the global village who have not had the privilege of a college education.
6. Ride the magic carpet of your education to see the world and to fall in love with its different cultures, people, and perspectives.
7. Use your education not only "to give back" to those who have helped you, but to "give forward" to future students.
8. Serve your country (America or another) so that it stands for and supports what you have learned.
9. Use your education both for others, especially for the poor, but also for yourself to become the person you know you can be.
10. Make of your education a temple to praise, reverence, and serve God.

I hope you will add to my list your own ways to use your education.

Please know that my prayers and blessings are with you on your magic carpet ride.

Stephen V. Sundborg, S.J.

President

About Seattle University

Founded in 1891 as a Jesuit Catholic men's college, Seattle University has grown in size and stature to become the largest and most diverse independent university in the Pacific Northwest, with a student population of 6,800. Seattle University's 48 acre campus houses eight schools and colleges: Arts and Sciences, Science and Engineering, Nursing, Education, Theology and Ministry, Law, Business and Economics, and the Matteo Ricci College. The 2005 U.S. News and World Report ranks Seattle University among the top 10 schools in the west that offer a full range of masters and undergraduate programs, and Seattle University is among the Princeton Review's list of the top colleges in the United States.

In its 113 year history, Seattle University has been consistent in its commitment to academic excellence. Teaching, strengthened by active scholarship, is the faculty priority. Small class sizes, and the personal attention given by Seattle University professors and administrators, help students meet the rigorous demands of the curriculum.

The History of the Graduation Cap and Gown

American academic costume (also referred to as academic "dress" or "regalia") had its origins in the ancient European universities. Apparently, it was devised to distinguish academic persons, such as doctors, licentiates, masters, and bachelors from other parts of the population. Gowns probably were a necessity because of unheated buildings, and hoods were needed to cover the heads of medieval scholars. Most universities issued strict regulations concerning the design and use of academic dress.

As they were founded, American colleges and universities inevitably adopted the gown, hood, and cap from their European antecedents. Although some common standards and practices were observed, no uniform code or system existed until late in the 19th century.

The principal features of academic dress are three: the gown, the cap, and the hood. The flowing gown comes from the 12th century. It has become symbolic of the democracy of scholarship, for it completely covers any dress of rank or social standing underneath. It is most often black, with pointed sleeves for the bachelor's degree, long, closed sleeves for the master's degree, and

One of 28 Jesuit Catholic universities in the United States, Seattle University draws upon the Jesuit educational philosophy to develop critical thinkers and compassionate leaders able to promote a more just and humane world.

Seattle University's location in the heart of a great city and dynamic region provides learning, service, cultural and career opportunities for students. With the university's emphasis on experiential learning, students enhance their classroom experience by working on projects with local companies, interning in local schools or hospitals, participating in study-abroad programs, and other learning opportunities.

The true measure of the university's excellence is the success of its graduates. Seattle University's 43,000 alumni include distinguished individuals in business, public affairs, education, the performing arts, athletics, science and technology, and other fields.

round, open sleeves for the doctoral degree. The gown worn for the bachelor's or master's degree has no trimmings. The gown for the doctoral degree is faced down the front with velvet and has three bars of velvet across the sleeves in the color distinctive of the faculty or discipline to which the degree pertains.

The wearing of the cap was a privilege won by freed slaves in ancient Rome, and so the academic cap is a sign of the freedom of scholarship and the responsibility and dignity with which scholarship endows the wearer. Old poetry records the cap of scholarship as square to symbolize the book, although some authorities claim that the mortar board or cap is a symbol of the masons, a privileged guild. The color of the tassel on the cap denotes the discipline.

Heraldically, the hood is an inverted shield with one or more chevrons of a secondary color on the ground of the primary color of the university. The color of the facing of the hood denotes the discipline represented by the degree; the color of the lining of the hood designates the university from which the degree was granted. The length of the hood varies by academic degree. The hood for the doctoral degree is the only one with panels at the sides.

Governor Gary Locke

*Honorary Degree Recipient
Undergraduate Ceremony*

Gary Locke, the nation's first governor of Chinese ancestry, knows firsthand the life-changing influence of higher education. Locke grew up in public housing not far from Seattle University and attended Franklin High School. A scholarship allowed him to attend Yale University, where he graduated with a bachelor's in political science in 1972.

After graduating from Boston University in 1975 with a law degree, Locke returned to his hometown to work as King County prosecutor. His political career began in 1982 when he was elected to the Washington State House of Representatives; in 1993 he was elected King County Executive; and in 1996 elected governor (he was reelected four years later).

During his tenure as governor, Locke championed a number of educational initiatives and reforms such as reducing class size, reading programs, raising academic standards and improving access to higher education. Locke is noted for working to improve the business climate in Washington State—most vividly demonstrated by eleventh-hour efforts to ensure the Boeing Company would remain in Washington to build its next generation aircraft. He also sought to diversify and to streamline state government. During Locke's administration, Washington was ranked among the top four best-managed states in the nation.

Locke chose not to run for a third term as governor so he could spend more time with his wife Mona Lee and their three children. He is now a partner in the Seattle law firm of Davis Wright Tremaine LLP, working with its China and government-relations practice groups.

Mimi Gardner Gates

*Honorary Degree Recipient
Graduate Ceremony*

As an Asian art scholar with a passion for calligraphy, ceramics and Chinese painting, Mimi Gardner Gates derives meaning from the finest brush stroke. As director of the Seattle Art Museum since 1994, Gates has been adding her own brush strokes to Seattle's cultural canvas.

Currently, Gates is overseeing two major initiatives that will reshape the way art is experienced in Seattle: an expansion of the downtown Seattle Art Museum that will eventually triple the current size of the museum, and the planned conversion of 8.5 acres of industrial waterfront into the Olympic Sculpture Park. Gates is also overseeing a major renovation of the Asian Art Museum at Volunteer Park.

Gates' education includes a bachelor's degree in Asian history from Stanford University; an Honors Certificate in Chinese Language and Culture from the École Nationale des Langues Orientales Vivantes, Paris; a master's degree in Oriental and Chinese studies from the University of Iowa; and a Ph.D. in Art History from Yale.

Gates spent nearly two decades as curator, and later director, of the Yale University Art Gallery, leaving in 1994 to accept the director position at SAM.

Under Gates' leadership, the Seattle Art Museum's admissions have more than doubled, and membership has increased by nearly 50 percent. Recent exhibits such as "Van Gogh to Mondrian" and "Spain in the Age of Exploration" helped drive the rising admission.

Gates has served as president of the Association of Art Museum Directors, chaired the Federal Indemnity panel at the National Endowment (1999-2002) and sits on the boards of the Downtown Seattle Association and the Seattle YWCA.
