As we graduate today from Seattle University it is a moment to take pride in ourselves, in our families and in our university.

It seems that people take pride more than anything else in two things: their families and their universities. When it comes to pride in their university, the evidence is clear: from window logos to bumper stickers and license plate holders that demonstrate a sense of pride in an alma mater. We want people to know where we went to school. There is great pride in being a graduate of Seattle University almost more than anything else—and with good reason: this is a great university offering a great education for students who are great.

On a day like today we should first of all take pride in ourselves. It has been a long journey to our short walk across the stage in this commencement ceremony. You've made it! You've earned your degrees, are smarter and more knowledgeable, more competent and wise. The pride you feel for your accomplishments is justified. This is also a time to take pride in the person you've become during these years at Seattle University. While the degree you receive today will likely find itself on a wall or shelf, it represents the start of a new journey.

As you take pride in achievements and academic excellence at the university, it's also a time to be proud of your family, the people who helped make this day possible. Although we are the ones they applaud today, they are the ones deserving of our cheers, words of thanks, support and love. A commencement is a family event that requires a football stadium to accommodate all those who make this day special and, in many ways, the achievement possible.

We each have our own way of demonstrating pride in Seattle University. It is in our values of care, academic excellence, diversity, faith, justice and leadership. These values are made all the more real because of the people who exemplify them. These are the people to thank as you go forth with pride from this great university.

Stephen V. Sundborg, S.J.
President

About Seattle University

Founded in 1891 as a Jesuit Catholic men's college, Seattle University has grown in size and stature to become the largest independent university in the Pacific Northwest, with a student population of 7,100.

Seattle University's 48 acre campus houses eight schools and colleges: Arts and Sciences, Science and Engineering, Nursing, Education, Theology and Ministry, Law, Business and Economics, and the Matteo Ricci College. The 2006 U.S. News and World Report ranks Seattle University among the top 10 schools in the west that offer a full range of masters and undergraduate programs, and Seattle University is among the Princeton Review's list of the top colleges in the United States.

Seattle University is known for its commitment to academic excellence. Teaching, strengthened by active scholarship, is the faculty priority. Small class sizes, and the personal attention given by Seattle University professors and administrators, help students meet the rigorous demands of the curriculum.

One of 28 Jesuit Catholic universities in the United States, Seattle University draws upon the Jesuit educational philosophy to develop critical thinkers and compassionate leaders able to promote a more just and humane world.

Seattle University's location in the heart of a great city and dynamic region provides learning, service, cultural and career opportunities for students. With the university's emphasis on experiential learning, students enhance their classroom experience by working on projects with local companies, interning in local schools or hospitals, participating in study-abroad programs, and other learning opportunities.

The true measure of the university's excellence is the success of its graduates. Seattle University's 45,000 alumni include distinguished individuals in business, public affairs, education, the performing arts, athletics, science and technology, and other fields.

The History of the Graduation Cap and Gown

American academic costume (also referred to as academic "dress" or "regalia") had its origins in the ancient European universities. Apparently, it was devised to distinguish academic persons, such as doctors, licentiates, masters, and bachelors from other parts of the population. Gowns probably were a necessity because of unheated buildings, and hoods were needed to cover the heads of medieval scholars. Most universities issued strict regulations concerning the design and use of academic dress.

As they were founded, American colleges and universities inevitably adopted the gown, hood, and cap from their European antecedents. Although some common standards and practices were observed, no uniform code or system existed until late in the 19th century.

The principal features of academic dress are three: the gown, the cap, and the hood. The flowing gown comes from the 12th century. It has become symbolic of the democracy of scholarship, for it completely covers any dress of rank or social standing underneath. It is most often black, with pointed sleeves for the bachelor's degree, long, closed sleeves for the master's degree, and round, open sleeves for the doctoral degree. The gown worn for the bachelor's or master's degree has no trimmings. The gown for the doctoral degree is faced down the front with velvet and has three bars of velvet across the sleeves in the color distinctive of the faculty or discipline to which the degree pertains.

The wearing of the cap was a privilege won by freed slaves in ancient Rome, and so the academic cap is a sign of the freedom of scholarship and the responsibility and dignity with which scholarship endows the wearer. Old poetry records the cap of scholarship as square to symbolize the book, although some authorities claim that the mortar board or cap is a symbol of the masons, a privileged guild. The color of the tassel on the cap denotes the discipline.

Heraldically, the hood is an inverted shield with one or more chevrons of a secondary color on the ground of the primary color of the university. The color of the facing of the hood denotes the discipline represented by the degree; the color of the lining of the hood designates the university from which the degree was granted. The length of the hood varies by academic degree. The hood for the doctoral degree is the only one with panels at the sides.

Steven Holl

Honorary Degree Recipient Undergraduate Ceremony

New York-based architect Steven Holl is considered one of America's eminent architects—and for those who have visited Holl's Chapel of St. Ignatius, built in 1997 at Seattle University, it is easy to understand why. As the striking chapel effectively demonstrates, Holl has an ability to blend space and light in a way that honors the meaning and purpose of the structure.

Born in Bremerton and a graduate of the University of Washington, Holl studied architecture in Rome before establishing Steven Holl Architects in New York in 1976. He has since designed award-winning cultural, civic, academic and residential projects in the United States and internationally. Time magazine declared Holl, a professor at Columbia University's Graduate School of Architecture and Planning, "America's best architect" in 2001.

While the Chapel of St. Ignatius is one of Holl's most revered and prominent works—the design has earned him numerous awards and a model of the chapel is part of the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City—the Kiasma Museum of Contemporary Art in Helsinki, Finland, is widely considered to be his signature work.

Bill and Paula Clapp

Honorary Degree Recipient Graduate Ceremony

As co-founders of the Seattle-based nonprofit Global Partnerships, Bill and Paula Clapp strive to mobilize business and civic leaders around a movement to eradicate poverty. It's a mission they hope to make a national priority.

The Clapp's founded Global Partnerships in 1994—two years after a life-changing trip to El Salvador motivated Bill, a business executive couple and Paula, who worked as a mental health counselor and therapist, to pool their energies and resources to create better futures for those in extreme poverty.

Global Partnerships works with lending groups in Latin America to fund micro-credit loans to women and men in Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador and Honduras. The goal of the small loans model is to stimulate economic development in communities and create financial stability to alleviate poverty. Currently, there are 125,000 borrowers in the four countries Global Partnerships serve.

In 2003, Bill helped established the Initiative for Global Development (IGD), a nationwide group of prominent business and civic leaders advocating for policies to eliminate poverty on a global scale. The group's first national summit, co-chaired by former Secretaries of State Colin Powell and Madeleine Albright, is June 14–15 in Washington, D.C.

UNDERGRADUATE CEREMONIES

I will accept this diploma with pride, this tangible symbol of years of labor and commitment. I will praise those who helped me to earn it—the scholars, the family and the friends. And then, at day's end, and every day to come, I will carry its lessons into my community and into my world. For the education that teaches others, that leaves the world a better place than I found it, is the only education worth having. And my education has only begun.

GRADUATE CEREMONIES

Today I have earned.
Before my family and friends, professors and peers,
I will accept this acknowledgement of my labors, this reward for my dedication. And though I savor
this accomplishment, I will not spend this day in reflection, for I only see unlimited tomorrows: the shapes of my dreams growing in scale, sharpening in definition.
