SEATTLE UNIVERSITY
A Tradition of Excellence

Commencement | KeyArena | June 13, 2010

*There is no more powerful affirmation that we,
as a university, are fulfilling our mission than when you,
our graduates, go forth to do wonderful things.*

TO THE 2010 GRADUATES
OF SEATTLE UNIVERSITY

To the 2010 graduates of Seattle University,

Welcome students and family members to the 2010 Seattle University commencement ceremony. It is a privilege for all of us from SU to be able to share this time of celebration, joy and pride with you.

I often say that there is an annual “miracle” that is worked at SU. It is the miracle of the students who choose our university for their higher education experience. More than anything else it is the kind of student who chooses us that makes us to be the university we are. Our students seek an education for a big world, desire to pursue it in a major city, want a diverse and multicultural experience, are interested in the arts and culture, are engaged in social issues, and are proven in their commitment to service. You the students graduating today worked this miracle when you first chose SU. You the parents and families are part of that miracle because of the quality of the student from your family who came to us. So thank you for choosing Seattle U.

The second “miracle” occurs today in what has emerged in the lives of our graduates over the course of their educational experience these past years. What has emerged—in addition to a growth in knowledge and competence—is leadership, spirituality, personal values, confidence, social commitment, and hopefulness. The students themselves should take more credit for this second miracle than the university for they have done the work and what has emerged has come from within them. Together with parents and family members we rejoice in who our graduates are this day.

As you have made us part of your family, we ask that you continue to be part of the Seattle University family.

ABOUT SEATTLE UNIVERSITY

Founded in 1891, Seattle University is a Jesuit Catholic institution that today is the most racially and culturally diverse, the most genuinely urban, and the largest multidisciplinary independent university of the Northwest.

Inspired by the Catholic intellectual tradition and the Jesuit philosophy of education, Seattle University forms independent critical thinkers rooted in the humanities and open to finding God in all things. Responding to the Jesuit imperative that calls for “the service of faith and the promotion of justice,” Seattle University students are challenged to address issues of poverty, injustice, discrimination, violence and environmental degradation with competence, compassion and creativity.

At the heart of every undergraduate, graduate and professional program at Seattle University is an intellectually rigorous education delivered by excellent faculty whose attentiveness as teachers is rivaled only by their commitment to generating new knowledge as scholars. In partnership with their students, Seattle University’s dedicated faculty and their colleagues create a vibrant, educational experience that comes alive in the classroom, campus and community, and develops character and leadership.

As SU President Stephen Sundborg, S.J., has often said, “Only the alumni of Seattle University can tell us whether we are fulfilling our mission.” It is through their actions that our alumni most clearly attest to the power of an SU education. They are leaders in banking and business, in publishing and politics, nursing and nonprofits, engineering and education. Today, we welcome our newest graduates into a special group of women and men who are excelling in their professions and working to build a more just and humane world.

THE HISTORY OF GRADUATION CAP AND GOWN

The academic apparel—gown, hood, and cap—donned today by both faculty and graduates reminds us that in this commencement ceremony we celebrate our students as accomplished scholars who now join the ranks of their professors and others who have earned their university degrees. Indeed they become part of a cadre whose membership stretches back to medieval Europe.

The origins of academic dress date back to the 12th and 13th centuries when European universities were first taking form. The ordinary dress of the scholar, whether student or teacher, was the dress of a cleric; with few exceptions, the medieval scholar had taken orders, made vows, and perhaps been tonsured. Gowns were mandated by religious affiliation but were also a necessity in the unheated university buildings. Hoods at first covered the tonsured head but eventually a skull cap became the normal headpiece and the hood evolved into a cape that could be pulled up during unpleasant weather. Eventually the hoods became entirely ornamental, draped over the shoulders and down the back.

Some say the academic cap is a sign of the freedom of scholarship which evolved from the cap worn in ancient Rome by freed slaves. Scholars first wore it as a symbol of the master’s degree and it existed in various forms; stiff, soft, square, and round with a tuft in the center. Today’s tassel is believed to be an elaboration of the tuft. England’s Oxford University originated the mortarboard style cap worn by our graduates today.

When academic costume came to America in 1754, styles varied widely as they still do in Europe today. In the late 19th century an Intercollegiate Commission met at Columbia University and adopted a code of academic dress which regulates the gowns and prescribed the colors which represent the different fields of learning.

Today the American Council on Education’s, Committee on Academic Costumes and Ceremonies is charged here in the states with the standardization of American academic apparel.*

HONORARY DEGREE

Bob Craves | CEO and Co-Founder, College Success Foundation

A decade ago this past spring, Bob Craves co-founded the College Success Foundation—then called the Washington Education Foundation—to offer mentorships and scholarships to make college attainable for Washington State’s at-risk youth.

The College Success Foundation brings together community leaders from across Washington to help students who are left behind in higher education because of a lack of support from existing government and scholarship programs. For his efforts, Craves is a highly regarded and recognized leader in higher education issues across the state and beyond.

Since 2000, the foundation has worked in schools across the state and has raised more than $350 million to fund scholarships for nearly 6,000 students, producing over 1,600 graduates. From 1997-2005, Craves served as chairman of the Washington State Higher Education Coordinating Board and in 1998, was appointed co-chair of the 2020 Commission on the Future of Postsecondary Education, created by then-Gov. Gary Locke. At the conclusion of the commission, Craves co-founded the College Success Foundation with fellow board member Ann Ramsay-Jenkins. Craves is also a founding officer of Costco Wholesale Corporation and served as senior vice president of membership and marketing until 2000. The foundation also administers funds that come through the Costco Scholarship Fund, which provides minority scholarships to underrepresented minority students attending SU or the University of Washington.

He is a member of the boards of trustees at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., the Arizona Scholarship Foundation and the Le May Museum.

2010 CORE HONORS PROGRAM

The Seattle University Core Honors Program was founded in 2004. By bringing highly motivated students into a cohort group that pursues its Seattle University Core courses together, the Core Honors program permits more advanced study in these courses than would otherwise be possible. In maintaining this cohort over three years of study, Core Honors creates a learning community in which each member contributes to the learning experience of the others. In pursuing a rich and vital experience of liberal education in the humanities and social sciences, Core Honors embodies in a special way Seattle University's commitment to education for values, leadership, and service.

HONORARY DEGREE

Cheryl Crazy Bull | President, Northwest Indian College

Accessibility to postsecondary education for Native Americans and honoring Native cultures are important to Cheryl Crazy Bull, president of Northwest Indian College since 2002.

Crazy Bull is the first female president of the college, which has a student body representing 100 tribes. It is the only regional tribal college serving multiple tribes throughout the Northwest, located on the Lummi Reservation near Bellingham, Wash., with extended campus sites at other locations in the Pacific Northwest.

A citizen of the Sicangu Lakota Nation of the Rosebud Reservation in South Dakota, Crazy Bull is nationally recognized for her work with higher education and native populations in the United States.

Civic and social causes are important to Crazy Bull, who serves on several boards, including the Northwest Indian College Foundation Board, the National Museum of the American Indian and United Way of Whatcom County. Previously, she worked at Sinte Gleska University in South Dakota in various roles, such as vice president, director for institutional relations, dean for instructional programs, a planning officer, instructor and department chair as well as the CEO of St. Francis Indian School, both on the Rosebud Reservation.

"I really value education and the tribal colleges and schools," she says. "The work we do in the tribal colleges saves peoples' lives. That's the most rewarding part of my career."

ARCHBISHOP RAYMOND G. HUNTHAUSEN OUTSTANDING SERVICE AWARD

Given to the student who has offered significant service to both the university community and the community at-large, and in so doing, has exemplified the values of collaborative leadership in service to others.
