SEATTLE UNIVERSITY
A Tradition of Excellence

Commencement | KeyArena | June 16, 2013

*There is no more powerful affirmation that we,
as a university, are fulfilling our mission as when you,
our graduates, go forth to do wonderful things.*

TO THE 2013 GRADUATES
OF SEATTLE UNIVERSITY

To the 2013 Graduates of Seattle University,

It is great to be with you here in KeyArena on your big day of graduation from Seattle University. I join your families, friends, faculty and classmates in applauding you on this accomplishment.

The motto for the graduates of all Jesuit universities around the world—and there are about 125 such universities—is to be “men and women for others.” What does this mean?

The education, personal growth and service you have been engaged in over these past years has hopefully instilled in you a fundamental attitude or personal priority to be a person who is committed to serve others, to respect and honor them, to stand up for the most needy or vulnerable among them; in short to be “for others.”

Of course, we hope that your education is “for you” as well, for the quality and success of your life, a meaningful way of living and working, your engagement in lifelong learning, your relationships and families. We believe that most of your joy and sense of purpose will come from how much you care for others and put your education to use in the service of this care and in pursuit of justice.

When Seattle University articulates its values, the very first one we list is “We put the good of students first.” We hope that has been your experience and that we have lived out this first of all values. As you go forth from here, we trust that the top value on your list will be “I put the good of others first.” That is the hope for all graduates of Jesuit universities.

Let me thank you for the privilege of being your president. On behalf of all the faculty, staff and administration of Seattle University, thank you for all you have done and all you are.

Stephen V. Sundborg, S.J.

ABOUT SEATTLE UNIVERSITY

Founded in 1891, Seattle University is a Jesuit Catholic institution that today is the most racially and culturally diverse, the most genuinely urban, and the largest multidisciplinary independent university of the Northwest.

Inspired by the Catholic intellectual tradition and the Jesuit philosophy of education, Seattle University forms independent critical thinkers rooted in the humanities and open to finding God in all things. Responding to the Jesuit imperative that calls for "the service of faith and the promotion of justice," Seattle University students are challenged to address issues of poverty, injustice, discrimination, violence and environmental degradation with competence, compassion and creativity.

At the heart of every undergraduate, graduate and professional program at Seattle University is an intellectually rigorous education delivered by excellent faculty whose attentiveness as teachers is rivaled only by their commitment to generating new knowledge as scholars. In partnership with their students, Seattle University's dedicated faculty and their colleagues create a vibrant, educational experience that comes alive in the classroom, campus and community, and develops character and leadership.

As SU President Stephen Sundborg, S.J., has often said, "Only the alumni of Seattle University can tell us whether we are fulfilling our mission." It is through their actions that our alumni most clearly attest to the power of an SU education. They are leaders in banking and business, in publishing and politics, nursing and nonprofits, engineering and education. Today, we welcome our newest graduates into a special group of women and men who are excelling in their professions and working to build a more just and humane world.

THE HISTORY OF GRADUATION CAP AND GOWN

The academic apparel—gown, hood, and cap—donned today by both faculty and graduates reminds us that in this commencement ceremony we celebrate our students as accomplished scholars who now join the ranks of their professors and others who have earned their university degrees. Indeed they become part of a cadre whose membership stretches back to medieval Europe.

The origins of academic dress date back to the 12th and 13th centuries when European universities were first taking form. The ordinary dress of the scholar, whether student or teacher, was the dress of a cleric; with few exceptions, the medieval scholar had taken orders, made vows, and perhaps been tonsured. Gowns were mandated by religious affiliation but were also a necessity in the unheated university buildings. Hoods at first covered the tonsured head but eventually a skull cap became the normal headpiece and the hood evolved into a cape that could be pulled up during unpleasant weather. Eventually the hoods became entirely ornamental, draped over the shoulders and down the back.

Some say the academic cap is a sign of the freedom of scholarship which evolved from the cap worn in ancient Rome by freed slaves. Scholars first wore it as a symbol of the master's degree and it existed in various forms; stiff, soft, square, and round with a tuft in the center. Today's tassel is believed to be an elaboration of the tuft. England's Oxford University originated the mortarboard style cap worn by our graduates today.

When academic costume came to America in 1754, styles varied widely as they still do in Europe today. In the late 19th century an Intercollegiate Commission met at Columbia University and adopted a code of academic dress which regulates the gowns and prescribed the colors which represent the different fields of learning.

Today the American Council on Education's, Committee on Academic Costumes and Ceremonies is charged here in the states with the standardization of American academic apparel.*

Erik Larson

Erik Larson is the author of four New York Times bestsellers, most recently In the Garden of Beasts: Love, Terror, and an American Family in Hitler's Berlin, which reached #1 and remained on the printed list for 35 weeks. Published in a number of countries throughout the world, including Britain, France, Italy, Poland and Australia, the book is about the first American ambassador to Nazi Germany.

The Seattle-based author's book, The Devil in the White City remained on the Times' hardcover and paperback lists for more than three years combined. Compellingly recounting a series of murders committed during the 1893 Chicago World's Fair, the book won an Edgar Award for non-fiction crime writing and was a finalist for a National Book Award.

Larson's 1999 book Isaac's Storm was an immediate Times bestseller and won the American Meteorology Society's prestigious Louis J. Battan Author's Award, with The Washington Post calling it the "Jaws' of hurricane yarns." Larson's other books include the 2006 bestseller, Thunderstruck, as well as The Naked Consumer: How Our Private Lives Become Public Commodities and Lethal Passage: The Story of a Gun.

Getting his start as a journalist, Larson was a staff writer for The Wall Street Journal and later a contributing writer for Time magazine. He has written for The Atlantic, Harper's and The New Yorker, among other publications.

Larson graduated summa cum laude from the University of Pennsylvania, where he studied Russian history, language and culture. He received a master's in journalism from Columbia University. He has taught non-fiction writing at San Francisco State University, the Johns Hopkins Writing Seminars and the University of Oregon.

2013 CORE HONORS PROGRAM

The Seattle University Core Honors Program was founded in 2004. By bringing highly motivated students into a cohort group that pursues its Seattle University Core courses together, the Core Honors program permits more advanced study in these courses than would otherwise be possible. In maintaining this cohort over three years of study, Core Honors creates a learning community in which each member contributes to the learning experience of the others. In pursuing a rich and vital experience of liberal education in the humanities and social sciences, Core Honors embodies in a special way Seattle University's commitment to education for values, leadership, and service.

Catherine Ming Finnerty
CUM LAUDE

Awarded to the student or students who most closely realize the Matteo Ricci College ideal; one who marvels at the wealth of human experience, yet wonders at its meaning; is open to diverse explanations, yet demands critical reflection; acknowledges any truth, yet questions its value and relevance; serves the human community, yet asks whether its values accord with the continuing revelation of the divine to humanity.

GRADUATE SPEAKER

John Koster, MD

John Koster, MD, is CEO Emeritus of Providence Health & Services, a position to which he was appointed shortly after announcing his retirement in early 2013. Joining Providence in April 1997, Dr. Koster was primarily responsible for system operations before he became president and CEO in 2003.

One of the nation's largest Catholic healthcare organizations, Providence continues a tradition of caring that the Sisters of Providence began more than 157 years ago. The not-for-profit system includes 32 hospitals, 400 physician clinics, senior services, supportive housing and many other health and educational services. Based in Renton, Wash., Providence, along with its affiliates, employs more than 65,000 people across five states—Alaska, California, Montana, Oregon and Washington.

Koster is frequently included among the 50 most influential healthcare executives by Modern Healthcare, and this year he was 20th in the nation. Under his leadership, Providence has continued its commitment to the communities it serves, especially the poor and vulnerable. Last year the system provided $823 million in community benefit and charity care to improve access to healthcare. This year, Providence was recognized among the top 20 best-performing systems in the country in Thomson Reuters' annual rankings.

Prior to joining Providence, Koster held a number of senior leadership positions, including senior vice president of VHA, Inc. in Irving, Tex., a nationwide network of healthcare organizations and physicians.

Koster received a bachelor of science in biology from New Mexico Tech and his medical degree from the University of New Mexico Medical School. He practiced internal medicine for 10 years.
