"Century Of Progress" Chosen Theme JESUIT ALUMNI As Committee Names Co-Heads

By Mary Nachtsheim

When the old grads and alumni assemble at Seattle College for the Homecoming from May 5 to May 10, they will Msgr. Ryan Delivers find the beautiful new building the hub around which all activities revolve.

"Century of Progress" is the theme to be carried out, and accordingly, 100 men and women are to make up the committees-50 for the past half-century, and 50 for the coming one. The new half-century one. building is the symbol which stands for the progress already made and further progress to be

Sermon At Celebration

Three hundred and fifty old grads and alumni assembled in St. Joseph's Church last Sunday for their annual alumni Mass and breakfast. Msgr. Ryan delivered the sermon at the Mass, commemorating the 400th anniversary of the founding of the Jesuit Order by St. Ignatius Loyola.

Following the Anniversary Mass, breakfast was served in St. Joseph's hall, with members of the Silver Scroll attending to the wants of the guests. Mr. Thomas Duffy, the speakers.

First speaker of the morning was Father William Smith, representing Father Corkery, who is present. Father Smith expressed his gratitude for the loyalty and interest shown by the Jesuit graduates who had assembled to commemorate the quadricentennial of the order.

Jack Robinson announced that Alpha Sigma Nu is attempting, with the alumni, to secure an adequate list of the members of the alumni.

Mr. Duffy then called upon Joe McMurray, who made an announcement concerning the Seattle College Homecoming.

Bishop Shaughnessy expressed his feeling of gratitude at being a graduate of a Jesuit College-an neider, tickets; Shirley Roy and alumni of Boston College. He then gave his blessing to the assembled

Lenten Book . . . Moran Reviews Book In Entirety

Of late I have been pelted with many notes tossed through my window and from the entrances of gloomy alleys by the outraged intelligentsia, threatening me with unspeakable fates unless I read and review a book in totality.

"Don't fritter away your time prating of life and love! Dangle a few shining ideals to ennoble and inspire the student! Review something inspiring and profound!"

"After spending several troubled hours with my confessor, I emerged with a granite resolve to mend my ways. Henceforth I would (sic) keep even the commas above reproach, in timing the seasons in order that Spring may disquiet the Lenten Penitent by causing his heart to beat at inopportune moments, is at times very trying. It is to be combatted.

As a pleasantly disturbing means of defense I recommend Archbishop Goodier's "The Life of Christ."

Many Catholic writers are more fervent than inspired and more inspired than capable. And more capable than intelligent. Their delineation of Christ leads one to think that they write with candy crayons.

It requires a great and sympathetic man, and one who finds austerity at times galling, to write fitly on a subject of that magnitude.

Goodier writes with the easy sympathy, the discernment, the reticence of emotion and the fire that only a great writer can use. that only a great writer can use. His portrayal of Christ is such that one realizes that Christ was once a man. I recommend the book as a great religious work and a

So we're off in a flurry of cheery, ex-—Stadium World. cited greetings and jests, as the neighbors sleepily peer out of the upstairs windows.

At Paradise shone another beautiful, sunshiny day. A multitude of skiers had ventured forth, and cars were silhouetted against the banks of snow, as their occupants swarmed up the various surrounding slopes.

Seen from below are the dark specks standing out in contrast to the whiteness of the snow as they more sparse, the air is crystal clear, and the view, awe-inspiring. You can see distant peaks rising majestically, even Oregon's Mount Hood and St. Helens seem very close. As far as the eye can seenatural beauty!

After resting, and partaking of a light lunch on Panorama, we becan to reap reward for our threehour climb; skis paint a trail over wind whips against faces. Every once in a while a thrilled soul will burst forth into a yodel while flying downward. Ski Heil! Students, Monday morning, ap-

An interesting sidelight on the recent A. A. U. Tournament I'll tell you. It is a club for golf-came through in the clutch to surrounds big Hank Luisetti, the individual hero of the tournament.

A few days before the tournament a sports' writer wrote an article pleading the case of All-American Hank. The writer feared the fans would be expecting too much of Hank and asked that the fans be lenient on him. And if he failed, why, he is only human and not a super-man. Five or six points should be enough to expect of Luisetti as an average

So let's look now and see if Big Hank needed a defense ing golf-enthusiasts out of studattorney: He scored seventeen points in the first game, twenty-eight in the second, slipped to a mere twenty-two points as he practically defeated Seattle single-handed in the final quarter and he didn't play the last twelve minutes. In the semi-finals he was held to eleven points, but his team won. And in the final game he scored sixteen points, while playing a gallant game in his team's defeat. A huge hole was cut in his right shoe to release a tormenting blister that links, the Park Board has requestpractically slowed him to a walk.

On top of all this, Angelo (His real name) was so ill with the flu before the tournament started that it was doubtful if he would play.

No, on second thought, I guess we needn't sympathize with Hank. Rather, maybe, we better take off our hats to the greatest player basketball has ever known.

Prediction for the day: The rookies will decide the intramural championship.

Established players such as Hendry, Hunt, Ryan, and Mc-Kay of the Misfits are practically a cinch to come through, but if they are to win the pennant three rookies have to come through. Hardiman at third, Janikula at first, and up with an outdoor driving range box to lead the Tramp hitters. Doran in the outfield hold the Key to the Misfits' chances. If they come through the team of Hendry is set, if not, they and expert instruction for only are due for trouble.

English, Heltenbrand, Stapleton, and McKillop are all known qualities for the Knights. With these players the I. seventy cards issued so far and K.'s will be fairly strong but if they hope to cop the bunt- several students have already used ing four rookies have to come through.

Bob Mahaney, Fritz Verscheuren and Joe McArdle in the outfield, and Tom McCann at first must click if the Knights are to be in the running.

These instructors, which are being handled personally by Mr. Hoagland at the college, include the physical fundamentals of golfing and also the general rules for playing the game.

The golf classes here at Seattle College have been very well attended so far, and since "pro" instruction is being received free there is no doubt that the interest will continue. #### Softball Board Announces Rules

The rules governing the intramural softbail league aren't many but the few there are must be adhered to if the league is to run smoothly. Following are the rules:

1. No team can pick up more than one ball player per game to fill in. If the team is still lacking players they must start with less.

2. No team can pick up the same player to fill in more than two games. 3. No team may use a new player until he has been signed and his

4. In case of argument or protest over any game it is to be decided by a board composed of the captains of the four teams and editor of the sports page.

5. No cases of protest will be viewed as to a decision by an umpire. His decision is final.

6. If any team picks up a ball player when he has a complete team he could use, it will result in forfeiture of said game. This is to prevent picking up ringers while making players not quite as good sit on the bench.

It lays the blame for the persecution of the Church in Germany squarely where it belongs; and it calls upon the world to witness that, while the Church was faithful to its every obligation, "to change the meaning of the agreement, to evade the agreement, to empty the agreer all its significance, and finally more or less openly to violate the agreement, has been made the unwritten law of conduct by the other party."

And lest we should think that such language was the product of haste or anger, the Pope assures us that "Every word of this letter has been weighed in the scales of truth and charity."

Victory for the Nazis would mean the triumph of a government virulently opposed to Christianity. And though the Church can never fail as a whole in this world, there is no guarantee that it may not be crushed for many centuries in any country. England was once a Catholic country; now for more than three hundred years it has been lost as a nation to the Church. The whole North African shore was once a flourishing part of the Roman Empire, rich in Christian schools, producing such men as Augustine of Hippo and Clement of Alexandria; today the blight of Mohamedanism lies, and has lain for centuries, over it all.

The armor of a Crusader might well sit very uneasily on Britain's government. But while fighting for its very existence, Britain is defending things and conditions which we want to keep, and opposing those that threaten us. It is defending (for instance) the conditions in which, while the Nazis are introducing sterilization, the House of Lords is throwing out mercy-murder; while Hitler is suppressing the last of the Catholic schools, Liverpool is being penalized for discriminating against them; in which, while higher education in Germany must be Nazified or perish, Jesuits are expounding the Papal Encyclicals in Ox-
