Rep. Stinson to Visit S.U. Classes Thursday

U.S. Representative K. W. (Bill) Stinson, Republican from Bellevue, Wash., will make an informal visit to S.U. tomorrow morning. The visit will be sponsored by S.U.'s Young Republicans.

Stinson will meet at 8:45 a.m. with Dr. Charles S. LaCugna, head of the political science department, Fr. Frank B. Costello, S.J., other members of the political science department, and John Fattorini and Bob Burnham of Y.R.'s.

He will discuss his impression of American government with the 9:10 a.m. political science class in Bannon 102 and with Sr.

Christopher's 10:10 a.m. class in the L.A. Bldg. He will give a short talk in each class, followed by questions and discussion. Interested students are invited to attend both sessions.

STINSON WILL conclude his visit at 11 a.m. in the Chieftain for pictures, interviews and discussion with the students.

"The Black Banjo", presented by the Pep Club and Town Girls, from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., Friday, in the Chieftain lounge and cafeteria will offer split level entertainment for the "uncertain person."

Upstairs music will be Dixieland style for the sophisticated set at S.U. The lounge will be transformed into a speakeasy night club with a floor show at 10 and 11 p.m. and midnight. It will feature Judy Guzzo, Sue Schumaker, Margie Byrne, Cec Montcalm and Jeff Susbauer. Waitresses will serve refreshments.

"THE STATICS," with Tiny Tony, "300 pounds of Twist," will help change the cafeteria into a "Roaring 20's" emporium-type Ballroom. Refreshments and girls, whom the bashful may ask to dance for a small fee of 2 cents are added features. Along with a marathon dance contest, a prize will be offered for the best costume at the dance.

Admission is $1 per couple. It is open to all S.U. students and all high school Press Workshop delegates, according to Dave Verron and Bernadette Carr, co-chairmen for the dance.

Fr. McCusker Suffers Heart Attack

Fr. Owen M. McCusker, S.J., S.U. English and Latin professor, was admitted to Saint Frances Cabrini Hospital Saturday morning following a series of mild heart attacks.

Fr. McCusker will remain in the hospital for a short time and then return to campus to recuperate. Visitors are not allowed in order to avoid unnecessary strain.

Social Sororities Face Oblivion

By MIKE PARKS

"To be or not to be . . . that is the question," or at least it will be when the senate meets next Sunday. Besides tackling charter approval for the Council of Seattle Colleges, the senate came up with a bill which would forever prohibit social sororities and fraternities on campus.

THIS ACTION, introduced by Senators Leo Penne and Mike Reynolds, is in opposition to the attempt by Suzanne Green, Sophomore, and a number of other S.U. coeds to establish an

S.U. chapter of Theta Phi Alpha, the only national Catholic sorority affiliated with the Panhellenic Council.

The bill states that since the university has not formulated a policy concerning such groups it is up to the students to decide whether or not they want groups of this nature on campus. The bill concludes that such groups should be banned mainly because they have no objective standard of acceptance as do the school's service sororities and fraternities.

The final judging for Glamour Magazine's "Best Dressed Girl on Campus" contest will be Sunday at 8 p.m. in Bellarmine Hall.

Sherry Doyle, Alva Wright, Sally Bauerlein and Mary Kay Owens, juniors; Christel Brellochs and Judy Beazy, sophomores, and Eileen Katica, freshman, are this year's semi-final candidates.

THE SEVEN GIRLS were chosen from a group of twenty in the preliminary contest last Sunday. Each girl modeled an afternoon dress or suit. The winners were chosen for outstanding personal style.

The contest's purpose is to select a girl to represent S.U. in Glamour Magazine's "Ten Best Dressed College Girls in America" contest. The ten winners receive a trip to New York in June and will stay at the Biltmore Hotel. They are to be introduced to over 1000 members of the fashion industry and will spend at least two days touring the cultural sites in New York. Their pictures will appear in the August, 1963, issue of Glamour.

THE JUDGES ARE Ann McQuarrie, Sharon Morrissey, and Mary Jo Shepard, AWS officers, and Caroline Cline, Tina Johanson and Theresa Jo Annotti, fashion board members. They will rate the candidates in their good grooming, figure, posture, make-up, individuality and appropriateness of dress.

S.U. Scholarships Available for 50

Full-time day students, having attended S.U. since fall quarter, 1962, are eligible to apply for approximately fifty university scholarships. Application forms can be obtained in the scholarship office, or at the registrar's counter after Feb. 15.

According to Miss Patricia Young, the executive secretary of the scholarship committee, a 3.0 cumulative g.p.a. is required. Students must submit a personal letter, a letter of recommendation from a recent instructor, their transcript and the application by April 1, 1963. No application will be considered after this date.

ALL SCHOLARSHIP applicants must take the General Culture Test on April 5, at 1 p.m. in Pigott Aud.

Interracial Justice Topic For Panel Discussion

Two Seattle delegates to the recent National Catholic Conference on Interracial Justice will join four S.U. faculty members in a panel discussion concerning the conference at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in LA 123.

MOTHER MARY Philothea Gorman, F.C.S.P., LL.D., Dean of the College of Sister Formation, and Sr. Marian Elizabeth Segrest, F.C.S.P., were the delegates who attended the Chicago conference Jan. 14-17.

S.U. panelists will include Sr. Christopher of the political science dept.; Fr. Nigro, S.J., philosophy dept.; Dr. Robert Larson, sociology dept.; and Robert Harmon, history dept.

The national conference was a cooperative effort of the major faiths in the U.S. to attack a common social problem. Dr. Martin Luther King was guest speaker at the closing luncheon of the conference. He voiced strong appreciation for the conference and made clear the American Negro's determination to achieve first-class citizenship status by non-violent means," stated Mother Philothea.

IN ADDITION to her duties as Dean of the College of Sister led the attack on the constitution of the Council of Seattle Colleges which eventually led to its tabling. After three senators spoke in favor of the bill Sue took the floor and pointed out several inconsistencies in the constitution. She yielded the floor to Reynolds who continued the demonstration of the document's inadequacies.

However, the motion passed was to table, not kill the bill, thus leaving the way open for future action by the senate. It is expected that the CSC will go on working without the approval of the S.U. senate until a more acceptable constitution has been prepared.

THE SENATE unanimously approved Mike Reynolds as chairman of the Student Cooperation Committee and opened the way for delegates to S.U.'s Press Workshop to attend the mixer Friday night.

Standing rule 18 was suspended on two occasions. Jim Preston requested the first suspension which allowed the senate to give new coach Clair Markey a vote of confidence. The rules were also suspended to approve the ASSU contract with the Four Freshmen, who will appear on campus Sunday, Feb. 24.

Kill It . . .

Kill it before it spreads! This zealous attitude of "aginnners," which always finds its most avid support among freedom fighters of various types, has been adopted by members of the student body and senate. True to form, it is misdirected and illinformed.

THE BILL introduced in the student senate last Sunday is aimed at the prohibition of "social" sororities and fraternities at S.U. Its specific aim is to stop the formation of a group by a number of S.U. coeds. Contrary to popular rumor, however, the girls do not intend what the bill is supposed to prevent. They originally planned to form a group which could be called upon to give service to the school when needed. Their main concern was to avoid intrusion into the domain of the Spurs. The Spurs know better than anyone, however, that there is hardly a shortage of work.

We believe that it is just as important for the student senate to offer direction and advice to the students who have proposals as it is for them to play watchdog. In any case they should not try to stamp out sparks of life without thoroughly investigating the evidence.

WE DO NOT intend that this statement of ours be construed to support the Greek movement in general. Historically speaking, there have been many ill effects of this system. Many schools are de-emphasizing or disbanding sororities and fraternities. What we do stress for the senators and the students who have become engaged in this controversy is that the Greek system as such is not the matter at hand. Had the senators looked deeper they would have discovered this.

The real problem is that legislation is being proposed which is not only unneeded, but is largely built on hearsay and emotional palaver. In all fairness, a group which proposes an idea or a plan should at least be given the courtesy and consideration of an intelligent inquiry before it is squelched.

Prudence dictates that public action be taken only as a last resort. The events of last Wednesday and Thursday should have illustrated this abundantly.

FORTUNATELY we have Standing Rule 18 in the senate's rules, which necessitates that legislation of this sort be held off a week before final action. We hope that by next Sunday the senators will have a clearer picture of what is going on.

Weapons Do Not Control Events

By JIM NAIDEN

Last Monday evening Dr. Alain C. Enthoven, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense in charge of systems analysis, gave a lecture on "U.S. Defense Policy in the '60's" in Pigott Aud. Enthoven was introduced by Fr. Edmund Morton, S.J.

ENTHOVEN'S lecture centered on the theme of constant preparedness and the necessity of continuing limited wars. Total war, Enthoven said, is possible, but "the general belief is that all wars can and should be limited." In other words, the weapons must not control the events. The "firebreak" principle—the actual outbreak of war itself—must be the main factor in averting war. In addition, Enthoven emphasized the fact that "fire-break" is a recognizable and qualitative distinction in limitation of arms.

The system of the U.S. defense policy rests on options.

This is to give the President a range of choices most favorable to circumstances. Briefly, our policy is based on strength, not weakness. The policy requires a reserve in case of nuclear war. Furthermore, the principle of judicious control must be the first criterion in using military force.

THE PROCUREMENT of functional faculties such as an air-borne striking force, civil defense facilities and a top civilian command post that will be able to "ride out"—or survive—a nuclear war. As to civil defense, it is necessary in order to limit the effects of radioactive fallout.

Enthoven concluded his lecture by asking whether or not the traditional Christian concept of humanitarianism in warfare is still absolute. He held that it is; however, as we do live in a nuclear age, we must maintain a system of variables—that is, a wide range of choice—so that a nuclear striking force is only one of the many alternatives in the whole spectrum of possible weapons.

AFTER THE formal lecture, there was a question and answer period. Enthoven could only give general answers to the questions, but he did his best to satisfy the eager minds in the audience. He stressed again that the "fire-break" concept includes the role of military reserves in the defense system.

Enthoven also stated that the future of our allies is inseparable from our own. Our interest is interdependent with theirs: the maintenance of peace and freedom. DeGaulle, for example, cannot exist as an independent because he is dependent upon his Western allies for the sustenance of his defense.

Sino-Indian Policy Re-evaluated

Sounding Board is an opinion column which is open for student comment pertaining to issues on the campus, local or international level. The opinions are personal and in no way reflect the policy of the paper or the

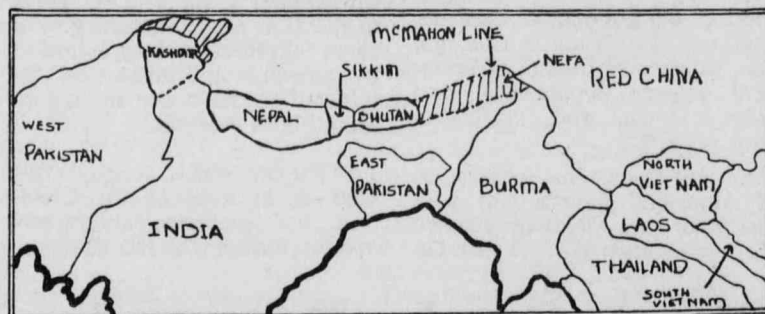

By PETER LEE

The article in The Journeyman by Mathews Azikakath stirred me so much that I feel it necessary to refute some of his attitudes toward China. Since we are all in the same boat dealing with our fatal enemy, the Communists, we should show sympathy toward each other. Like all the freedom-seeking Chinese people I would not tolerate any communistic policy that brings disgrace to the Republic of China, founded by Dr. Sun Yat-Sen in 1911 after many bloodsheds and failures. However, I feel that I have the responsibility to reveal to you, my fellow students, that the policy of China has been misconceived both in the past and the present periods.

The historical Sino-Indian border dispute had existed long before any one of us came into being. The establishment of the McMahon Line, named after the Minister of the British Foreign Affairs in India at that time, was never officially recognized nor were any contracts signed by the Chinese government. The inhabitants of the NEFA region are obviously not of the Indian race. The two small states, Sikkim and Bhutan, originally parts of Tibet, which is also a province of China, were made British protectorates until the independence of India in 1947.

I AM SURPRISED that Mathews didn't mention anything about McMahon. Would Sir Henry McMahon have failed to observe Her Majesty's service and betrayed India? The answer is absolutely negative. The British interest in China in the late 18th and 19th centuries is known as history. The major conflict of last September started as a result of Mr. Nehru's instruction to use force to drive the Communists out of the Indian Ideal borderline. According to Jay Watz of the New York Times on Nov. 3, the Communist army didn't cross the McMahon line at all. The heavy losses of the school. The Spectator asks that the column be type-written in a maximum of 500 and a minimum of 200 words. We reserve the right to shorten as space permits or hold for future editions.

deficient Indian Army were because India trusted the Communists. They preferred the Russian MIG jets rather than America's aid. Who is to blame?

China has been exhaustively engaged in both domestic and foreign affairs. The period after the Revolution of 1911 was just developing and still unstable. The rise of the Communists and World War II put thousands and thousands of Chinese people under unstable conditions. Hence, the Chinese government had to put aside less immediate problems such as the Sino-Indian bone of contention. This answers Mathews' statement that the border was not challenged before the Mao regime came to power.

THE SPIRIT of nationalism is advocated everywhere. India's surprise take-over of Goa, a Portuguese colony for four hundred years, was to demonstrate the corruption of colonialism, yet India eventually followed the McMahon Line—a symbol of colonialism! India's dispute with Pakistan over Kashmir is another good example, but this is none of our business. The Chinese people are never aggressive. There are Chinese communities in every corner of the world, their contributions to the local government have been impressive; for example, the Philippines, Thailand, Malaya and others. Should Mr. Nehru turn his rancor to those innocent overseas Chinese residing in India?

Since India has no room for the Communists, then why has it repeatedly favored the admission of the Red Chinese into the U.N. for the past ten years? Why has Mr. Nehru always stood by the Communist community and against the West? What are the properties of neutralism.

OUR ANCESTORS have been cruel to one another; why should we follow that old bloody track? The history of human beings is equal—subject to morality. The past is just like the morning dew that is never to be found again. It is only through the love of God that people of different races can truly enjoy the significance of peace, mutual understanding and love without fear of wars. So let us pray that His justice be done!

Drill Team Flag Missing Needed for Sunday Show

Dear Editor:

I would like to bring to the attention of the students a theft which occurred in the Chieftain lounge last week.

The ROTC Drill Team guidon flag was stolen from its shaft where it lay unattended for about five minutes when the flag was discovered to be missing.

THE FLAG itself is brand-new. Hand-embroidered and custom-made, it cost the Drill Team $85, a substantial amount of its limited budget. In all probability, the person who now has the flag was seeking it as a souvenir and does not realize the seriousness of the theft.

The Drill Team has a television performance Sunday and it is imperative that the flag be replaced. Since there is only one of its kind and another would take months to acquire, this can only be done by the person responsible for the theft. The ROTC Department is willing to let the matter drop if only the flag will be returned.

IT IS a disgrace to S.U. that after devoting countless early morning hours to practice in order to carry the name of the school proudly through drill performances, the Drill Team should have its valuable equipment stolen.

Uninformed Opinions Form S.U. Image

Dear Editor:

As a result of the timely mid-season resignation of Vince Cazzetta, much of the publicity received by S.U. last week was, of course, unavoidable. Although this publicity will probably net Mr. Cazzetta another job, S.U.'s prestige was not enhanced.

One would think that the students of S.U. would wish to minimize the problem. But, as if things weren't bad enough, they deemed altogether fitting and proper to complicate the situation by publicly expressing their uninformed opinions on the subject.

WEDNESDAY evening, before any of the real issues were known, several thought it would be nice if someone were hanged in effigy. Though they were not at all sure who, if anyone, was in the wrong, Athletic Director O'Brien was elected. Soon, dummies bearing his name were hanging from the flag pole of the public library and at various spots on campus. Five students were apprehended by the police and films of the effigies were wired over every major T.V. station in the area.

It is interesting to note, in passing, that only a few short years ago, Eddie O'Brien and his brother, John, were virtually deified by the student body, as they established S.U.'s national basketball reputation. Obviously, their success was an extremely important factor in the quality of our teams since then, including this year's squad.

SHORTLY after the "hangings" a completely unauthorized pep rally was staged in the Chieftain for Cazzetta. Again, the omnipresent press was fully represented, and soon the news had swept the town.

Indeed, with Cazzetta's resignation coming at mid-season, some publicity was inevitable. But it is beyond me why the students found it necessary to intensify the controversy with their childish conduct until its importance reached a magnitude warranting a headline on the sports page of the New York Times, western edition.

HAD THE students who precipitated such incidents considered their ignorance of the situation, together with the probable consequences of their actions, much of the disgraceful publicity could have been avoided.

Rebound Record Aids Victory

By CHUCK OWEN

Over the weekend an inspired band of Chieftains who were "going all out for Vince" presented Coach Clair Markey with two fine victories.

John Tresvant led the Chiefs to victory Friday when he took everything off the boards but the basket, hauling down 40 rebounds.

This performance eclipsed the school's former rebounding record which was set by the Super Chief, Elgin Baylor. This feat is even more amazing in that the entire Montana team could gather only 36 rebounds. Tresvant also dumped in 24 points.

The Chiefs continued to run up the score in the second half, and after the final buzzer Jerry Tardie sank two free throws to give S.U. the 100 points that the crowd had been demanding during the last eight minutes of the game. The final score was 100-63.

Miles and Ernie Dunston followed Tresvant in the scoring with 20 and 15 points, respectively. Fiery guard Ray Lucien hit 13 to lead the Grizzlies.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S contest with the outmanned University of Pacific was similar to Friday's game in outcome, but not the sharp brand of ball played the night before. In spite of repeated mistakes and turn-overs, the Chieftains swept the Tigers off the hardwood 82-56.

Once again it was the overwhelming supremacy on the boards that led the Seattle attack. The Chieftains pulled down 70 rebounds to 33 for UOP.

Miles and Dunston with 20 points each and Tresvant and Williams with 14 apiece, paced the balanced scoring attack. However, high-point honors went to Pacific's Bill Wilson.

THE CURSE OF THE CAMPUS: NO. 2

As was pointed out last week, one would think that with all the progress we have made in the education game, something might have been done by now about roommates. But no. The roommate picture has not brightened one bit since Ethan Goodpimple founded the first American college.

(Contrary to popular belief, Harvard was not the first. Mr. Goodpimple started his institution some 75 years earlier. And quite an institution it was, let me tell you! Mr. Goodpimple built schools of liberal arts, fine arts, dentistry, and tanning. He built a lacrosse stadium that seated 102,000. Everywhere on campus was emblazoned the stirring Latin motto CAVE MUSSI—"Watch out for moose." The student union contained a bowling alley, a clock, and a 16-chair barber shop.

...and as for shaving, they didn't

(It was this last feature—the barber shop—that, alas, brought Mr. Goodpimple's college to an early end. The student body, being drawn from the nearby countryside, was composed chiefly of Pequots and Iroquois who, alas, had no need of a barber shop. They braid their hair instead of cutting it, and as for shaving, they don't. The barber, Tremblatt Follicle by name, grew so depressed staring all the time at 16 empty chairs that one day his mind finally gave way. Seizing his vibrator, he ran outside and shook the entire campus till it crumbled to dust. This later became known as Pickett's Charge.)

But I digress. We were discussing ways for you and your roommate to stop hating each other. This is admittedly difficult but not impossible if you will both bend a bit, give a little.

I remember, for example, my own college days (Berlitz, '08). My roommate was, I think you will allow, even less agreeable than most. He was a Tibetan named Ringading whose native customs, while indisputably colorful, were not entirely endearing. Mark you, I didn't mind so much the gong he struck on the hour or the string of firecrackers he set off on the half-hour. I didn't even mind his singeing chicken feathers every dusk and daybreak. What I did mind was that he singed them in my hat.

To be fair, he was not totally taken with some of my habits either—especially my hobby of collecting water. I had no jars at the time and just had to stack the water any-old-where.

Well sir, things grew steadily cooler between Ringading and me, and they might have gotten actually ugly had we not each happened to receive a package from home one day. Ringading opened his package, paused, smiled shyly at me, and offered me a gift.

"Thank you," I said. "What is it?"

"Yak butter," he said. "You put it in your hair. In Tibetan we call it gree see kidstuff."

"Well now, that's mighty friendly," I said and offered him a gift from my package. "Now you must have one of mine."

"Thank you," he said. "What is this called?"

"Marlboro Cigarettes," I said and held a match for him.

He puffed. "Wow!" he said. "This sure beats chicken feathers!"

"Or anything else you could name," I said, lighting my own Marlboro.

And as we sat together and enjoyed that fine flavorful Marlboro tobacco, that pure white Marlboro filter, a glow of good fellowship came over us—a serene conviction that no quarrels exist between men that will not yield to the warmth of honest good will. I am proud to say that Ringading and I remain friends to this day, and we exchange cards each Christmas and each Fourth of July, firecrackers.
