Judiciary Act Passed By Rescheduled Senate

The new election code met with much questioning and discussion during the three-hour senate meeting last Wednesday. After nearly an hour and a half of discussion, the final decision on the code was postponed until Sunday's meeting. Mike Reynolds, author of the code, was among those in favor of postponement.

THE JUDICIAL ACT of 1963 was passed by an easy majority after a minimum of discussion. The bill sets up trial procedure for judicial board hearings and limits the jurisdiction of the judicial board. The senate also approved the constitution of Gamma Pi Epsilon and granted it an ASSU charter.

At its meeting Sunday, the senate will consider the tentative appointment of Mike Griffin as election board coordinator and an amendment to senate by-laws.

Editorial

Long Hot 'Winter'

An editorial demanding that Notre Dame University president, the Very Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, CSC, be replaced by a man who would devote more time to running the school has sparked renewed interest in the question of freedom of the student press.

DURING THE weeks that have passed since the controversy began at the end of March, the Notre Dame weekly magazine, the Scholastic, has operated in a state of complete pre-publication censorship by the N.D. administration. Cries of "tilt" and "foul" have arisen from various sources around the country. The Loyola News, of Chicago's Loyola University, angrily denounced the suppression of freedom of comment to start the ball rolling.

This week The Spectator attempted unsuccessfully to obtain an interview with Fr. Hesburgh during his brief visit in Seattle. We felt that the administration of Notre Dame should have an opportunity to state its views on the matter.

But even without Fr. Hesburgh's personal comments, there is no shortage of words. Another student newspaper has entered the fray . . . this time from N.D.'s own back yard. The Crux, from St. Mary's College at Notre Dame, has summarily repudiated the action taken against the Scholastic. The Crux editors' point is well taken: "Any time force enters the world of the mind it is a tragedy for the academic community."

"IT WOULD SEEM," they continue, "that an institution which strives to mold the individual and to develop true intellectual potentialities, student interest, initiative and action would view serious student criticism and comment as signs of growth to be nurtured. The answer . . . would mean recognition of Webster's adage: 'I may not agree with what you say, but I still fight for your right to say it.'"

In a letter which Fr. Hesburgh sent to students and their parents during Easter vacation, he called for an end "to our Winter of discontent." He went on to explain that "faculty and students (are not) equal partners in the educational process here . . . nor do I consider student leaders to be makers of broad university policy or wielders of pressure except in their own domain."

WHILE WE wholeheartedly agree with Fr. Hesburgh's position as stated, we believe that the treatment of the Scholastic goes far beyond the necessary limitations of student subordination. We side with the two students from N.D. who cancelled their Scholastic subscription and turned to reading the Crux because of "the unfortunate circumstances surrounding the intellectual demise of what had become the only voice of student thought at the University of Notre Dame."

The pre-publication censorship has destroyed both freedom and responsibility in student expression. If there is not freedom to err, there is no freedom. If God had given us freedom only to follow His commandments, we could not gain heaven by avoiding sin. Likewise, there is no responsibility for actions which are carefully scrutinized and approved before they occur. As the Crux put it: "Administration criticism after the fact, yes; censorship before the fact, no."

Gonzaga U. to Open Italian Branch

Students from more than 20 U.S. universities and colleges have applied to attend Gonzaga University's branch in Florence, Italy, according to Fr. Neil G. McCluskey, S.J., who will head the school, scheduled to open this September.

The program will combine two semesters of academic work with a year's residence in one of the great cultural centers of the world. The faculty will consist of Gonzaga faculty and of professors from the University of Florence.

THE MINIMUM 12 hours of course work will be taught in English, but each student will be expected to audit or take for credit one course taught in Italian at the University of Florence. Special language instruction and tutoring will be provided.

A concentrated course in conversation Italian will be offered during the school's summer session, June 17-July 26, 1963.

English instruction will be available in art, art history, English literature, European history, music, mathematics, philosophy, theology and Italian. Students may also choose from the several hundred courses offered in any one of the 13 schools of the University of Florence.

The Studentato Universitario, under the direction of the Florentine Jesuit Fathers, will be the Gonzagan "center." Women students will room at the Istituto Sacra Famiglia, the neighboring university's women's residence directed by an order of Italian Sisters.

COURSES IN ENGLISH begin September 30. Three-credit courses will be given in two 75-minute periods, Monday through Thursday, leaving the other three days of the week free. Course work at the University will begin in mid-November.

By special arrangement with the Italian State University of Florence, Gonzaga U. students will be enrolled simultaneously in the Università di Firenze and will enjoy all the privileges and rights of Italian students.

The basic requirements for application are reasonable health; a 2.5 minimum g.p.a.; sophomore standing for the fall semester, 1963, and approval by the director and committee. (Non-Gonzaga students must also be recommended by the academic head of their home institution).

CARL SANDBURG, by Harry Golden. (World Publishing Co., N.Y., 1961), 224 pp.

By JAMES NAIDEN

An orthodox biography would be the usual factual, chronological litany of personal data interwoven with a forceful assurance that the individual described therein is important—"and you better believe it!" Harry Golden, the editor of the North Carolina Israelite, follows a different approach. That is, it is a different approach from the aforementioned convention, but in the same tradition as his best-selling books—Only in America, For 2c Plain and Enjoy! Enjoy! Golden has contributed a biography of one of his best friends: Carl Sandburg.

THUS SANDBURG'S story is told in a series of anecdotes, interesting escapades and recollections. The book has no logical or consistent organization, other than a general grouping of related topics.

Carl Sandburg is Golden's tribute to his friend as well as an important collection of essays and vignettes that help to ascertain Sandburg's valuable contribution. Golden describes Sandburg the poet, the historian, the Socialist, the musician, the Democrat and the humanitarian. For example, Sandburg was an active member of Eugene Debs' Socialist Party in 1908 and, according to Golden, took pride in the fact that the platform of the Democratic Party in 1960 was a good imitation of the one the Socialists had expounded over forty years before.

This "biography" brings Sandburg to the reader in many facets of his career. Golden describes Sandburg the biographer and historian—when the monumental biography of Lincoln (The Prairie Years and The War Years) was being written. And, as Golden relates, Sandburg rendered Lincoln as a great and extremely moral man, at heart a pacifist, but necessarily a realist, using expedient means to obtain the desirable end.

FROM SANDBURG the journalist, who covered and reported America as he saw it, evolved Sandburg the humanitarian, who described the Chicago race riots of 1919. Sandburg had been assigned by the Chicago Daily News to write a series of articles on the "booming" Negro population of Chicago. His articles on the ensuing fratricide were collected and published in a single volume. Golden points out that it is to Sandburg's "everlasting credit" that he understood the nature of the problem and that he was able to publish "the great new story of the century—the black man's demand for equality."

A quarter of a century later, Sandburg wrote in his syndicated newspaper column about the predicament with an evocative and pungent reminder to a wartime America: "The opportunity to progress, to better themselves economically, to share in the industrial, social, political and cultural life of America—these are the things that the American Negro seeks—and he can no longer be denied them. If the Negro is worthy to die with the white man, then he is worthy to live with him on terms of honest, objective equality."

Harry Golden is to be commended for this invaluable contribution to Americana. A conventional biography would have indeed been arduous to compile and write, if not tedious to read. Golden's style—that of collecting interesting little stories about Sandburg and interspersing them with his own "cracker-barrel" philosophy—is anything but boring. It is delectable material—to be read and reread—and savored.

Chiefs Rout Huskies in 12 Innings

By CHUCK OWEN

A pair of New Yorkers, Steve Wandzilak and Rudy D'Amico, provided the power and the pitching to lead the S.U. Chiefs to a 6-5, 12-inning win over the U.W. Huskies at White Center stadium yesterday afternoon.

IT WAS WANDZILAK's one-out single in the bottom of the 12th, that scored Harry Lambro from second to cinch the win for the Chiefs. D'Amico gave up no runs and struck out five in relief of Andy Erickson to get the win. The Huskies got to Erickson early. Tim McVey opened the first with a single, but was out stealing second. However, Barry Cole kept things going with a single. Uyebara lined a single to right field to send Cole to third and Gerard Stone brought him in.

In the second inning, Stu Thompson singled, went to second on a sacrifice fly and scored on battery-mate Jim Mueller's single to put the Huskies ahead,

2-0. Stone singled again in the third, moved to third on a single and a base on balls, and scored as Erickson walked Tim McAllister with the bases loaded.

Jerry Grundhofer, freshman second baseman, got things going in the S.U. third with a single. He advanced on a walk to Rich Kayla and scored on a single by Lambro. Neubauer walked and Glen Mattison sacrificed in Kayla to make the score 3-2 in favor of the "bad guys."

THE HUSKIES' fourth run came when Cole lined a single to center field, advanced on Uyebara's single and scored on Stone's third hit. The U.W.'s final tally came in the top of the seventh when Randy Ginsberg singled, went to second on a walk to Thompson and scored on a single by McAllister.

Down 5-2 in the bottom of the seventh, S.U. got all the runs back on one swing of Neubauer's bat. Grundhofer lined his second single to center field. Kayla walked and was forced at second by Lambro and then Neubauer lifted a pitch over the left field fence to drive in three runs.

IN THE LAST five innings, the Huskies touched D'Amico for only four scattered hits, singles by Uyebara, Thompson and Ginsberg, and a triple by McVey to deep center. After McVey's triple, D'Amico bore down to strike out Cole and end the only U.W. late-inning threat.

S.U.'s 12th-inning rally was led off by a walk to Lambro. Neubauer sacrificed him to second and Matison walked. This set the stage for Wandzilak pinch-hitting for Jerry Schatz to drop his single into left center bringing Lambro across.

D'Amico took the win for S.U. and Mueller, who went all the way for the Huskies, absorbed the loss. Mueller gave up 10 hits and struck out five, while the two S.U. pitchers gave up 16 and struck out nine.

Hunters, CCT'S: First Games Won

By DON SPADONI

The American League of S.U.'s intramural baseball program opened its season yesterday when the College Club Tavern blasted the Beaver Hunters 10-2.

In the C.C.T. win over the Beavers, it took the C.C.T.'s four innings to warm up. The Beavers scored first in the third inning when Jerry Sheehan was knocked in by Tom Weindl. The C.C.T.'s tied it up in the fourth when John Waggett scored Buzz McQuaid.

Then in the sixth inning the C.C.T.'s got hot and began a parade around the bases for nine runs. John Waggett again started the scoring by hitting a home run with one on and Nick Murphy homered with two men on base. Several other players contributed singles and doubles which added four more scores before the inning was over.

THE BEAVERS managed only one run in the sixth and at the end of seven the score stood 10-2.

In the second American League contest, the Tartars rolled over the Pioneer Squares 13-7. The victors scored four runs in the first inning to take a lead which they never relinquished.

The Tartars simply outscored the Squares, adding three runs in the second and six more by the seventh inning. The Squares mustered only five additional runs which were quite well spaced. The game was highlighted by Terry Dodd's homer which was made possible by two convenient errors.

Golfers, Tennies Play Here Today

S.U.'s golf and tennis teams are out to better their season records today. The golf team has been the winning team on campus this spring, having won six of its seven matches.

The only match it lost was to the U.W. in its first outing. Mr. Page, the golf coach, indicates the golfers are out for revenge. Today the team gets its chance when it meets U.W. and Oregon State in a triangular match at the Inglewood Country Club at 1:30 p.m.

The tennis team also is enjoying a winning season with a 4-3 win-loss record to date. Two of its three losses came in its recent tournament in Ashland, Ore.

Today at 1:30 p.m. at Evergreen in Seattle the team hopes to beat a Washington State team to get back on victory road after losing two of its last three matches in the recent tournament in Oregon.
