Maritime Theme Chosen

A maritime theme, "Port Seattle," will splash Jan. 29-Feb. 4 for the 1965 S.U. Homecoming.

Marge Passanisi and Tom Campagna are general co-chairmen for the event. Both are juniors.

MARGE said they hope to feature Joan Baez or the New Christy Minstrels as opening entertainment.

The Homecoming dance will again be formal this year. Men attending will be required to wear tuxedos.

The Homecoming game, to be played in the Coliseum, will be half price for S.U. students. Alumni will be given buttons or tags to wear and Marge said she hopes they will be able to sit in a special section.

NOMINATIONS for the Homecoming court will be in November.

Anyone interested in working on "Port Seattle" is asked to get in touch with either of the general chairmen.

The committee chairmen for the 1965 Homecoming are: Bob Ramseth and Paula Greenleaf, publicity; Steve Hopps, business manager; Bob Hendrickson and Terry O'Dea, dance; Sue Miltner and Roger Hennagin, alumni; Tom Teier and Pat Noonan, special events; Peter Shea and Sharon Schulte, entertainment; Andrea Bahlay and Dan Mahoney, news; Bill Eisiminger, band; Marcia Bianchini and Tom Harkins, art; Jim Davis and Mary Beth Kuder, programs, invitations and buttons; Mike Frahm and Mary Helen Whipple, games; Kasey Burkhard and Marnie Krielkamp, court; Mike Chastek and Anne Barragin, club displays.

Senate to Confer At Bellarmine Hall

The student senate will meet Monday instead of Sunday in Bellarmine Hall instead of the Chieftain.

The time of the meeting has been changed from the usual 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

THE MEETING was moved back a day because of the ASSU leadership conference this weekend. The meeting place was changed because of a law passed last year ordering that the meetings be held at various locations on campus in the hope of fostering more student interest and attendance at senate meetings.

The agenda is the shortest this year. New bills facing the senators ask a change in the Judiciary Act of 1963, a change of the name of a committee and an amendment to a senate standing rule.

GOP Hopeful To Visit S.U.

Lloyd Andrews, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, will visit campus between noon and 2 p.m. Monday. He will be in the Chieftain most of that time.

According to Tom Trebon, president of the S.U. Young Republicans, Andrews, who ran for governor in Washington State four years ago, will remark on his position and on the campaign.

The former superintendent of public instruction in Washington will meet students and answer any questions, Trebon said.

FOUR BILLS held over from last Sunday's session are on the agenda. They include: A bill asking that a committee be formed to study the problem of financing semi-academic activities with the S.U. administration, and a bill authorizing the treasurer to spend one-third of the ASSU parking lot revenue for maintenance.

Civil Rights Agenda Set

The ASSU civil liberties committee will initiate its program with a lecture by Ken McDonald, a Seattle attorney, Thursday.

McDonald's lecture will introduce the students to the civil liberties area and some of the problems encountered in it.

The committee was formed last year as part of the ASSU to educate and inform students on the problem of civil liberties and what part the college student must play in the struggle for civil rights for all.

Early in November a panel will explore the problem of academic freedom. This panel will include Fr. Frank Costello, S.J., academic vice president; Arval Morris, an attorney; S.U. faculty member, and two students.

EXTRA SLEEP
Remember that hour of sleep you lost last April when the state went on Daylight Saving Time? You will get the hour back this Sunday. Before you retire Saturday night turn your watch and clock BACK one hour. Officially, the time change comes at 2 a.m. Sunday when the time will become 1 a.m.

Dick Twohy Quits Senate Post; Legge Appointed as Successor

By MIKE PARKS
Dick Twohy resigned as a member of the student senate Wednesday.

Don Legge has been appointed by Mick McHugh, ASSU president, to finish the remainder of Twohy's term.

IN HIS LETTER of resignation

LITTLE MISS MUFFETS: The S.U. I.K. Sweetheart and her court of two princesses will be chosen on Oct. 28 from the three candidates above. Sitting pertly are: sophomore Kathy Albright, 20, freshman Tanya Fette, 18, and junior Jane Grafton, 20.

Vietnamese Journalist To Lecture Tuesday

The Honorable Tran Van Dinh, former Viet Nam ambassador to the U.S., will speak on the war in Viet Nam at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Pigott Aud.

According to Tom Bangasser, ASSU second vice president, "Since national elections are so close, it's a timely subject."

VAN DINH'S LECTURE is being sponsored jointly by the ASSU special events committee and the S.U. Guild.

At present Van Dinh is employed as a Washington correspondent for the Saigon (Viet Nam) Post, but he has recently been designated Minister Plenipotentiary and Consul General of Viet Nam to India.

PREVIOUS TO THIS appointment Van Dinh served as the Viet Nam ambassador to the U.S. in 1963, after Tran Van Chong, Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu's father, had resigned.

Van Dinh served in various posts from 1957-1960. During this time he was the Consul General for Viet Nam and the Minister Plenipotentiary to Burma. He has also served as an observer at the U.N. and at SEATO meetings in New Zealand, and on tours of Latin America, Europe, Africa, the Middle East and Israel.

MARK OF SUPREMACY: Very Rev. A. A. Lemieux, S.J., S.U. president, and Maj. Gen. William Garrison, commander of the 10th Army Corps, are seen with the Warrior of the Pacific trophy, symbol of marksmanship supremacy among national ROTC units. Gen. Garrison presented the trophy to S.U. for the second consecutive year in a ceremony Wednesday on campus. The bronze statuette was initiated by the University of Hawaii.

tion to Jim Picton, ASSU first vice president and chairman of the senate, Twohy said his duties as a prefect in Bellarmine Hall combined with his senatorial duties "are too extensive to allow me the best possible performance of both."

Twohy, a junior, was in his second term as a senator. He was first elected to the senate in May, 1963, defeating his opponent by a 103-vote margin. He was elected to his second term last May.

Legge, the new appointee, also a junior, was chairman of Club Open House for University Day last Sunday. Last May he missed making the final elections for the senate by five votes. An economics major from Los Angeles, he is president of the Yacht Club.

AS A SOPHOMORE, Twohy was chairman of the Frosh Orientation program for what is now the sophomore class. The required reading program for entering freshmen was begun under his guidance. This is the program from which the present voluntary reading program has evolved.

As a senator, Twohy was author of rules requiring attendance at senate meetings. He was also author of a plan last spring to revise the makeup of the senate. He has been one of the chief proponents of the Senate Passes Bill and has been among the more active and articulate members of the senate.

TWOHY SAID he thinks the senate needs to do more work in two areas. He said they need to work to improve relations with the student body in general.

"Students all over campus have been deliberately misinformed, I believe, to the disadvantage of the whole student body. I don't see how student government can continue on an intelligent basis unless we give our students access to all the facts in public issues," he said.

Though he decried his experience in the senate as "sometimes painful," he said he was glad to have had the chance to serve.

Job Fee Drop

A new procedure for securing part-time employment has been announced by Lt. Col. (Ret) M. J. Dolan.

The $2 fee has been eliminated. According to Col. Dolan, the $2 fee system was "too complicated and involved a lot of extra work."

Students interested in employment can check the bulletin board in the Office of University Relations in the L.A. Bldg. for details. Job opportunities will be posted daily, identified by number only, with a complete description of duties, qualifications and wage rates. No more than six students will be referred to any one job.

Graduate placement is also handled through the placement office except graduates of the Schools of Nursing and Education.

Colloquium Continues Readings Schedule

Gary Baldwin, a senior majoring in political science, will read his paper, "Some Notes on Freedom," at 8 p.m., Oct. 28 in the Chieftain lounge.

The paper deals with the influence of Hegel on the development of political freedom in the U.S. It is being delivered as part of a student political science colloquium, initiated last year.

ACCORDING TO Sr. Mary Christopher Querin, FCSP, assistant professor of political science, the purpose of the colloquium is to allow specially selected students and faculty to read papers on which they have done considerable research.

FR. WILLIAM O'Brien, S.J., will present a paper, "The Problem of Malapportionment," at the faculty colloquium Nov. 11. This paper is based on one by Fr. O'Brien that was published in the Yale Law Review in November, 1962. All junior and senior political science majors are required to attend the faculty colloquium, according to Sr. Christopher.

Northwest Annual

S.U. Students' Sculpture Chosen

By ED BRAGANZA

The number 50 proved golden for two S.U. art students last week when judges picked sculptures by Penny Gill and Sally Ostrander Whipple for display in the Fiftieth Annual Exhibition of Northwest Artists at the Seattle Art Museum.

Penny, a 1963 graduate from S.U., and Sally, a former S.U. student, both entered cast bronze sculptures done in the "lost wax" process in the Annual, which affords new and experienced artists alike an opportunity to have their works seen and bought. Their work, along with paintings and sculptures by over two hundred other artists, will be on display until Nov. 29.

THE S.U. ARTISTS started working in the lost wax medium two years ago when Mr. Marvin Herard introduced it in sculpture classes here. They found it less difficult than most other processes like welding, stone or wood sculpture and that the process makes it possible to get more detail in the final sculpture.

In creating a bronze with this process, a full size sculpture must first be formed from a special wax. Around this figure is molded a plaster-like compound. When the mold hardens, the wax is melted out and molten bronze poured in. The mold must be gradually chipped and scraped away after the bronze cools. The finishing touches are done with saw, chisel and file.

Penny's "Nightmares" depicts a group of five horses, clustered close together, in full gallop. She stated that the piece was more or less an experiment since it was her first sculpture over 25 pounds in size done in a solid casting. Its intricate design presented several problems in casting.

SALLY'S "After Ambrosia" is a stylized study of two characters from Matthew Lewis' 18th century novel The Monk. The sculpture shows the abbot Amrosia with Rosario at a critical point in the story. The primary problem, according to Sally, was integrating the two figures in one overall design.

Penny is presently secretary for the honors seminar office. She intends to teach eventually, after a year of independent study in Florence, Italy. Sally, busy raising a family, plans to finish her studies at S.U.

Penny expressed the opinion that the show did not quite live up to the standard set in recent years, but stated that the field of sculpture was well represented and dominated the show. Sally found the exhibit quite good as a whole, but disagreed with "what some of the artists were saying in their work."

Spectator Honored:

Paper Receives Highest Rating

An "All-American" honor rating was awarded to the Seattle University Spectator or by the Associated Collegiate Press.

The honor rating was for the second semester of the past school year. It is the highest rating given by the association. The judging is done by members of the journalism staff of the University of Minnesota.

THE "ALL-AMERICAN" rating was merited only once before by The Spectator, in the first semester of the 1961-62 school year. Jim Harnish was the editor that year. He majored in journalism at S.U.

This latest honor to the student newspaper gave it a clean sweep in collegiate ratings last year. It had been judged the best college paper in Washington State for 1963 by Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity. Later it received a "Publication of Distinction" award, the highest given by the Catholic School Press Association.

EDITOR DURING this most honored year in The Spectator's history was Patricia Weld, a journalism major. She was graduated in June and now reports for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

In the Associated Collegiate Press judging, The Spectator was given 3,440 points out of a possible 3,700. It received perfect scores in all areas of makeup, headlines and typography.

Ike Hospitalized; Truman Released

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's two living ex-presidents were in hospitals at the same time for a while yesterday.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower entered Walter Reed Army hospital here suffering from a painful cough and inflammation of the windpipe. He's expected to be hospitalized for seven to ten days with what is called moderately severe tracheobronchitis.

It was nine days ago that a fall in the bathtub sent former President Harry S. Truman to the hospital in Kansas City, Mo., with two cracked ribs and a banged-up right eye. He was able to leave the hospital yesterday.

The developments forced both former presidents to miss attending the memorial services for another ex-chief executive, Herbert Hoover, in New York City.

Experiment in Freedom

The National Catholic Reporter, a new experiment in Catholic journalism, will go to press with its first issue tomorrow.

The new paper is an outgrowth of the Catholic Reporter, the diocesan paper of Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo. It will be produced and edited by Catholic laymen who staffed the diocesan paper.

A CATHOLIC REPORTER article describing the venture said, "Though 'Catholic by inspiration,' the new paper will have no formal ecclesiastical affiliation, and thus will have greater freedom in commenting on both Church affairs and issues of state. But a strenuous effort will be made to report the whole spectrum of opinion and to present opposing views fairly."

The new weekly should prove to be a valuable addition to the reading list of anyone who wishes to be well informed on what is going on in the Church, Catholic or otherwise. The fact that it is free from the control of the clergy should add to its attractiveness.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are $6 a year and available by writing to the National Catholic Reporter, P.O. Box 1037, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Dr. Kinerk:

Memories of a Man in Love With Life

By MONICA HILL

St. Joseph's Church, by no means a small one, was not big enough for Dr. Harry Kinerk. His rosary and funeral left hardly standing room.

Who was this man whom people, perhaps for the first time, consciously discovered they loved?

I stress "consciously" because he himself, totally uncontrived, could not have engendered deliberate regard. It was not so much being impervious to the "careful, discreet" approach—you have to be aware of something before you can be impervious to it. He just didn't seem to know that people can contrive.

PERHAPS THIS IS just another way of saying that for "Doc" superficialities didn't exist. He unconsciously zeroed in, whether it was a problem of complex theoretical physics or merely communicating with a lit. major.

"Dr. Kinerk, you've never met me," began a girl one noon in the Chieftain. "I'm the older sister of so-and-so who is a friend of your daughter's and I'm having a little trouble with trig . . ."

"Sure, sit down," he interrupted. "What's your problem?"

His lunch partner sighed knowingly at the professor's desertion and watched Doc absentmindedly slide his lunch sack over for paper on which to draw diagrams.

IT WOULDN'T HAVE surprised anyone to run into him on his hands and knees in the hall, using the floor as the nearest thing handy to figure out a graph for a perplexed student. Committee members expected him to wander in 20 minutes late—he'd "got in-involved" in something and forgot the time.

One morning he walked into his class, began drawing a few uncertain diagrams on the board and walked out. One of the physics majors joined him for coffee later and asked him why.

"I had something real important to tell you that I figured out last night, and forgot it, so I didn't want to waste your time pretending," he explained.

IF HE FORGOT to shave, it was because something much more important was on his mind. If he was absentminded, it was a mind absent only from the petty.

His science colleagues say he was a genius. It evidently did not concern him that he could make a more lucrative living in some vital research plant (and he had several such offers), he wanted to teach. And teach he did, to live in a new dimension where people are free from selfishness, hate, fear and greed."

Howard reveals in the book both the failures and needs of America. He also puts forth a dynamic remedy in clear, bold punches. Howard calls for more than a Sunday-only Christianity. He calls for a revolution of character.

THE BOOK'S central thesis is that this nation has built a strong military power, a strong economic power and a strong political system. But what America has neglected is the ideological warfare being waged against freedom. "I do not think that America as a gigantic do-gooder or as a gigantic one-worlder, is very effective," says Howard in Design for Dedication. "You fight the communists economically. You fight them politically. You fight them militarily if you must. But where is the common ideology shared by all free men which says to the Communist world, 'You are out of date; you are outmoded. We are going to put this world right far quicker than you can do it?'"

This book is a must for every student concerned with the question, which way America? It asks us about our own design for America and challenges us to be dedicated to that aim. It is a fresh look at freedom, outlining the goals Americans must seek.

with rare simplicity, clarity and professional distinction.

DR. KINERK'S death was as uncomplicated and as truly simple as his life. He couldn't have bothered with the technicalities of dying slowly. There were a million things to do yet (among them a trip with his wife and family to the Continent next summer). A life preoccupied with misery and death would never have occurred to him. He was too busy living, too busy giving.

This is just a part of the man who inadvertently sparked the capacity to live, to really care, in those many people at St. Joseph's.

WE MIGHT WONDER what he thought of this tremendous display of regard for him. I have a strong suspicion that he "got involved" and forgot what time he was supposed to be there.

Cobwebs

The Idea of an Academy

Bruce Weber

It has been brought to the attention of the columnist that the first (it was hoped by many that it would be the last) "Cobwebs" lacked the essential element of final causality.

Not having even the vaguest idea what final causality was, the columnist found it necessary to do considerable research on the origins of this formidable concept.

HIS SEARCH took him back to 386 B.C. to an olive grove on the outskirts of Athens which was known locally as "the Academy." A group of professional malcontents was gathered here to discuss whatever abstraction each thought the other would not be able to understand:

"What about final causality?" asked the Master when there was a lull in the conversation.

"I THINK that everything has some," answered a bright, young pupil of his.

"Everything?"

"Indeed, I believe it to be so."

"Even the Idea?" asked the Master who tired quickly of talking in concrete terms.

"I don't think I can accept the concept of the Idea," said the pupil, who saw the trap and deftly avoided it.

The Master tackled a new course: "What is the final cause of cobwebs?" He made no attempt to hide his self-satisfaction.

"THE SOLE FINAL cause of cobwebs is to entertain. When a certain creature in the animal kingdom has nothing better to do, he weaves cobwebs. He is trying to ensnare any other creatures or to comment on the meaning of life through his art form. He is merely trying to amuse himself and create something which others can enjoy."

THE MASTER was dumbfounded. His pupil had a different, more systematic philosophy than he. If left to his own devices, he would probably outshine his Master. So the Master persuaded the young Aristotle to stay and teach at the Academy where he could remain under the Master's watchful eye.

History has this lesson for today's generation: If you find no final cause in cobwebs, the only solution is to brush the cobwebs off your mind.

Focus - Elections '64:

A Fool Won't Change His Mind

Editor's note: Focus—Elections '64 is a series of personal opinion articles on local, state, and national politics. Articles from students and faculty are encouraged. Maximum length is 500 words.

By ROY ANGEVINE

Soon we must decide who will lead our country for the next four years.

But, what does it mean "to lead?" John F. Kennedy, when still a senator, asked the following question: "Are we to be a seismograph of public opinion or are we to base our decisions on the correctness of the thing?"

THIS IS A good analogy. We must recognize that the elected leader is not to be a mere computer. The word "lead" connotes going in front of or directing people. The last thing it implies is blind acceptance of what others are doing. In fact, the latter is a definition of "to follow" rather than "to lead."

It can be appreciated that the average man cannot have access to all the facts nor time to digest them in order to make wise decisions. It is for this reason that we have a representative government.

WITH THIS in mind, let us look at the candidates' leadership ability. Of the two, one is accepted as a master politician, the other as indecisive and irrational. The master politician's leadership abilities appear to be quite good; he is always ahead of his followers. In fact, though, he is merely determining, through public opinion polls, which way the crowd is going and then running in front of it.

IS THIS LEADING or following? Is he, with the resources and assistance afforded him, making prudent decisions for the country to follow or is he merely following what the uninformed masses think they want, thus keeping himself popular?

MANY S.U. STUDENTS have to dedicate much of their time to the sciences, and consequently are not as completely exposed to the humanities and liberal arts. The honors program shelf is a potentially extraordinary guide for all students.

Therefore I would like to know why this avenue of guidance for our own study is closed, since I find this hard to reconcile with the purpose of our University.

Ray Mikelionis

A Poor Job of Research

To the Editor:

In reply to that glorified book report of None Dare Call It Treason that appeared in last Friday's Spectator, permit me to add the words of the National Committee for Civic Responsibility. This committee is a non-partisan group that has been formed to "expose the use of calumny and deception" in political campaigns.

After carefully studying the 818 pieces of "documentation" that appear in this book, the committee has come to the conclusion that it is "at best an incredibly poor job of research and documentation and at worst a deliberate hoax and a fraud."

It is truly unfortunate that the fruits of this study will not reach all those who have read this book.

Fubars Coast to Win; Frosh Muffle Riflers

By MIKE McCUSKER

The Fubars coasted and Frosh 101 rallied to intramural football victories yesterday at Broadway Playfield.

Charlie Fox tossed four touchdown passes as the Fubars (1-1) stacked up a 32-7 decision over the Chieftain Riflers (0-2). George Meno quarterbacked a second-half comeback as the Frosh (1-0) dealt Bad News their second defeat 13-7.

JOHN ALDERMAN engineered Bad News to a 7-0 halftime lead with a 5-yard scoring dash and an extra-point pitch to Jim McKay. A Frosh drive was stopped at the goal line by a 15-yard penalty.

The Frosh took charge after halftime, moving to their opponents' 3-yard line before giving up the ball on downs. But Butch Hrnicek got it back with one of his three pass interceptions, and Meno carried over from the 5.

A late-game interception set up the final score, a 10-yard toss from Meno to Dave Furinella. Milo Walker caught the conversion pass.

IN THE OPENER, Fox fired the Fubars to an 18-7 halftime lead. He hit on payoff passes to Rich Corville, Ray Smith and Phil Sweeney, contributing a 50-yard scamper to the latter drive. The Riflers' only score came when Bill Dick caught a 5-yard pitch from Mike Paradis. Rick Houser registered the extra point on a pass.

Fox added a 5-yard score in the final period, then concluded the conquest with a short pass to Corville. Bob Basom, whose 60-yard first-half touchdown play had been nullified and followed by Smith's score, posted the extra points.

This afternoon the Spartans face the Beavers and Red Onions play the Alpha Kappa Sighers, both games at Broadway.

Contest Winners Use Imagination

Cheri Smith, sophomore, and Bruce Weber, senior, split first prize for selecting the slogan in the Spirit's booster pin contest.

For the winning slogan, "Scalp 'em," the pair won $5 each and a membership in the Spirits. The contest, sponsored by the Spirits, was intended to produce a slogan for bumper stickers and booster pins for the Chieftains.

The Chieftain booster pins and stickers will be distributed at no cost to all students and season ticket holders. Kirk's Pharmacy is providing the stickers and pins, and distribution will be by the Spirits on Nov. 1. The date also marks the opening of the Spirits' membership drive.

Matthews Ready for Action

By DON SPADONI

When Rick Matthews dons his uniform for the basketball season's first game and his third season, he will once again be realizing a long-time ambition.

Ever since the 6-foot-1, 180-pound guard was old enough to watch his uncle play for S.U. in the O'Brien era, he has aspired to be a Chieftain. Matthews used to go to the Chieftains games during his high school days, when he could sneak in free.

DURING HIS freshman year Matthews was a fairly regular starter on the Papoose squad, scoring about six points a game. Last year, Matthews was determined to make the varsity team. He did make the team, but didn't play as much as he would have liked.

Matthews says, "I have always wanted to go to S.U. Whenever I thought of playing basketball, I always thought of S.U. as being the big time."

IN HIGH SCHOOL, Matthews was a precocious player. He was starting on a good varsity team at O'Dea High School in Seattle while he was still in his sophomore year. Matthews was consistently good for about 13 points each game in his O'Dea career.

Matthews spends long hours practicing his shooting and he worked all the past summer on ball handling. His determination to be the best player he can be is shown by his amazing record of never having missed a practice while at S.U.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of his fortitude is the fact that he has the best time for the cross-campus run initiated by the coaches at the beginning of this year's practice. Although Matthews is not the fastest man on the team, he is one of the best-conditioned.

There is a lot of competition ahead for the scrappy guard this season, but Matthews will be just that much more determined to get to the top. Matthews is the type of competitor one would expect a red-headed Irishman to be.

MATTHEWS IS as serious about his studies as his basketball. He is majoring in commerce and finance and maintains a 2.4 g.p.a. He spends much of his spare time reading. His hobbies include listening to jazz and watching television.

The S.U. junior says he hasn't decided on a particular area in the commerce and finance field. He plans to earn his diploma, however, as soon as possible which will be in about two years.

In the next few weeks there will be a quiet but determined player to watch in the S.U. gym. He will be shooting, dribbling, running, shooting, dribbling and running some more until he finally achieves his goal—to be as good as possible.

Why Pay Twice?

You already pay taxes to support a generous federal-state medical program for those over 65 who need it. Why pay again for a plan that isn't needed?

Surprised? Chances are you never heard of the Kerr-Mills Law, passed by Congress in 1960. We call it...Health Opportunity Program for the Elderly.

This program enables individual states, with federal assistance, to guarantee to every elderly person who needs it the health care he or she requires. Thousands of people every day are being helped by its broad benefits.

Yet, the supporters of the proposed Medicare Tax would have you believe that its passage is urgent...that persons over 65 are deprived of needed medical care because they can't pay for it.

So why pay twice? Find out about the health program you're already supporting. For information on health care for the elderly in your area, ask your doctor.
