ASSU President Becomes Father

ASSU President Larry Inman became a father at 4:45 p.m. Wednesday. The heir apparent is a girl, weighing in at 7 pounds, 12 ounces.

The mother, Bonnie, is in "great condition" at Swedish Hospital, the elated chief executive reported yesterday.

"She's really a cute kid," Inman said, as he viewed the be-ribboned bundle during visitation yesterday. "This has been the most exciting day of my life."

The baby girl will be christened Daneka, Bonnie said.

"I'm a little out of it today," Inman said, "I'd just come off work when I had to take Bonnie to the hospital. I was in the waiting room twelve hours."

Inman works an eight-hour night shift as a cadet patrolman for the Seattle Police Department, besides being husband, father, student, and ASSU president. For Inman, it will be a busy year.

Yesterday, grinning at a tinny beet-red face in a sea of blue blankets, Inman didn't care.

"She's really a cute little kid," he said again.

HEIR APPARENT: ASSU President Larry Inman visited his wife Bonnie and their day-old daughter in Swedish hospital yesterday. The newcomer was unappreciative of papa; she slept through the whole visit.

Carlos Raps Dixon: 'He Talks Too Much'

By RICK LABELLE

"The only thing I don't like about Aaron Dixon is that he talks too much . . . He's playing a dangerous game (because) he talks revolution and doesn't 'do' . . . You don't talk revolution—you act revolution. But I hope we don't have to fight, because nobody will win."

KEENO CARLOS, education director for the Central Area Motivation Program, spoke to the Education Club Wednesday night in the library auditorium about how a white man can deal with "gut" racial issues. The 30-year-old history professor teaches Afro-American history at Lakeside and Garfield high schools and the University of Washington. He is also contributing to the publication of a history of black Americans.

Opening his speech with the words, "I am me; accept me as me, please," Carlos described the growth of black pride and defied Caucasians to ignore the rise of black men. He charged that whites used to tell "blackie" to get into his place, but that "No longer will 'blackie' be getting into his place, because everywhere is 'blackie's' place."

HE ALSO maintained that all whites, by virtue of their heritage, are responsible for the lack of education for Negroes. To the members of the Education Club he warned, "If you go into the black schools, don't try to be a missionary. You're going there just because you need a job; we just need competent teachers."

Carlos asked the audience if they knew who George Washington was, and they responded with a show of hands. But when he named two other historical figures, no hands were raised. The two men were Negroes who had made significant contributions to our country. "See?" said Carlos, "You have been deprived, too." He added that Washington, who is loved as the Father of the Country, was a slave owner.

CARLOS cringed visibly when asked whether Christianity had been a tool of white oppression. His answer was that Christianity was the first in the process of brainwashing blacks, since it taught that men must obey and turn the other cheek to their masters—white masters. On the other hand, Carlos mused, religion has been helpful since slave owners allowed Negroes to congregate in churches, where they made plans for escaping the plantations.

Holy Spirit Mass Is Wednesday

The Mass of the Holy Spirit will be celebrated in St. James Cathedral at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, October 16. The faculty and senior class are required to attend, other University students are welcome.

The Mass will be celebrated by Father Robert Bradley, Father Patrick O'Leary, and Father Albert Haven. The Reverend Peter Chirico, a professor of theology at St. Thomas Seminary will deliver the sermon.

This year, seniors are not required to wear cap and gown. The faculty may robe at Cabrini Hospital Nurses' residence on Boren Avenue. The seniors and faculty will then form double lines, respectively on the south and north sides of Marion Street between 9th and Terry. no latter than 10:00 a.m. and enter the Cathedral together.

In order to make it possible for all to participate in this Mass, all university classes will be dismissed at 9:40 a.m. Wednesday, and resume at 1:00 p.m.

Today is the end of the U.G.N. drive. Faculty and staff who have not pledged should contact Mrs. Sullivan the office of Fr. John A. Fitterer, S.J., president of S.U.

Jerry Savage, Blind Student, Found Dead

Jerry Savage, a 1968 S.U. graduate and well known campus figure, was found dead in his dormitory room at Central Washington State College yesterday. Savage, who was blind, was doing graduate work in psychology.

A memorial mass will be offered for him today at 4:30 p.m. in the Chieftain Lounge.

Savage, who was a diabetic, graduated from S.U. with majors in sociology and psychology. He had received a renewable $2000-a-year grant to Central Washington State College from the Services for the Blind of Seattle.

Savage's widow, Maureen, resides in Tacoma with their six children, aged 13 to 5 years.

Savage was formerly sales manager of Frederick and Nelson. He later worked for Allied Stores as sales promotion manager, director of advertising and buyer. He applied for a job as retail coordinator for the Washington State Department of the Blind.

On the day he took his exams for the position, he was involved in an accident which claimed his sight. After the accident, with aid from Services of the Blind, he enrolled at S.U.

Farmworkers Set New Date

The United Farm Workers' appearance on campus has been rescheduled for Friday, October 18 at 10 a.m. in Pigott Auditorium. The Young Democrats and the Political Union are sponsoring the event. It had been originally scheduled for today.

O'Connell Sees National Primary in Offing

John J. O'Connell, Democratic candidate for governor of Washington, prophesied "the end of the traditional system of party conventions" before a pre-noon crowd of about 300 in Pigott Auditorium yesterday.

"The young people of today are not satisfied with the direction we have set as a nation, he said. "They are disturbed about a political system that is self-serving, sometimes double-dealing, definitely hypocritical, and too often not a channel of the wishes of the people."

Both national conventions this year marked the "failure" of the political system, O'Connell said.

"You get the feeling that you do not really have a choice," he said.

As a more equitable system, O'Connell envisaged conventions which would "winnow out" the top four or five candidates, which would then be submitted to the people in a national primary.

Speaking to a largely student audience, O'Connell had praise for what he called "this most exciting generation."

"I don't care about the beards or the beads, or the unusual things they do," he said, "I'm not even particularly concerned about pot."

"What I know is that this is indeed a magnificent generation. What we need so vitally today are leaders—and this is the generation that will supply them."

Getting down to campaign issues, O'Connell scored incumbent Republican Dan Evans for practicing "a plan of calculated deception."

"Nothing has happened in the past three years in Washington State government other than an 80% increase in state expenditures," he said.

"Where did all the money go? If we could see one exciting change, we might be satisfied; but we cannot."

O'Connell charged that Evans had not brought the full power of the state to bear in solving air pollution problems, migrantlabor conditions, an providing an equitable tax base.

He promised a strong state government which would become involved in these areas should he be elected.

"Too much of the power over our lives has gravitated to the banks of the Potomac," he said. "We have a right to govern our destinies by direct access to those who govern us."

NO POETESS. Sister Madeleine De Frees, no homey, simpering "poetess" but a powerful American poet of the first water, will read from her own work Sunday night at 8:00 in the Library Auditorium. (Photo by Lee Nye.)

Former S.U. Poet to Read 'Nick Damascus' Sunday

Sister Madeleine De Frees, whom many Seattle University Students and faculty will remember as Sister Mary Gilbert, SN-JM, will be on campus this Sunday to deliver a reading of her poetry.

Sister Madeleine has promised to read at least one poem which dates from her year of residence at Seattle University, 1965-66. This poem, entitled "Nick Damascus", is dedicated to Mr. Damascus of the Fine Arts Department.

Since leaving S.U., she has been teaching world literature, composition, and creative writing at the University of Montana at Missoula. This "less secluded atmosphere" has made my poetry more direct," she says; "Metaphors are more available."

Sister Madeleine has been writing for some thirty years, and is the author of a novel, Springs of Silence, and several volumes of poetry. Her short stories have appeared in Minnesota Review and Best American Short Stories '62. She has had poems printed in New Republic, Virginia Quarterly, Poetry Northwest, and Seattle University's Fragments.

The reading will take place Sunday evening, October 13, at 8:00 in the Library Auditorium. It is open to the public and admission is complimentary.

'Don't Let the Rain Come Down': Serendipity Singers Scheduled

Straight from The Dean Martin Show, The Bell Telephone Hour, Hullabaloo, and Hootenanny, the Serendipity Singers will arrive at SU Monday night for an 8 p.m. performance.

The Serendipity Singers plan a concert that will include "Pependity," their latest innovation. Pependity," is a 20 minute segment of film clips against a live sound track. The clips and sounds are mostly of the group and are changed constantly to stay fresh.

The Serendipity Sound emerged from the folk boom of 1963. It was originally classified as "folk/rock," but the Serendipity Singers have moved increasingly away from this blanket category.

In reality Serendipity was, and still is, presenting the music of the times. The sound today is hard, the lyrics are meaningful, and the music is complex.

Serendipity recently moved into a new phase of record production. In an ultra-modern 12 track recording studio, housed in an ancient Manhattan tenement, the group recorded their first album for United Artists.

"Love is a State of Mind" is a combination of original, self-penned material and songs written by some of today's most popular writers. The album says where Serendipity is now.

"We feel our music has a lot to say, but there are some things which can be said better in other ways, so we integrate topical humor, sketches, and other things into the act," says one of the Serendipity Singers.

The six males and two females of the Serendipity Sing-

LOOKING TO MONDAY: The Serendipity Singers bring Pependity and their new sound to Campion Monday. In an 8 p.m. performance the group will cover a variety of songs ranging from their earliest hit, "Don't Let the Rain Come Down," to selections from their new album, "Love is a State of Mind."

ers are not just members of a "group." They are eight separate personalities.

Pooling their musical knowledge and talent, the Serendipity Singers create the music of today.

The Serendipity Singers include Nick Holmes who used to be a rhythm and blues singer; Peggy Farina, a former singer in "The Angels"; and Mike Brovsky, a former folk singer. Joining them are Jon Arbenz, Lana Shaw, Bob Young, Tony Perry and Pat Cicchetti.

In their search for new ways to present their ideas the Serendipity Singers have created Pependity for their concerts. Their music has come a long way since their earlier hits, "Don't Let the Rain Come Down" and "Beans in Your Ears."

The Serendipity Concert will evolve at 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 14 in Campion. The price for the performance is $2.

Flu Shots:

Dr. Boisseau, physician of S.U.'s Health Center, announced that beginning today, students and faculty may receive their annual flu shots.

The charge for the shot is minimal, $.50 for students and $1.00 for lay faculty.

The Health Center, situated in the lobby of Bellarmine Hall, is open from 8 to 4:30 during the weekdays.

Natural Rivalry:

Huskies-Chiefs Come to Terms

By BRIAN PARROTT

Well, it's finally going to happen. The S.U. Chieftains will meet the U.W. Huskies on a basketball floor.

In a comment to The Spectator, Chieftain Head Coach Bucky Buckwalter felt that the advent of the U.W.-S.U. basketball series is going to do good things for the sport.

"As an independent, we have some pretty good rivalries, but this could develop into a hot one, something that might receive national attention.

"It's a good thing too for determining the city championship. Now that the U.W. is on our schedule along with SPC, there'll be more interest in those games. Seattle is quite a basketabl town; something like this will probably generate more interest in the rest of our schedules."

Asked what he might expect in any upcoming Husky-Chief encounter, Coach Buckwalter stated, "The Husky coach, Tex Winter, is a fine coach. There's just no doubt about it. I've known him for about ten years. Their basketball program is definitely on the way up.

"In the seventeen years or so that Tex coached at Kansas State, he's run just about every type of offense imaginable. Generally speaking, though, his teams bring the ball down not looking for fast breaks as much as we will. On the other hand, he doesn't run the type of control offense like some schools in the Midwest, Oklahoma for example, which passes the ball a hundred times before shooting. But he's a snake. You'd have to say he'll run anything against you he thinks will win."

Signing the contracts were athletic directors Ed O'Brien of Seattle and Jim Owens of Washington. The contracts call for home-and-home series both seasons.

The inaugural game will be at Hec Edmundson Pavilion Friday, Dec. 5 as a Washington home game. The two teams will play again on Friday, Jan. 2, 1970 at the Seattle Center Coliseum, the Chieftains' home floor.

Dates for the flowing season are Friday, Dec. 4, 1970 at Edmundson Pavilion and Saturday, Jan. 2, 1971 at the Coliseum.

The two teams have met on the varsity level only once before. That was in the NCAA Western Regional Championships in 1953, with the Huskies winning, 92-70.

SPORTS

U. W. Slides by Chiefs 3-1 in League Opener

By KATHY SEDLAK

The soccer Chiefs showed the U.W. Huskies that this season won't be all astroturf and sunshine as the Huskies slipped and slid by the Chiefs 3 to 1 Wednesday night at Lower Woodland Park.

At the opening whistle both teams came out running. The Chiefs looked great as they controlled the ball through most of the first period, but a fluke kick by Husky Joe Siebu scored the first goal for the U.W. just before the half ended.

After a quick but dry half-time, the Chiefs came out ready to retaliate. Mike Hurley tied the game with a beautiful shot past the Husky goalie. Coach McArdle commented, "They deserved that."

A few minutes later John Goldengay for the Huskies, reputed to be one of the better soccer players around, knocked in the second goal for the U.W. team. In the middle of the last half Rick Loucks kicked in the final Husky goal.

Despite the defeat, the Chieftain team must be congratulated for the way they stood up to the experienced U.W. team. The men constantly made good shots at the goal, and it was only the foreign-style defense of the Huskies that kept the Chiefs from scoring more than one goal.

The spark-plugs of the team so far seem to be Joe Zavaglia, Ed Robinson, Tom Yagle and "Lucky" Al DeLeo with their kicking and ball handling (or footing); and Mike Carney and Jim McDermott using their heads to keep the ball away from the Huskies.

The Chieftains next take on the Seattle Pacific Falcons in their first conference game Saturday, October 12, 2 p.m., at Lower Woodland Park.

Leadership Conference Begins Interviews Monday In Chieftain

Seattle University's Leadership Conference interviews will begin Monday in office number six on the second floor of the Chieftain.

The interviews will continue through October 24, conference co-chairman Tim Culbert said. It is necessary for everyone wishing to take part in the conference to sign up for the interview, he added.

CULBERT reiterated that this year's conference is entirely different from past years. Every S.U. student has the opportunity to take part in the development of the conference as well as the weekend itself, to be held in January. No one can go on the weekend trip who hasn't worked in the first stages of the program, he added.

In order for students to have their questions about the conference answered, Culbert, and his co-chairman Dan Evered, will visit the dorms next week during the dinner hour. On Monday, between 5:30 and 6:15, they will be in the lobby of Marycrest; on Tuesday between 5:30 and 6:15 in Campion's lobby; and on Wednesday between 5:30 and 6:15 in the lobby of Bellarmine.

ANYONE interested may talk with either Culbert or Evered at those times or in their office in the Chieftain. Culbert noted that commuter students particularly are wanted for the conference as they represent the majority of the student body. He said that the conference is aimed at them in particular.

'Resistance' Head Here

Dave Harris, 'Resistance' leader, will speak on campus Tuesday at 3 p.m. in the Library auditorium. Harris is in Seattle to participate in the Resistance Teach-In at the U.W.

Harris is a founder of The Resistance, which is a movement of radical anti-establishment groups. He was a former student body president at Stanford University, and is married to folk-singer Joan Baez. He begins a three year jail sentence in January for refusing induction into the armed forces.

Harris's appearance is sponsored by the Student Involvement League.

Final judging will take place at the dance, Saturday, Oct. 12, 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. in the gym. Miss Seattle, Miss Bellevue, Miss Issaquah, Miss Burien and Miss Everett will then select the Dream Man, who will be presented with a trophy and tickets for dinner at the Trojan Horse.

Paul Dauenhauer, executive director of the Miss Seattle Pageant, will MC the event. Advance tickets are $1.00; admission at the door is $1.25.
