Twilight vigil, film festival to begin war protest

A twilight peace vigil and a film festival dealing with war and peace issues are scheduled for today as part of S.U.'s participation in nationwide peaceful demonstrations against the war in Indochina.

Today's activities will begin with a 2:10 p.m. Mass in the Liturgical Center commemorating the students killed at Kent State and Jackson State universities during last May's demonstrations. Chaplain Fr. Joe Maguire, S.J., will speak on "What Lessons Have We Learned About War."

THE ASSU-SPONSORED film festival begins at 1 p.m. in Pigott Auditorium. Films will include "Why Viet Nam," prepared by the United States Department of Defense, "Viet Nam — How Did We Get In, How Do We Get Out," and "Hiroshima-Nagasaki," Columbia University's edited version of official Japanese footage of the atomic bomb sites. "Time is Running Out," produced by the May-day Tribe of Washington, D.C., will also be screened.

The peace vigil, sponsored by the ASSU and the Chaplain's office, begins at 8 p.m. on the Liberal Arts Building lawn. ASSU president Matt Boyle will read from the works of Fr. Daniel Berrigan and Rev. Martin Luther King.

Fr. Gene Delmore, S.J., assistant chaplain, will read Mark Twain's "War Prayer." Readings from the Old and New Testaments and a peace liturgy will also be included.

REMAINING HOMILIES in the "Catholic Attitudes Towards War and Peace" series this week are "Violence and the Christian," by Fr. John Schwarz, S.J., at tomorrow's 12:10 Liturgical Center Mass, "The Sermon on the Mount as a Preparatory Morality for Attitudes on War and Peace," by Fr. Phil Verhalen on Thursday, and on Friday, Fr. John Nelson, S.J., of Seattle Prep, with "Catholic Attitudes Towards War and Peace."

A SEATTLE area peace rally will begin at noon tomorrow at Fifth and Stewart streets. Organizers are urging peaceful protest.

Black speakers discuss theology

Ten black speakers will lecture on the Afro-American religious experience in a Judaean-Christian Origins class beginning today through June 1.

The speakers include eight ministers, one a former drug addict, another a Muslim minister and attorney, and two others from Portland and Detroit.

"THIS CLASS for sophomores and upperclassmen is an experimental section for research in using the construct of the Bible as a tool," said Louis Jeannot, instructor in theology and class teacher.

"Students ask if there is a black theology and, if so, what does it say about the Afro-American religious experience. Hopefully, students will pull together something of a definition out of their research that has to be done."

Co-sponsors of the visiting lecturers' appearances are the theology department, the Office of Minority Affairs and Special Services.

FOURTY-FOUR students are registered in the class with two-thirds from S.U.'s minorities. The one-hour class is scheduled at noon Mondays through Fridays in Room 222 of the Liberal Arts building. The public is invited to attend free, although seating is limited.

Rev. Fred Barnes, an S.U. theology graduate and assistant minister of the Church of Christ, will open up the visitors' series today with a lecture on "The Origins and Dynamic Development of the Black Religious Experience."

Rev. Leon Jones, area minister for the North Puget Sound Region of the American Baptist Churches of the Northwest, will speak Thursday on

"Folk Ways and Mores of the Black Church."

JOHN KEY, an S.U. history graduate student, will speak May 11 on "Atheism from a Black Perspective."

Rev. James Stewart, executive director of the Ecumenical Metropolitan Ministry, will speak May 13 on "Black Church, an Instrument for Social Change."

Minister George X of the Seattle Mosque, an attorney, will speak May 18 on "Practical Principles of Islam."

REV. ALBERT Cleage of the Shrine of the Black Madonna in Detroit, will speak May 19.

Brother Harry Robinson, whose religious program is carried six days a week on Seattle's KYAC, radio station, will speak May 20 as an authority on "Black Music and the Black Church."

William Hodge, a graduate of Morehouse University who is now completing his graduate studies at the University of Washington School of Social Work, will speak May 25 on "Existentialism and Black Religion."

REV. SAMUEL B. McKinney, pastor of Seattle's Mt. Zion Baptist Church, will speak May 27 on "Shades of the Black Church."

Rev. Aaron Johnson, associate pastor of Maranatha Evangelistic Center in Portland, will speak June 1 on "From Life in the Ghetto to the Black Ministry."

Flynn wins business honor

Dennis Flynn, S.U. March business graduate, has been named Outstanding Marketing Student in Washington State by the American Marketing Association's Puget Sound chapter.

Flynn was selected from candidates from 10 universities and colleges in the state.

HE IS the third business student from S.U. to win the award. Other previous S.U. winners were John Firlotte in 1967 and Mark Osborne in 1969.

A 1967 graduate of Blanchet High School, Flynn last year was president of Pi Sigma Epsilon, S.U.'s marketing fraternity, served as an officer of Alpha Kappa Psi, national business fraternity chapter, and was a member of the advisory board to the dean of the School of Business.

Midnight bomb scare empties Bellarmine

BELLARMINE RESIDENTS file back home after being roused from their rooms at 11:45 Thursday night following telephoned bomb threats. A series of calls beginning at 11:15 gave a countdown for a midnight explosion. Police searched the dorm until a few minutes before twelve and then joined the girls outside. At 12:15 officers gave the all-clear. It was the first time Bellarmine had been evacuated because of a bomb threat.

Luck of the Irish: coed Spectator editor

For the second time in three years, a coed has been named editor of The Spectator.

Kathy McCarthy, a 20-year-old junior in journalism, will be editor-in-chief of the student publication for 1971-72. The appointment was made Friday by Spectator adviser Fr. Francis Greene, S.J., and outgoing editor Don Nelson.

KATHY, who describes herself as a "moderately radical" supporter of the women's liberation movement, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCarthy of Portland, Ore. She was graduated from Marycrest High School in Portland in 1968.

Kathy is this year's managing editor. Previously, she was news editor, assistant news editor, and reporter for The Spectator. She has worked summers as a copy girl for the Portland Oregonian.

A FULL-BLOODED "Irish lass," Kathy is proud of her cultural heritage. She has made several trips to Ireland, sets her watch by Dublin time, enjoys bagpipe music, and confesses to knowledge of a few phrases of Irish. Her father is a native of the "old country."

Further editorial appointments will be made within the next two weeks, Kathy said.

In 1969-70, Patty Hollinger was the Spectator editor. She now is a reporter for the Highline Times, a suburban weekly. She was the first coed editor since 1965.

Fine arts week clicks into focus with photos

A one-man photo show, a Thalia concert and a student art show will be featured this week as Fine Arts Week continues through May 11.

Thalia will present a "Scandinavian" Musicales at 12:15 p.m. Wednesday in the Library Auditorium. The program will include a "Little Overture" and a "Concertino for Trumpet and Strings" by Riisager.

The overture will be conducted by Dr. Louis Christensen, chairman of the fine arts department. Frances Walton, S.U. faculty member, will be featured playing the violoncello in "Sonata for Violoncello and Piano" by Grieg. "Heartwounds" and "Last Spring" are also by Grieg.

THE CHIEFTAIN CHORALE will give a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in Pigott Auditorium. A reception will follow the performance.

Friday will mark the beginning of the student art show in the Stimson Room. The showing, which will continue through May 21, will be judged by Val Laigo and Marvin Herard of the fine arts department. Some of the exhibits will be on sale.

A program featuring student and faculty talent will be at 8 p.m. May 10 in Buhr 112. An "electronic music - slide show" will be among the selections. A reception will follow.

More 'oral tradition' . . .

"Too much has been left to oral tradition. More people need to know precisely what is expected of them," notes the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education on the question of rights and responsibilities in the university.

Ironically, Fr. Gaffney's desire to consider the Carnegie Model Bill of Rights and Responsibilities before attempting to enlist trustee support for the long-finished Student Bill of Rights will, in effect, perpetuate "oral tradition."

EVEN AFTER completion, the student bill's progress this year has had a "perils of Pauline" quality. After a month and a half in the faculty senate backwaters, it was passed (and misplaced) for five months before reaching the president's office—only to find that the winds of educational opinion had shifted.

The Acting President has said, first, that the Student Bill of Rights is too detailed for its purpose. It should be concise, he feels, in the tradition of the U.S. constitution's first ten amendments.

He would like to see procedural details now contained in the student bill incorporated in the student handbook or in University statutes rather than have them remain part of the rights bill itself.

SECONDLY, Fr. Gaffney feels that since emphasis has shifted to responsibilities as well as rights for all University members, it would be unwise to push forward a bill based on the American Association of University Professors model of four years ago.

Faculty, administration and trustees should indeed be included in a manifesto for the entire University. A concise statement, written in a "bill of rights" form, could easily be constructed after the Student Bill of Rights' guarantees have been incorporated into University "written tradition." The S.U. document need not retain its present title.

Should the Student Bill of Rights be scuttled in both name and substance, however, it might be understandably difficult to dredge another together student, faculty and administration team to hammer out the latest prototype.

THE AAUP ISSUED its model statement in 1967, with emphasis on student rights. Four years later, S.U. had the bill tailored to its needs. On this time table, we could reasonably expect an S.U.-oriented, Carnegie-based document by 1975—a grand total of eight years of continued "oral tradition."

By then, of course, a third group of educators may have decided that the whole "bill of rights" idea was way off base in the first place.

Travel promoter discouraged, gives SPC exchange student bid

by Kerry Webster

A Seattle travel promoter with a plan to "fill S.U.'s dorms" with foreign exchange students says he was so discouraged with his reception here, he sold his plan to Seattle Pacific College instead.

Amos Heacock, a former non-scheduled airline operator who promotes exchange visits between Japanese and American students, said he "couldn't even get in the back door" at S.U. with an exchange planned for this summer.

HEACOCK wanted to bring 144 Japanese students to S.U. for a three-day stay, during which they could observe an American university in operation, as well as absorb some American culture and history.

The stay would have been part of a three-week swing through the U.S. being made by the Japanese group.

WHILE THE GROUP was relatively small, and the planned visit short, Heacock said he hoped it would lead the way to longer sessions in the future.

"Eventually, I want to arrange full semester exchanges within the University of Hachioji," he said. "It would be a natural for S.U. with all its empty dorms."

HEACOCK arranged a meeting with Dr. William Guppy, acting academic vice-president, but said the conversation was "not productive."

"He wanted me to write a damned thesis before he would even consider the idea," Heacock said.

So Heacock went to SPC, where, he said, his plan was accepted after a half-hour consultation with Dr. William Rearig, Dean of Professional and Graduate Studies.

SPC WILL provide a three-day seminar on American culture, customs, and history, at a cost of $31 per Japanese student. Many of the Japanese will also be housed in the SPC dorms for the three days, for which they will pay the college.

Dr. Rearig told The Spectator he was still skeptical of Heacock's long-range plans, but accepted the plan "strictly on a contract basis" in order to pro-

Fund drive stands at $650,000, administrators report to faculty

by Don Nelson

The University's Stabilization Fund Campaign, aimed at assuring S.U.'s financial future, has netted $650,000 in cash so far, William E. Boeing Jr., said Friday at the spring quarter faculty meeting.

Boeing, co-chairman of the drive along with former S.U. President Fr. Albert Lemieux, S.J., was one of six speakers covering a wide range of topics at the gathering. Others included the Very Rev. Louis Gaffney, S.J., acting president, Dr. William Guppy, acting academic vice-president, acting alumni director Mick McHugh, William Adkisson, vice president for business and finance, and Fr. Ed Favilla, S.J., assistant director of admissions.

BOEING SAID that SFC teams are continuing to contact about 150 local firms, half of which have never contributed to the University before.

"In the last four capital drives, most of the gifts were given by a few people," Boeing said. "We decided it was necessary to enlarge the number of contributors. It's been difficult because of the financial situation in Seattle."

"But we are learning about S.U. in the eyes of the public, and this will make us stronger in the future."

ADKISSON NOTED that "the ultimate salvation of S.U. will be the Stabilization Fund Campaign."

"All private schools are in the same situation," he continued. "They have to re-examine programs and stay within their resources."

"We have been stretching our resources when we didn't have any to stretch, and resources are becoming increasingly scarce."

ADKISSON SAID, however, that the University is meeting the conditions "necessary to our continuing."

Through loan negotiations, Adkisson said, the University was able to establish a line of credit through June 30 of this year.

"Our creditors have required of us that we reduce our deficit," he said. "We have done this and we are confident of a renewal of credit."

Adkisson estimated a need of $225,000 in outside funds for next year, nearly $1 million less than this year. The difference will be made up by $200,000 cuts in the areas of administration and instruction, a $100,000 cut in funds for the library, and a tuition increase that is hoped to raise $500,000.

FR. GAFFNEY touched briefly on several areas, including the still-unapproved Student Bill of Rights, prepared by faculty and students last year. He pointed out that the bill is not yet in its final form, and must be retyped with the revisions suggested by the faculty senate included.

Fr. Gaffney also called for the formation of another committee to study the feasibility of adapting the Carnegie Commission's Model Bill of Rights and Responsibilities, which would encompass the entire University community.

THE ACTING president described the success of the recent first annual Catholic Education Sunday in the Seattle Archdiocese, in which S.U. Jesuit and lay faculty members and alumni appealed to the laity for support of Catholic higher education—specifically S.U. He said that as of Friday, there had been 229 inquiries for more information about S.U. as a result of the effort.

Fr. Gaffney also lauded the "esprit de corps" of the faculty during the current financial crisis.

Guppy noted an encouraging trend indicated in the latest enrollment figures for spring quarter. Overall enrollment has increased one per cent over the past three academic quarters, while last year enrollment dropped eight per cent over the course of the year.

"THE STUDENT BODY is remaining stable," Guppy said. "We are attracting many more junior college transfers and retaining more of our other students."

Fr. Favilla confirmed that admissions, and applications, are up in the area of junior college transfers, but pointed out that applications from high school seniors are down from last year.

"Private school applications are down all over the nation, and the percentage of Catholic high school students enrolling in Church-affiliated schools continues to drop," he said.

FR. FAVILLA suggested the development of new inter-disciplinary programs, such as a major in environmental science, to attract prospective students.

McHugh reported that as of April 15, alumni had donated about $40,000 in cash and pledges to the SFC.

"Our two goals are to re-open lines of communication between the University and the alumni, and to solicit funds," McHugh said of the alumni portion of the fund drive. "We've had favorable response from the alums, especially concerning our new programs, such as the MBA and Community Service degree programs."

THE 45-MINUTE meeting was followed by a cocktail hour in the Xavier lounge.

letters to editor

where were you?

To the Editor:

April 22 there was a meeting for all S.U. students interested in the Project Concern Program. Approximately 90 students came — a good turnout, but a number of us were disappointed that no member of the Spectator staff was present.

Project Concern has interested many students in working in Tijuana this summer, but they also need the support by students for the "Walk for Mankind" planned in the fall.

Although exact plans are still a little hazy, I hope you will not miss future opportunities to convey to the student body both information about and enthusiasm for this project.

any gripes?

To the Editor:

The student services committee will meet Friday, May 14. As at-large student member of the committee, I will entertain suggestions from students on topics they wish brought up at this meeting which they can or will not bring up through other student members, i.e. ASSU, AWS presidents.

Golfers top WSU; stay undefeated

The super swingers were swinging merrily along this past weekend when they topped Western Washington State College in Bellingham 13½ to 4½.

Jim Brady, who has carried the "numero uno" since the start of the season, romped by the field with a four under par 67 to take single medalist honors.

"BRADY'S 67 was his best effort of the year," head coach Tom Page remarked. "He had one other 67 this year, but this one was his better round."

But not all the honor can be bestowed on Brady. Other members contributed to the victory. Steve Dallas putted out the 18 holes with a par 71, Keith Williams shot a 72, John Molitar carded a 74 and George Schindler and Steve Ebert shot 78's.

"THIS WAS another one of our good team efforts," Page said. "We are in tip-top form right now."

The team now posts a 6-0 record for dual matches, still our only undefeated team for spring activity.

BASEBALL
Seven straight! Not seven straight errors or hits or losses or flies or balls lost or sunny days, rather seven consecutive wins for the Chieftain b-ballers.

Two wins over Portland University Saturday at White Center boosted their record to an impressive 13-4 showing.

RON THOMPSON posted his fifth win in the first game of the doubleheader.

The Chiefs started with an explosive first inning, bringing five runs across the plate. They carried their strong lead till the ninth inning, when disaster almost struck the baggy-pants clan.

Portland had the tying run on base with their lead run at home plate. Gary Fox came in to relieve and fortunately got the side retired, ending the score at 5-1.

THE SECOND game saw potency in action for the Chiefs. There were three home runs smacked over the fence for S.U. Pat Smith powdered one, Lon Copenhaver followed with another. And John Varga, performing undoubtedly his best this year, had one home run, a triple, two doubles, drove in three runs and scored five himself.

Coming from a 7-5 deficit, Pat Smith battered in a three run homer in the bottom of the sixth to put S.U. ahead 8-7. The scarlet and white unit scored two more before the inning was out.

Bob Nicholas staked his third win with a total of zero e.r.a.'s

CREW
The crew rowed, rowed, rowed the boat, but not gently down any stream. They man-powered the boat to the finish line at almost the same time the University of Washington, Pacific Lutheran and Western Washington did.

THE END was so close that the determining factor was where one was sitting and the angle he observed the finish.

The judges had the best eye for the decision and proclaimed U.W. first with S.U. trailing behind in fourth.

Assistant coach Bob Piggott said, "We all went over the finish line within feet of each other. We could have been in second as well as fourth."

THE LIGHTWEIGHTS now have two firsts, one second, one third, and one fourth racked up for the season sub-total.

TENNIS
The local racqueteers split their two matches this last weekend. They were defeated by Oregon State Saturday 7-2 and upended Portland University 8-1 Sunday.

THE FIRST match witnessed the victories of Warren Farmer in singles and the number one doubles team of Don Gerstmar and Mike Prineas.

The next day, S.U. made an overhaul. Singles: Mike Prineas def. John LaPlate 6-1, 6-1; Don Gerstmar (S.U.) def. Jim Berg 6-1, 6-4; Warren Farmer (S.U.) def. Scott Rathman 6-4, 7-5; Dale Jacobsen def. John Galbraith (S.U.) 6-4, 5-7, 6-4; Dave Merrill def. Mike Peters 6-4, 7-5; Gary Dankleson (S.U.) def. Rex Blanchard 6-2, 6-2.

Doubles: Gerstmar - Farmer def. Rathman-Berg 7-5, 6-3; Galbraith-Tom Wenzel def. Peters-Jacobsen 7-5, 6-7, 7-5; and Merrill - Dankleson def. Blanchard-Chuck White, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Huskies upset Chieftains in high-scoring diamond battle

by Pat Curran

The Chieftain baseball string of seven consecutive wins unraveled in the eighth inning of a game with the University of Washington yesterday as the Huskies triumphed 10-7.

GOING INTO the bottom of the eighth inning, S.U. led 7-4. Then a succession of walks, Chieftain errors, and U.W. singles drove in six runs. The losing S.U. pitcher, Gary Fox, was ejected in the middle of the Husky comeback after he exchanged a few pleasantries with the umpire over a wild pitch.

The Chiefs made a move back in the ninth inning, placing men on second and third with one out. The U.W. hurler bore down at this point and the next two batters struck out.

S.U. began the scoring, taking a quick 3-0 lead in the first two innings. In the first, Pat Smith tripled and came home on Bob Polaski's sacrifice fly.

THE CHIEFS tallied two more runs in the second on Bradd Bever's single and Sam Baker's triple.

In the fifth inning, the U.W. scored three runs on two singles, a walk and a wild pitch. The CHIEFTAIN BOB POLASKI takes a healthy cut at a Husky pitch in yesterday's contest against the cross-town rivals. The U.W. ended S.U.'s seven-game winning streak, erupting for six runs in the eighth inning. Final score: Dogs 10, Chiefs 7.

Chiefs added runs in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings but their lead did not stand up against the U.W. spree in the eighth.

The loss leaves S.U. with a 13-5 record. Losing pitcher Fox has a 2-2 season mark.

Sailors take last place, dunking

Last weekend's Northwestern District regatta at Western Washington State College was a disappointing, yet enjoyable, happening for the S.U. Yacht Club.

The Chieftain team finished sixth with the University of British Columbia coming in first, University of Victoria second, University of Washington third, Oregon State fourth, and Western Washington fifth.

Women's teams to bat softballs in tourney

Arise, females! How about a little action for a couple of weeks? Associated Women Students and the Women's Sports Club are sponsoring a softball tournament May 10-28.

The teams can be formed from anywhere on campus, from dorms, Town Girls, etc., just as long as they are organized and have a minimum of 12 players. A person may not play on a team unless her name appears on a team roster. Each team must have a name. Women can play on one team only.

Each team is asked to designate one person whom the AWS office can contact. Make note of the person and her phone number on the roster.

Off-campus females wanting to participate can sign up on a separate list in the AWS office.

Rosters are to be in the AWS office by 3 p.m. May 6. Players are to provide mitts only. Bats, balls and catcher's gear will be provided by the Connolly P.E. Center.

Arrangements for transportation can be made through the AWS office.

Game times and places will be announced in The Spectator at a later date.

THERE WERE twelve races with two teams from each school racing alternately. S.U.'s division A team had Kevin Ryan as skipper and Tom Brooks, crew. Division B team consisted of Maryanne Knowles as skipper and Joanie Fread, crew.

The high point of the regatta occurred when the Chiefs' B team capsized after trying to execute a difficult maneuver in strong winds. For the feat they were awarded a broken batten for the most outstanding maneuver of the day.

THE SAILORS finished with seven sixth places, three fifth places, one did not finish and one did not start. Their total points were 72 out of 96.

'Flying' physicist supervises lab; salary, expenses paid by company

by Tom Mitchell

Those concerned about S.U.'s financial straits may be heartened to learn that there is at least one lecturer on campus teaching at no cost to the University.

On top of that, he flies to and from class.

Harry Svoboda, employed by Battelle Northwest in Richland in the electrical engineering section of the Reactor Physics Group, spends Thursdays this quarter teaching PH 332, Experimental Electronics. His travel expenses and salary are paid by Battelle.

SVOBODA ALSO taught a similar course last spring, but his salary and expenses were equally shared by S.U. and Battelle.

According to Svoboda, other

Battelle employees assist schools in this manner. The motivation of the non-profit Battelle Memorial Institute is to assist education.

Dr. Jerry Riehl, associate professor of physics, earned his doctorate in Svoboda's lab. An electronics teacher was needed last spring. The physics department, at Dr. Riehl's suggestion, asked Battelle for Svoboda's services.

DR. JOHN Toutonghi, head of the physics department, teaches the daily lecture for the class. Svoboda conducts the lab Thursdays from 11 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m.

The class is composed of physics majors and, for the first time, majors in S.U.'s new clinical chemistry degree program.
