U.S. Congress action may slice financial aid

by Evie Pech

Notification of federal aid awards will not reach students in mid-May as planned.

According to Michael Dolan, director of financial aid, students may expect their letters of award no sooner than the first week of June due to the failure of the U.S. House of Representatives to vote on any supplemental funds for higher edu-

The U. S. Senate, however, has proposed a $294 million Supplemental Appropriations Bill for Higher Education to aid the financially deprived student. The bill has passed in the Senate and is now in a subcommittee headed by Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash). Last week, HEW proposed a compromise appropriations figure of $42.7 million.

"WE'RE AFRAID that the House and Senate will go for the compromise of the $42.7 million bill," Dolan said. If the compromise passes, S.U. will be worse off than last year when there was a cut of approximately $42,000 in Equal Opportunity Grants (EOG). Even then the financial aid office was unable to help the "deeply needy students—generally the minorities," Dolan continued.

This year, with the possibility of the government appropriating only the proposed compromise figure, there would be further cuts made. These would include cutbacks in the work-study program, the National Defense Student Loans and the EOG.

The low-income students' chances for receiving government aid would be greatly reduced. This crucial bill affects students across the nation—not just in Washington. "It isn't a question of private vs. public institutions. If a student can't get money here, it's just as likely that he won't be able to get it at the U.W. either."

DOLAN SAYS it is imperative that both students and their parents convey their feelings to their congressmen. "Write to your congressmen, no matter what state you're from. Ask them to support full funding for the Senate Supplemental Appropriations Bill for Higher Education."

Dolan believes that the only way to move elected officials is to indirectly threaten them with the power of the vote. Now that the youth has this power, he said, "it can really affect the system."

Washington residents are urged to write Senator Warren G. Magnuson, 127 Old Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D. C. 20510. The addresses of other congressmen may be obtained at local post offices.

ABC newsman believes Vietnam blockade is 'exercise in futility'

by Ann Standaert

Nixon's Vietnam blockade is an "exercise in futility" and the U.S. may possibly be "courting with World War III," Jim Giggans, ABC Vietnam correspondent, said Tuesday in the A. A. Lemieux Library.

Giggans, scheduled to give a public appearance tonight, held a press conference for about 25 high school and college journalists Tuesday.

NOTHING WE can do, Giggans feels, can "stem the tide" of North Vietnamese aggression.

"What's been proven is that the North is better than the South and the North will win," Giggans said.

He blames the U.S. for South Vietnam's failure.

"THE SOUTH Vietnamese have never been asked to do anything on their own. They're not going to work if they don't have to," Giggans added.

Giggans doesn't believe the war can be won militarily. The North Vietnamese are committed to the war, he says, and will stay "until the year 2000 if that's what it takes."

Nixon, on the other hand, is still committed to the idea that force will overcome, Giggans said.

"THE GOVERNMENT is working on the theory that Communism must be contained but there is more than one Communism," Giggans said. "If South Vietnam became Communist, I think it would be a Communism we could live with."

"It is arrogant of the U.S. to assume we can decide who will support the North while we won't let others tell us what to do," he said.

Giggans believes Nixon is playing a "tricky game."

"THE BOMBING will have little effect before the election. There is enough material in Vietnam to keep the North Vietnamese in the South for at least six months," Giggans said.

In addition, Nixon may have helped himself politically, Giggans feels.

"He has aligned himself most assuredly on the right. He knows he can probably get the middle and lose the left but he has to have the right to win," Giggans added.

GIGGANS HAD been in Vietnam for over a year and a half.

Tonight he will talk on "Vietnamization — What's Happening?" at 8 p.m. in Pigott Auditorium.

Sponsored by Chieftain Communications Associates, Inc., a journalism alumni organization, the lecture-discussion is open to the public. Cost is $2 for adults and $1.50 for students.

Kramer: 'fourth power' to change priorities

by Kathy McCarthy

The coming "fourth power" in government will be a "bringing together of citizens in the political system to create a check and balance on the present three powers (executive, legislative and judicial)."

AT LEAST that's how A. Ludlow Kramer, Washington secretary of state, sees it.

"We have become too big to have a single leader lead this country," he said Tuesday in the Library Auditorium. "The 'fourth power' will become a group which can represent the beliefs and desires of a majority, mainly in the area of social reform."

The new citizen involvement will come, Kramer says, because "the present three 'powers' aren't working now." The "fourth power" will not take the form of another governmental agency but will, instead, have power to reorder priorities and reorder uses of existing money supplies.

KRAMER AFFIRMED his belief in democracy as the best form of government but added that "democracy is breaking down—the executive branch has taken total power and the legislature has lost its check and balance."

Kramer, stopping at S.U. on a state-wide tour, also encouraged his audience of about 40 to register to vote in time for the November election.

"You'll be asked to make some 100 decisions the day you vote," he said, "and the majority of them are issue-oriented. They will play a tremendous role in your future and you can't participate if you're not registered."

The secretary of state fielded a wide range of audience questions.

Kramer announced in reply to one question that he doesn't support President Nixon's decision to blockade North Vietnamese ports.

A Republican, Kramer said the president would have his support in the election "as a politico" but that he would "leave him on certain issues."

ASKED WHETHER he foresaw renewed student protests of the Vietnam war, Kramer said, "I'm not sure that we will see civil disorder. I've not had a socially conscious question from any one of the 100 campuses I've visited this month."

"I'm asked singular questions now," he added. "Do I have the right to drink, to amnesty, to go to a house of prostitution, to smoke marijuana?"

Kramer told another questioner that he had endorsed abortion reform during the last campaign. "I have no religious hang-ups," he said, "and my wife was vice chairman of the Committee for Abortion Reform."

Dartmouth poet to give reading today

Pulitzer Prize winner, Richard Eberhart, will read selections of his poetry today at 11 a.m. in the Library Auditorium.

Eberhart, 68, poet-in-residence at Dartmouth College and visiting professor at U.W., has produced 17 volumes of poetry and verse drama. He has taught at several schools, including Dartmouth, Princeton and Wheaton College.

EBERHART HAS won numerous literary prizes, including the Bolingen Award in 1962 and the Pulitzer Prize in 1966 for his "Collected Poems, 1939-1965."

From 1959-1961, Eberhart was consultant in poetry at the Library of Congress.

In 1969, he was elected a Fellow of the Academy of American Poets with an award of $5,000 for "distinguished poetic achievements."

THE READING, free to the public, is co-sponsored by the S.U. English department; Fragments, campus literary magazine; and Fr. James Royce, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Knudage Riisager to receive degree

Knudage Riisager, famous Danish composer, will receive an honorary Doctor of Music degree in an academic convocation tomorrow at noon in Pigott Auditorium.

According to Dr. Louis K. Christensen, chairman of fine arts department, the honorary degree is the first one ever awarded by a Pacific Northwest university.

RIISAGER'S Bold Overture, especially composed for the occasion, will be performed by the Thalia Symphony Orchestra and the A Cappella Choir will sing the Danish national anthem.

As Director of Copenhagen's Royal Conservatory before his retirement some years ago, Riisager has written ballet music for the Royal Opera and Ballet in Denmark.

His compositions are played in most European countries as well as in America, Australia and Canada.

There will be an electronic music demonstration and lecture by Dr. Christensen on Monday at 3 p.m. in Bannan 206, as part of the fine arts festival.

Financial announcement due at all-school convocation

The Very Rev. Louis Gaffney, S.J., president of S.U., has announced a special all-student convocation Monday from 10 a.m. to noon in Pigott Auditorium.

During the convocation, an announcement of major financial significance to the entire University community will be made by the Board of Trustees.

Various other items, including new fall programs and the status of Campion Tower will also be discussed.

All students and faculty are urged to attend.

Sign-ups vacant; positions open

As of Wednesday afternoon, no students had signed up for the four student senate seats and three class presidencies to be decided in this quarter's ASSU elections.

STUDENTS may sign up in the ASSU office, second floor of the Chieftain, from 2-5 p.m. daily.

Senate seats nine, ten, eleven and twelve, plus the sophomore, junior and senior class presidencies are up for election. Class presidents sit on the student senate.

CANDIDATES must have a minimum 2.20 gpa.

The primary election is scheduled for May 24 with the final slated on May 30.

Students interested in working on orientation may also sign up in the ASSU office.

under the rug? . . .

Most of the people present at the Battelle "think session" agree that the three days were a valuable experience.

SEVERAL PERSONS whose departments were not represented think the sessions could have been improved.

Complaints about the selection of participants have been registered by the Office of Minority Affairs and the dean of the School of Nursing, to name two.

The University has responded that only "major segments" of its population, such as trustees, students, faculty, staff could be included in the 20-person limit.

That's fine as far as it goes. But the fact remains, that on a campus with a significant minority population, it is incomprehensible to include no one from the area charged with serving and counseling minority students.

ALSO, THE REASONS for choices made present a dichotomy. On one hand, the University affirms that numerical representation was not the goal—that the persons chosen were picked for their ability to express themselves and contribute.

On the other hand, we are told that Ms. Henrietta Tolson, assistant professor of community services, was "wearing three hats" since, in addition to being a faculty member, she was also female and black.

Either you are seeking representation or you are not.

OBVIOUSLY, space was limited. The vast majority of the S.U. population was not invited though participants agree such a situation would be ideal.

It does seem, by now, that the University should be sufficiently aware of its vital components to make sure minority views are not once again swept under the rug, invited as an afterthought or tacked on a faculty member as a "third hat."

Selective Service clarifies changes

The Selective Service System has issued its last major group of regulation changes.

Under the new registration procedures for the draft, a registrant must register with a draft board or a draft registrar within 30 days before to 30 days after his 18th birthday. Registration will consist of filling out a Registration Card and a new Registration Questionnaire.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE requires the names and addresses of three persons outside the registrant's immediate family who will always know his address. The names, addresses and relationships of all the registrant's family over 16 must also be listed. In addition, the form asks if the registrant believes he qualifies for a hardship deferment, for status as a conscientious objector, for a surviving exemption, or for other Selective Service deferments and exemptions.

Almost all new registrants will remain in a holding classification, Class I-H, until after their lottery drawing which will be held early in the calendar year in which they reach 19. Those with low lottery numbers will be considered for classification out of Class I-H. Young men become draft eligible, provided they do not receive a deferment or exemption, during the calendar year in which they reach 20.

The Selective Service, as of mid-March, has also issued new regulations removing administrative hold on personal appearances and appeals which had been in effect since late 1971. The new provision sets a 15-day limit in which a registrant must request a local board personal appearance or an appeal after the mailing of a Notice of Classification card. Reasonable excuses for failure to respond within this period will permit an extension. Another change gives a registrant, under long postponement of induction, the right to receive consideration from his local board for a reopening of his classification to hear claims for exemption, deferment, or a conscientious objector status.

NEW PROVISIONS also allow a registrant to have up to three witnesses appear in his behalf at his local board personal appearance, require that a quorum of the members of the local board be present, entitle him to 15 minutes for his presentation, and state that his local board must furnish him with reasons for an adverse decision.

i.k.'s plan kidney center week

The Intercollegiate Knights are sponsoring a benefit week for the Northwest Kidney Center.

Goal of the six-day project is to raise $1300 or enough money to keep one person with chronic kidney disease alive for one year.

The project will run May 22-27 with food sales, a wishing well and a dance planned. The band for the dance has donated its time, according to Kevin Brown, I. K., publicity director.

"We're trying to get all the clubs involved," Brown added. The A Phi O's have promised to give the profits from their annual smoker, scheduled May 26, to the Kidney Center fund.

junior division drill award

The Princessa Drill Team and Cumbanchero Percussioners, of Filipino Youth Activities, took first place in the Junior Division in drill competition at Long Beach, Wash. last weekend.

The team also took the sweepstakes prize for the whole parade.

The group was led by Lori Noma, sultana, and J. R. Cordova, soldan. Both are S.U. freshmen.

The Chieftain Guard took first place in Military Drill Team competition at the same event while the Burgundy Bleus placed third in that division.

Fred Cordova, S.U. director of public information, serves as moderator-datu for the drill team and percussioners.

Speaker, arts festival, film planned next week

An ethnic cultural week has been set for Tuesday, May 16 to Wednesday, May 24 by the combined efforts of ASSU, Office of Minority Student Affairs and the Pan-Asian Council.

According to Vivian Luna, co-chairman, it is a combination of an Asian Week, which had been planned by the Pan-Asian Council, and Cultural Day, which had been postponed because of the absence of DaVerne Bell, who co-chaired the event with Lenzy Stuart.

OPENING THE WEEK'S festivities will be Warren Furutani, national officer and field director of the Japanese-American Citizens League of Los Angeles, who will speak on "The Emergence of the Asian-American" in Bannan auditorium on Tuesday, May 16, at noon.

A cultural arts festival on the library lawn will highlight the first Wednesday from noon to 3 p.m. Kung fu, karate and other Asian self defense tactics will be demonstrated and there will be entertainment by Hui O Nani Hawaii, S.U.'s Hawaiian Club.

Thursday will be highlighted by a film, "The Evolution of a Leader," concentrating on the development of leadership in a village in the Philippines.

FRIDAY WILL BE a celebration of Malcolm X's birthday. There will be a dance in the Chieftain. Admission will be 50c and "We Don't BS.", a combination of the Purple Haze and the Majestics blues bands, will play.

Highlighting the second half of the festivities will be a "Pride and Shame" exhibit with literature and pictures pertaining to the experiences of Japanese-Americans from their immigration to their internment in World War II and to their present day achievements. This exhibit will be on display for two days only, Monday, May 22, and Tuesday, May 23.

On the second day of the exhibit, there will be a panel discussion with the leaders of Seattle's Japanese-American community. The panel will discuss and explain the purpose and the injustice of the internment during the war.

ONE THE LAST day, Wednesday, May 24, there will be a round table discussion on "China, U. S. and Russia in Southeast Asia" at noon, in the Library Auditorium.

'People power' programs seek input

"People Power" is the title of a new, community-oriented series of KING-TV programs which deal with contemporary issues.

THE PROGRAMS, aired at 4 p.m. on Sundays, first bring a group of citizens together to discuss the week's topic.

The citizen response sessions are taped and become a source of broadcast material and questions for a viewer questionnaire.

After these initial discussions, Lana Rae Keplinger, producer, and Emory Bundy, host, put together a mini-documentary on the week's topic. A questionnaire on the topic is then published in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Catholic Northwest Progress, U.W. Daily, and other Seattle papers.

THE FORMAT of the show is to outline the problem then have viewers fill out their questionnaires and send them in to King-TV. Votes are tabulated and two shows later "People Power" takes a look at the responses.

The first program, aired April 23, examined school discipline. Other topics to be covered include marijuana, tax reform, sickle cell anemia, urban public transportation, the equal rights amendment, amnesty for draft evaders, prostitution, the fate of the Public Health Hospital and community-based corrections.

BY THE THIRD show issue presentation will take up only half the program, with discussion and interviews on topics introduced two weeks before filling the rest of the hour.

The idea of the program is to get the public involved in TV programming to the greatest possible extent.

THE "PEOPLE Power" planning and advisory board includes representatives of the Seattle-King County Association of Community Councils, the Greater Seattle Council of Churches, the Anti-Defamation League, the Central Area Motivation Project, the Seattle Parent-Teacher-Student Association, the Puget Sound Coalition, the University YMCA, and the Seattle Public Schools.

Topics are chosen by the board.

Budgets to be discussed

The student senate will meet on Monday, at 7 p.m. in the Chieftain Conference room to discuss budget requests for campus organizations and student publications. Total amount of funds to be distributed among the requesting organizations is $56,000.

This amount is based on a percentage agreement between the ASSU and the University.

Holy day masses

Today, Ascension Thursday, is a holy day of obligation. The Chaplain's Office has announced the following times for campus Masses:

Masses in Bellarmine will be at 11:10 a.m., 12:10, 4:30 and 7:30 p.m., while there will be a 12:10 p.m. Mass in the Liturgical Center, third floor of the L.A. building.

official notice

Students interested in working on summer registration Monday, June 19, should leave their names with Karen Naish in the Registrar's office. A limited number of positions is available. Working hours will be from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at $1.75 per hour.

Workshop scheduled

A cheerleader workshop, originally scheduled to begin yesterday, has been set for today, tomorrow and possibly Monday.

Fifteen candidates have signed up but all interested women are still eligible, Jeff Jones, ASSU publicity director, said yesterday.

THE WORKSHOP, conducted by this year's cheerleaders, will give applicants a chance to learn a group routine to be performed in the final tryout.

FINALS HAVE tentatively been set for May 26, from 3-5 p.m. in Pigott Auditorium. Tryouts are open to the student body.

Yell leaders will be appointed on the basis of an interview with Fr. Leonard Sitter, S.J., and Jones.

Spectrum of events

TODAY

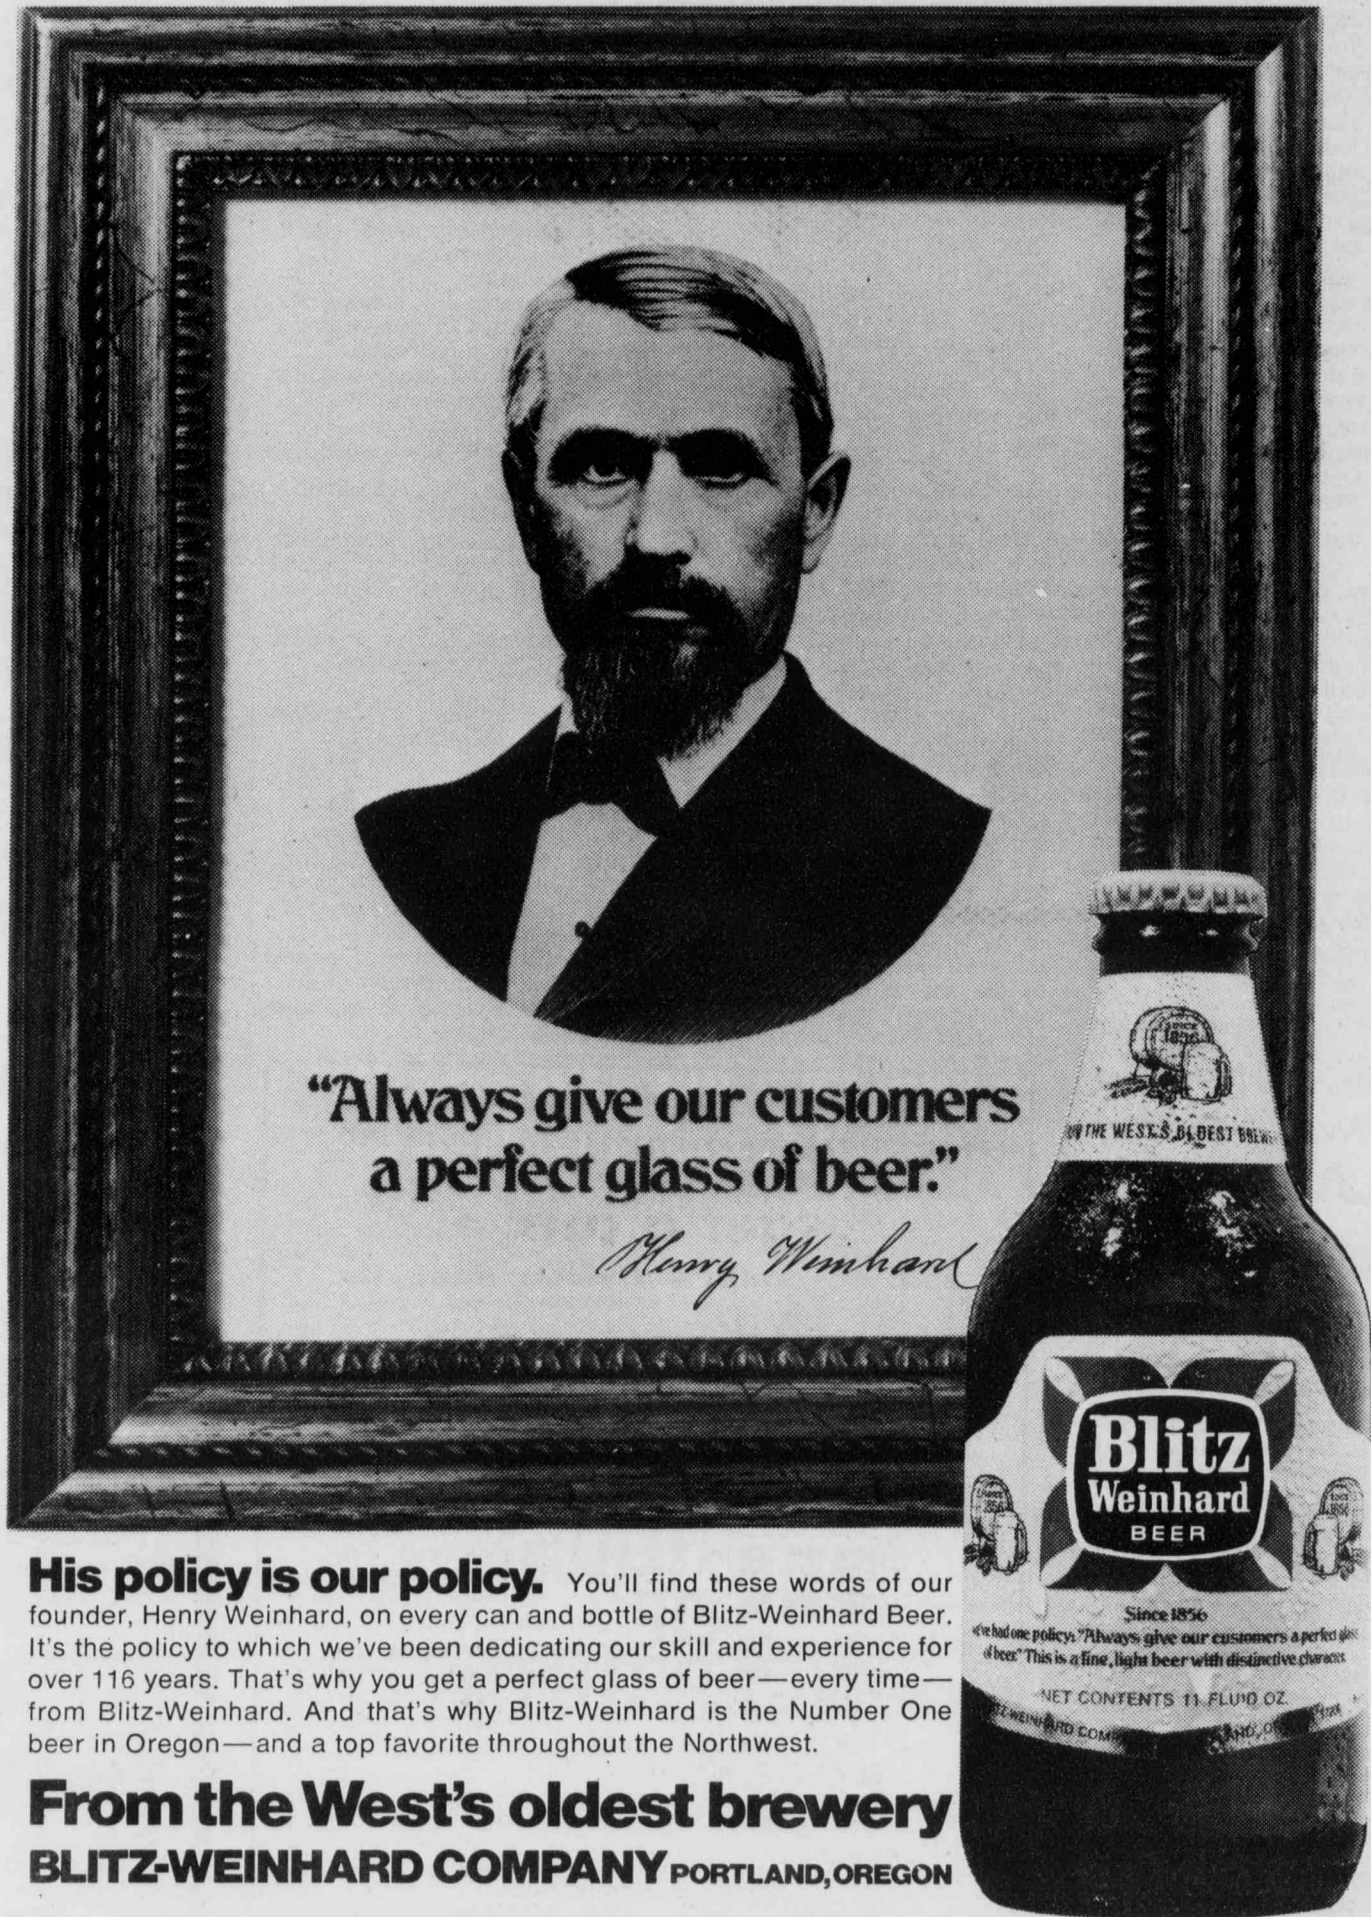

Activities Board: first of three meetings at 7:30 p.m. in the Chieftain conference room. Other meetings will be May 18, June 1.

Volunteer tutors: tutors needed from 5-8 p.m. any day to work with the S.U. Boys Club in the Connolly P.E. Center.

Yacht Club: 1 p.m. brief meeting in the ROTC basement followed by sailing instruction on Lake Washington.

TOMORROW

Spectator: 2 p.m. staff meeting in the third floor newsroom. Anyone interested in joining the staff is welcome.
