Fr. Ryan stresses openness, availability

A new president for S.U. was announced Friday in an academic convocation. He is Fr. Edmund G. Ryan, S.J., whose reputation as an educator is high in Jesuit circles.

Father Ryan was dean, then executive vice president of St. Peter's College in Jersey City, N.J. He was also one of five founders of the Association of Independent Colleges there and president for two years. Fr. Ryan was executive vice president of educational affairs at Georgetown University.

Part I

Openness and availability were key factors stressed by Fr. Edmund G. Ryan, S.J., president-designate of S.U., in an interview Monday.

"As president I will be highly visible and highly available," he said.

STATE AID to students, changes in administration, new facilities and improvement of the financial base of S.U. were a few of the problems he discussed.

"The number one priority I will announce in a speech the day I am inaugurated will be to have a constitutionally valid student assistance program passed by the legislature in Washington State. I will also work in Washington, D.C., for special legislation," Fr. Ryan said.

The president-designate favors use of a tuition offset system where 25, 50 or 75 per cent of what the state pays per student to subsidize public education would be given to students in private institutions. He would also approve of tax credits for individuals and parents.

"IN NEW JERSEY I was a forceful and successful advocate of student aid and institutional aid programs on both the state and federal level," he added.

I will work closely to persuade persons in business and industry to give generously to S.U., Fr. Ryan said. I will work with traditional benefactors to show them our needs and the way in which they can best aid the special purposes of the University. I will work with Fr. Lemieux and Fr. McGoldrick, who have been with this institution for many years and have many friends in the area.

Fr. Ryan is planning to meet with the Board of Trustees and the Alumni Board to discuss funding and donations to S.U., particularly for a raise in faculty salaries.

REGARDING THE recent tuition hike, Fr. Ryan commented that "as long as we're in a gravely inflationary time it will continue."

The problem with private institutions is that the price must be passed to the consumer, he said. For example, $100,000 a day was added to Georgetown expenses last year because of the energy crisis alone.

"What can you do? You must go back to the same source," he said. I am for federal and state plans for minorities and the poor, but through my speeches and writings I have been associated as a champion of the middle class. It receives no financial aid yet pays 80 per cent of the taxes.

"IF INFLATION continues even at seven to eight per cent a year, my own advice would be to suggest to borrow. Over a 20-year period in a federal loan, the student ends up paying $200 a year for undergraduate education," Fr. Ryan pointed out.

The six-year program, physical facilities and administrative changes were also covered by Fr. Ryan.

"I am very interested in and supportive of the six-year program. It is one of the things that convinced me to come here because a great deal of education is duplicative and unnecessary."

FR. RYAN commented that if any new facilities were needed at all, he sees a need for a fine arts, faculty office or parking building.

Generally, not at S.U. in particular, colleges and departments should have more experiential learning—an internship approach to education.

In administrative changes he remarked that he believes "in taking action but also in listening and observing." So far, he doesn't know what changes, if any, will be made. Fr. Ryan did say that the Very Rev. Louis Gaffney, S.J., current president of S.U., will be taking a year's sabbatical and will return to teaching as a professor of psychology.

Friday Fr. Ryan discusses student life and his background.

Connolly policy discourages crime in Complex

by Nath Weber

In its effort to curb crime in the Connolly P.E. Complex, the Complex administration has outlined the policy to be followed while utilizing the facilities.

Guest privileges were designated by Jack Henderson, director of the Connolly P.E. Complex, as being a major factor adding to theft and vandalism in the building.

STUDENTS ARE reminded that they are allowed to sponsor no more than one guest at a cost of 50 cents. The sponsor is responsible to remain with the guest at all times while in the Complex, said Henderson.

The problem that arises with the guest privileges is largely attributed to S.U. students who sponsor "guests" who wait outside the building for someone to sponsor them, according to Henderson. Once inside, the student may not encounter his "guest" again, who is free to do as he pleases.

The people that enter the Complex in this manner are known to cause a bulk of the problems, said Henderson. Since the building is not subsidized through their tuition, as it is the S.U. students', they tend to be more abusive of the facilities.

"WHAT RESULTS is thefts in the locker room, loss of equipment, broken equipment and vandalism," said Henderson.

One of the largest problems is the disappearance of towels from the locker rooms. Towels are now issued to students, staff and faculty with identification cards only.

Towel service will be discontinued entirely if the rate of loss does not decrease. Students are asked to turn their towels into the issue desks to eliminate the loss of towels that are left lying in the locker rooms, said Henderson.

DUE TO the abuse of equipment and lack of adequate funding, the equipment stock has been kept to a minimum.

"Students should bring their own equipment whenever possible," said Henderson. "We don't have the funds to put out money for equipment that is abused."

Students are also asked to supply their own locks for their lockers; they are no longer rented at the issue desk.

IN REGARD to use of the Complex by outside organizations, Henderson stated that the various organizations are not realistically taking time away from S.U. students, but are making it possible for the students to enjoy the facilities.

"The contracts with these various organizations may mean that the tuition will not have to raise quite as much," said Henderson.

A considerable amount of the time given to the outside organizations is scheduled in the morning hours, when students do not require the facilities for individual use.

THE GROUPS that occupy blocks of "prime time" are usually S.U. teams, such as the varsity basketball team, men's and women's tennis, and the S.U. golf and baseball teams, according to Henderson.

Students are encouraged by Henderson to reserve squash and handball courts to insure they will have a court to play on when they arrive. Entire courts, such as a basketball court, may not be reserved, however.

Information on the day's schedule may be obtained at the Complex beginning at 8 each morning.

Those who use the Connolly P.E. Complex facilities are asked by Henderson to comply with these policies and suggestions "for the good of all students and the good of the facilities."

Money for twelve-person van allocated by ASSU senators

by Josephine Mallo

The allocation of $1500 toward the purchase of a 1974 twelve-passenger van was one of the highlights of Monday's senate meeting.

The air-conditioned van, when purchased, will be made available for student use through the office of the director of student affairs. To be used within a 100-mile radius of S.U., the van will operate on a full-tank basis, where students will replace the amount of gas used.

Maintenance of the van will be handled by S.U. Fr. Mick Larkin, S.J., director of student affairs, commented that the purchase of a new van would leave the other van free for the use of athletic teams.

THE $1500 allocated by the senate was taken from the contingency fund. Another $1500 was contributed by a donor and a remaining $1500 was given by S.U., making a total of $4500 for the van.

Larry Brouse, ASSU president, suggested that the van be used as a transit system. On weekends, the van could make two or three rounds to the University District, Seattle Center, Pioneer Square and the downtown area. A pilot program for the transit system was estimated at $100 per month.

A suggestion was made by ASSU first vice president Jim Walker to paint "Associated Students of S.U." on the bus in order to advertise S.U. He added that space within the van may be sold for advertisement purposes.

THE RESULTS of the Aegis Commission Survey showed,

Walker said, "students are content the way it (the Aegis) is."

Representing a total of about 200 student opinions, the survey showed 134 students were in favor of retaining the Aegis, and 34 voted for its abolition. One hundred and four students voted that they would like funds allocated for the expansion of the Aegis. Sixty-four students did not favor the idea.

A bill submitted by Sen. Ed Aaron, placing the Open College under the direction of ASSU was passed after consideration by a committee.

THROUGH the bill, ASSU will provide financial aid needed, as well as the Open College quarterly schedule, facilities and staff. The chief administrator, the director of the Open College, will receive $100 per quarter, drawn from the ASSU general fund.

Two rooms in the basement of the minority affairs building were announced as the possible locations for the co-op grocery store. One of the rooms would serve as a storeroom. Wholesale outlets for food to stock the shelves would be further investigated.

Ann McBride and Dan Laurence were nominated by Larry Brouse to the vacant position numbers eight and ten of the senate. They will occupy the seats until election for those seats. The senate approved the nominations and both senators were sworn in.

Absent were Brian Healy and Loretta Williams. The next student senate meeting is in Xavier Hall at 7 Monday night.

ATTENTION FOREIGN STUDENTS

The Immigration and Nationality Act requires every alien who is in the United States on January 1 to report his address to the commissioner of immigration and naturalization during the month of January.

Registration cards for this purpose may be obtained on campus from the registrar's office, second floor Pigott; Mary M. Ridge, coordinator of foreign student services, Marian Hall 109; and Patty Lee, foreign student adviser for the residence halls, Bellarmine 327. Cards are also available at any U.S. Post Office.

Cautious Optimism

Fr. Edmund G. Ryan, S.J., will take over the reins of the S.U. presidency in June.

His background indicates a dynamic, visible man who is deeply involved with students and the community at large.

HE EXUDES a vitality needed by a president of a private university today.

Fr. Ryan seems extremely interested in the student and wants to keep the student here.

He's involved in trying to get federal and state monies to the student in private schools in order that the student might be aided in meeting the rising cost of education. He is also going to try to get more donations and such from private individuals and colleges.

FR. RYAN should do well in his fundraising efforts for S.U.

But let's not adore him blindly. Cautious optimism is called for. After all, we haven't seen yet how he will actually perform in office.

Here's wishing the president-designate good luck and success. His good luck and success will be the students' good luck and success.

Huskies trip Chiefs; Nevada-Las Vegas next

Led by the 27 points of James Edwards, the University of Washington Huskies made it eight wins in a row over the Chiefs in the last four years with an 80-72 victory Saturday at Edmondson Pavilion.

Frank Oleynick's 33 points and eight rebounds led the Chieftains, though it was not enough against the taller Huskies. Keith Harrell added 11 points, but from there the scoring slacked off considerably.

THE HUSKIES won the battle on the boards 47-38. Larry Pounds, Clarence Ramsey and Edwards each snared nine boards. Pounds also had 10 points, which together with his performance in the series' first game, was enough to earn him the most valuable player award for the two games.

The Chiefs were cold at the start of the game and when the Huskies moved to a 19-8 lead after the first ten minutes, it looked like a long night for S.U. fans. However, points by Jerry Lee, Buck O'Brien, Ricke Reed and Oleynick knotted the count at 24. The Huskies gradually pulled away again and the half-time score stood at 40-31.

In the second half the Huskies maintained a comfortable lead most of the way until the Chiefs rallied in the final minutes and cut a 14-point lead to five. At that point the Huskies began playing keepaway and the Chiefs were forced to foul, giving the U.W. their final margin of victory.

LAST Thursday the Chiefs gained revenge against the University of Portland Pilots by beating them, 70-60. It made up for a 72-69 December loss to the Pilots in the Arena.

Buck O'Brien's career high of 20 points, together with 20 from Frank Oleynick led the Chieftain offensive attack. Keith Harrell also had a very fine game, passing off for 11 assists, scoring 10 points and gathering four rebounds.

In the first half the Pilots built an eight-point lead at 22-14 before the Chiefs went to work offensively. Reggie Green, Oleynick, O'Brien and Harrell led a rally that pushed the Chiefs into a 31-30 halftime lead. The front line had 24 of the 31 first half points.

THE CHIEFTAINS maintained the lead in the second half, although they never established a comfortable margin. With five minutes remaining, the Pilots on baskets by Leonard Williams and Quentin Braxton tied the score at 56-56. From there, the Chiefs worked the ball, looking for the good shot. The Pilots were forced to foul and after two free throws by Harrell and four by O'Brien, the Chiefs led by eight with about a minute to play, clinching the win.

All eight players who accompanied the team played and scored. The Chiefs shot 49 percent from the field and out-rebounded the Pilots 37-34. Doug Lauricella scored 20 points to lead the Pilots.

The squad faces a tough game in their next assignment, tomorrow night's affair with Nevada-Las Vegas on the Rebels home court. The Rebels have a season mark of 13-3, 5-0 in conference action. All five starters average in double figures, led by the 20.8 average of 6' 6" Eddie Owens.

Saturday night the Chiefs visit the Nevada-Reno Wolfpack, who have a season mark of 8-9, 0-5 in conference play. Perry Campbell leads the Wolfpack with a 23.0 average.

JEROME MAULTSBY tries to block a Husky play in Saturday night's game. If looks could only kill . . .

Spec All-Stars 'Corner' Huskies

Rookies Sherrill "Swish" Chapin and Chuck "Corner" Curtis provided the firepower as the Spectator All-Stars humiliated the University of Washington Daily, 14-6, Saturday.

"Corner," a walk-on, chucked in 12 points and "Swish," a flashy photographer-guard, pleased the crowd with a 15-footer midway through the game.

Curtis and another rookie, John "Scoop" Sutherland, terrorized the backboards, wrestling rebounds easily from the Daily players. "Scoop" was also responsible for a spectacular theft which culminated in an assist to "Corner" for the score.

VETERANS Nath "Wicked" Weber and Val "Killer" Kincaid as well as rookie Connie "Klut" Carlton played outstanding defense, making the Daily squad afraid to come near them. Joe "the Pro" Guppy, meanwhile, provided good screens and other distractions to leave others open to score.

"I was disappointed that our defense allowed them six points in five minutes," said Coach Jeffrey E. A. Rietveld. "Our offense was satisfactory, though."

A BRIGHT sign for the All-Stars is that all of the players are ineligible for graduation this year.

"With proper coaching we should beat them 50-0 next year," said Rietveld, who is retiring this year. He is generally recognized as one of the best twice - weekly - college - newspaper - halftime - basketball coaches in the country.

Entertainment before and after the big game was provided by S.U.'s and U.W.'s basketball teams.

Champion to defend title

S.U.'s Dave Rivisto, world heavyweight kick boxing champion, will defend his title against John Hjalseth at 8 p.m. today in the Masonic Temple auditorium.

Both Rivisto and Hjalseth are undefeated.

KICK boxing, often called the most violent sport in the world, is a combination of judo, karate and Thai boxing. Fights can last up to ten three-minute rounds. If there is no knock-out, the bout is decided on points.

Hjalseth, the number one contender for Rivisto's title, has said that Rivisto is "over-rated" and predicts a knockout in five rounds.

Rivisto, a senior in political science, will retire after this bout. He hopes to go to law school after graduation.

Swim team makes history

S.U. women made history Monday as they competed as S.U.'s first intercollegiate women's swim team. With five swimmers and one week of turnout, the girls swam valiantly but lost to Highline Community College, 45-68.

Because both teams were small, only two or three swimmers competed in each event. Swimmers were limited to three individual events and one relay.

SWIMMER-COACH Susan True set a good example for her team by taking first place in all three of her individual events. Ms. True captured the 50-yard butterfly, the 200-yard I.M. and the 100-yard butterfly.

Betsy Powers, team captain, lost a hard-fought race in the 100-yard backstroke, and swam the 200-yard freestyle.

Mary Ann Hood swam the meet's most grueling event, the 400-yard freestyle, 16 lengths of the pool. Ms. Hood lost to a strong Highline swimmer, but gave an all-out effort in the last 50 yards.

A. HIGHLINE breastroker beat Val Kincaid in a close race for the 50-yard breaststroke.

Swimming competitively for the first time, team newcomers Lanette Coan and Cathy Reynolds lost but performed well in the 50-yard freestyle and in the 200 freestyle relay.

The team will compete in their second meet Sunday.

THERE WILL be four preliminary fights before the championship match. Rivisto's sparring partner, Richard Mason, will square off against Bruce Bjortman in one of the preliminary bouts. Bjortman was defeated by Rivisto last year.

The winner of the Mason/Bjortman match may have a chance at the championship title, according to Rivisto.

Tickets for the fight are available at Francisco's Restaurant and Fidelity Lane. A limited number of student tickets are being sold at the ASSU office for $2.50.

A new computer has been in operation at S.U.'s computer center since December.

ACCORDING to Doug Erickson, director of the computer center, the change over in computers was due to the fact that the disc drives (what is used to store information that is fed into the computer) were not working properly in the old computer.

"This was a disadvantage to our ability to produce whatever everybody needed when they needed it, especially for administrative purposes. Also the fact that there was more main memory capacity in a larger computer enabled us to write larger programs and do more sophisticated computing within a shorter period of time," Erickson said.

Erickson went on to describe some of the advantages of the new model. It has more memory capacity, a faster central processor, faster and more reliable disc drives. It has two physical drives so that two disc packs, each having a capacity of storing nine million characters, can be in use at the same time. Therefore the maximum storage capacity at one time is 18 million characters.

Sale to help scholarships

S.U.'s Friends of Minority Student Affairs, a multiracial community organization which was formed to support minority student activities at S.U., has announced a plan for discount tickets for the S.U. vs. Nevada-Las Vegas game.

The tickets are available in blocks of ten at $3.50 each if purchased through the minority student affairs office. The proceeds will go for minority student scholarships. The game is set for 8 p.m. Feb. 5 in the Seattle Center Arena. For tickets or information, contact the Friends of Minority Student Affairs at 626-6228.

ANOTHER advantageous characteristic is known as the hardware multiply/divide in which arithmetic operations and scientific type programming is speeded up five to 10 times faster.

Because of larger core size, the conversion of the written program to the machine language program is more efficient and faster.

"Previously, we had a communication capability with the University of Washington computer center; this enabled us to transfer information for processing in a larger computer there.

"However, because of poor usage we removed this communication capability and leased a larger and more efficient computer without any significant increase of costs," Erickson explained. The new computer was installed and in use by December 1974.

THE COMPUTER is used for administrative purposes nine hours a day, five days a week. There is open shop from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. during the week. Over 100 students who are in various business and mathematics classes plus students who are taking special courses use the computer. During open shop, the computer is open to general usage provided the user knows how to operate it.

There is a 24-hour maintenance service on the new computer as compared to the previous one which had an eight-hour normal work week.

"We also have a preventative maintenance service every two weeks, during which the machine is checked and its major aspects are cleaned and adjusted."

The computer center is open throughout the year. During vacation time, its hours depend on the work load.

THERE ARE five full time workers including Erickson, and three students working part time at the computer center.

A schedule of the times the computer is in use over a two-week period is posted outside the computer center on the third floor of Bannan Building. Those who want to use the computer can check this schedule to find out when the computer is free.

"This is a logical step in the development of the computer center, in trying to get as much as we can to help the user, but still keeping within the economic constraints of our budget," Erickson concluded.

SWANS sets new officers

Officers for 1975 were selected for S.U.'s chapter of State of Washington Association of Nursing Students (SWANS) last week.

Juvana Naylor, a junior, and Diana Broughton, a freshman, were selected presidents. Jeanie Wetzler, a junior, was chosen secretary while Winnie Ng, a sophomore, was tabbed treasurer.

SWANS is open to all nursing students and memberships will be taken until Feb. 15. Further information may be obtained from the SWANS' bulletin board across from LA 121.

Pathfinders survive weekend excursion

While most students slept comfortably in their beds Saturday night, the Pathfinders slept in the snow.

S.U.'s hiking-mountaineering club, Pathfinders, went snow camping at Crystal Springs in Snoqualmie Pass last weekend.

FOURTEEN PERSONS plodded through the drifts to build igloos and snow caves on Saturday. That night, they bedded down in their own creations.

The following day was devoted to snowshoeing.

Equipment for the excursion was provided by the military science department, which also provides the club's adviser, Captain Richard Meekin.

A COURSE in winter survival from the Mountain Rescue Service is planned from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday at Camp Long in West Seattle.

It is free and open to all students.

More information may be obtained from Dirk Bartram, 626-5874, or at the Pathfinders meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow in S.U.2.

German program to be presented

The German-in-Austria program will be discussed at 7:30 tonight in Chez Moi, Bellarmine Hall.

Slides will be shown of St. Radegund and Graz, towns the students will be staying in, as well as pictures of the Austrian scenery. Living accommodations will also be discussed.

A student who was in the program last term and is now back in the United States will speak and answer questions.

Anyone interested in the program or the German culture is invited to come. Cookies and coffee will be served.
